Chambers Admits He Lied to Congress

'Hill' Group Splits Up on Trial of Each Atom Suspect

'Case A,' Termed Disloyal by FBI, Identified as Writer Of Secret Report

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Plunged into the knotty problem of how to determine whether the Atomic Energy Commission is permitting disloyal persons to remain on the payroll without putting each individual on trial by name, the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy last night broke up in disagreement.

Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) said the committee would meet again this afternoon in executive session in another attempt to resolve the difficulty.

The issue arose when Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), after announcing he did not intend to identify the individual, tried to question AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal about a "Case A."

Describes Report Delivery

Hickenlooper described the delivery by Lilienthal, with an armed guard, of a highly secret report to the Joint Atomic Energy Committee.

He quoted Lilienthal as saying that the report, which has never been made public, was "one of the hottest documents ever assembled," and that was the reason he delivered it under armed guard.

Then Hickenlooper said:

"A ma: against whom serious doubt was raised (in an FBI report), warranting suspension, warranting a hearing before a board that I believe was not adequate to judge—a man upon whom there was a substantial file creating serious doubt, is in charge of the report that was such a top secret and such a 'hot' document that it had to be delivered by an armed courier."

Executive Session Urged

Hickenlooper said he believed the committee should go into the case in full in executive session.

Then Lilienthal, who had been vehemently protesting bringing any of these cases out in public hearing, interjected:

"This simply carries out the apprehensions and predictions I have made. Senator Hickenlooper has firmly identified by his most recent statement this individual and I think, in fairness, under the American system of fair play, the individual and those people involved in his report, should at once, in my opinion, as promptly as the committee permits, appear before you.

"He has identified the individual in the AEC program who is responsible for the preparation of the quarterly reports of the commission."

McMahon later told reporters the committee has never made public the secret report nor the name of its author. Efforts to obtain the name of the author from the commission were unsuccessful.

Lilienthal told the committee that despite the report no one at the commission, including himself, had any doubts as to the loyalty of the individual described in "Case A."

Hickenlooper was critical of the clearance of the individual by the commission board comprised of two scientists and a lawyer, none of whom had experience in dealing with cases of subversion. He pointed out that only two of 35 persons who had given the FBI "derogatory" information were permitted to testify. Many defense witnesses were heard, he said.

The man in question was given

FHA Begins Probe of Gifts To Officials

By Benjamin C. Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Federal Housing Administration has launched an investigation of complaints that its District Insuring Office accepts special gifts for services rendered, it was revealed yesterday.

Two men, including the director, have resigned as a result of the probe, according to assistant FHA Commissioner Warren Lockwood.

Complainants have charged that before the local FHA will act, special gifts are required ranging from single radios and wrist watches to truckloads of whisky.

The two men whose resignations were accepted Friday admitted accepting radios from mortgagees, Lockwood said yesterday.

They are James A. Hewitt, Norbeck, Md., District director, and Thomas M. Burckes, 1214 S. Thomas st., Arlington, Va., chief underwriter.

Reached separately by telephone, Hewitt and Burckes issued nearly identical statements. They said they had resigned to enter private business, the firm of James A. Hewitt, Inc.

When asked to comment on Lockwood's explanation concerning the radio gifts, both said, "I don't know what Mr. Lockwood is talking about."

Burckes said the new firm would specialize in property management, real estate and mortgage loans, with offices at 1415 I st. nw.

Lockwood, the commissioner in charge of district offices, described the resignations as "unfortunate."

"Both men accepted the radios as presents around Christmas time," he said.

No action was taken by either man which would not have been taken without the gifts, Lockwood said.

A special staff of three men is continuing the investigation into what Lockwood described as "questionable practices" by the local office.

Walter Reed's D-Day Heroes Only Handful

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

There are not many men left at Walter Reed Hospital these days who fought and fell, wounded, in bloody Normandy.

Among these few there was no flood-tide of reminiscing yesterday on the fifth anniversary of that D-Day.

This, of course, is hardly a surprise—for where is the man who cares to recall the day a shellburst filled his head with shrapnel, kept him unconscious for 32 days and in a hospital 3½ years, took his weight down from 185 to 115 pounds.

"I would have forgotten it was the day, today, if someone hadn't reminded me," First Sergt. Delta Soileau of Hopewell, Va., who is such a man, said.

"And that forgetting—well, it's all to the good. Right after the war the boys around here used to talk about the action they'd been in—they talked too much.

While having no desire to drag out a birthday cake for that day five years ago—at 3 a. m., first wave, right after he'd come, crouching, out of the assault boat onto Omaha Beach—Soileau was looking and feeling first-rate.

Up in a different ward was another who'll pass an uncelebrated anniversary this week.

Corpl. Leon J. Kozloski of Falls Village, Conn., lasted until D plus 4 after coming ashore at Utah Beach.

That day his infantry platoon was moving up. Kozloski was the 30-caliber machine gun man, and he was targeted by a fellow-craftsman on the German side.

The slugs burned into his legs ". . . and I took a few Germans with me" . . . he lay three hours before a stretcher-bearer got to him.

Suddenly, yesterday, telling this, he laughed.

"I've got a Bronze Star and a wooden leg," he said.

But the other leg is all right and Kozloski seems a pretty happy guy because the general says he's due out right away, too.

Racial Report By Navy Due For Approval

A new Navy plan to eliminate racial inequalities in the sea service has been submitted to Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and is expected to be approved.

Also before Johnson is a report from the Army—the second given him since he called upon the armed services two months ago to recite how well they had obeyed President Truman's order of last summer to abolish race discrimination.

The defense chief last month approved the report submitted by the Air Force, disclosing plans to abolish segregation in the USAF. He sent back the reports of the Army and Navy, terming their plans to end racial inequalities unsatisfactory—and called for them to submit new ones by May 25.

Well-informed Pentagon officials last night expected Johnson to reject this new Army report also. It was said to go little beyond the first document, and to stand largely by the findings of the so-called Gillem Board. Army chiefs are understood to take the position that much can be done by a flexible interpretation of the Gillem plan—which holds to segregated units within the Army.

Essence of the new Navy plan is said to be:

1. Call to active duty as many of the 50-odd Negro Naval Re-

Can't Make Up Mind

Burlington, Vt., June 6 (U.P.).—Martin F. Vilas, a 79-year-old former United States Commissioner said today "I'm either atoning for my sins or a damned fool" after completing a 40-mile walk around the University of Vermont track in 24 hours.

Stocks Dip To New Low For 2 Years

New York, June 6 (AP).—Stock prices skidded to a two-year low in a fast-moving market today.

Loss to market value of all stocks listed on the exchange approached $1,000,000,000. It was one of the sharpest setbacks of the year.

In the last half hour of trading, buying power on a scale large enough to halt the decline finally appeared, but the comeback was small in relation to earlier losses.

Buying enthusiasm was dampened thoroughly by another decline in steel production schedules, eighth in a row. It will put this week's output at the year's low.

Reports from other business fronts were no worse than usual, but Wall Street still lacked confidence. A turn for the better is in the offing.

Selling was influenced, too, by the present level of prices. The market, on the average, has declined to a point which in the past has attracted strong support. Many observers feel that if the current level is decisively broken, a further decline is highly probable.

U. S. Steel dropped 75 cents a share to $20.87; General Motors 87 cents to $53.37; Chrysler 87 cents to $46; Firestone Tire $1.62 to $44.37; Douglas Aircraft $2.75 to $56; Kennecott Copper $1.62 to $40.12; Dow Chemical 75 cents to $44; Radio Corp. 50 cents to $10.12; American Woolen $1.75 to $22.25; Nickel Plate Railroad $4.87 to $56.12; Standard Oil (N. J.) $1.37 to $62.87, and Twentieth Century-Fox 87 cents to $21.25.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $1 to $59.30, lowest since May, 1947, and only a shade above the 1947 low.

Grains and cotton also slipped.

Snyder Scoffs at Talk Of a Marked Slump

Boise, Idaho, June 6 (U.P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder today said most economic signs point to a "sustained prosperity" in the United States.

Snyder made the statement in a telephone interview at Sun Valley, where he is to address the Utah State Bankers' Association convention.

"I have no reason in the world to think we are in for any marked recession," said the Nation's fiscal chief. "There are too many indices of a sustained prosperity in the country.

"Employment is still high and national income paid out is something close to $214,000,000,000 a year.

"So I think we are whistling in the dark when we talk of any marked recession."

Baby Falls 20 Feet; Appears Little Hurt

The baby is the child of Corpl. and Mrs. Ben Galvin, 4313 Kansas ave. nw. The child crept across a bed and fell out of the window before Mrs. Galvin could reach her, the mother told police.

FBI 'Called Off' in Probe Of Soviet Spy, House Is Told

A young jet engine expert testified yesterday that his efforts to help the FBI nab a wartime Russian spy "were passed off" with word that "Mr. Byrnes of the State Department says we can't touch him."

The engineer, Loren G. Haas of Buffalo, did not identify the Mr. Byrnes at a hearing of the House Un-American Activities Committee. But he was speaking about 1945 and James F. Byrnes was Secretary of State in part of that year.

And in talks with reporters Haas and two other witnesses made the identification clear.

Byrnes, now a member of a law firm here, told a reporter:

"Never did I tell any official of the Government not to arrest anyone. That is not a matter for the Secretary of State, but one for the Department of Justice and the FBI."

Haas and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Franey gave the committee a detailed story on how a Russian purchasing agent, Andrei Schevchenko, tried to get wartime aviation secrets from them while they worked with the FBI to trap him.

They told of photographing documents and drawings and turning them over to the Russian agent in New York, of getting money in return and handing it to the FBI.

Finally, Representative Velde (R., Ill.), himself a former FBI agent, asked:

"He was never arrested, as far as you know?"

Haas said he was glad that had been brought up. He said he and his wife and the two Franeys had gone through a lot of trials and tribulations with a "character who was supposedly in charge of Amtorg Trading Corp., an official Russian government purchasing agency in New York."

He said there were newspaper stories that Amtorg was headquarters for the NKVD (Soviet secret police).

Then the 32-year-old witness added that he felt the Russian even was a potential murderer and thief. He said the part played by

Big 4 Decide On a Return To Open Talks

By Walter Kerr

Paris, June 6 (NYHT.)—The Big Four Powers tonight decided to return to open discussion Tuesday after failing in three secret meetings to agree on means of unifying Berlin.

A last-minute American compromise, approved by the British and French Governments, did not succeed in breaking the deadlock. Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, insisted on the full veto in any four-power allied control machinery that is restored to the former German capital.

This the Western States would not accept and, to prevent false hopes and irresponsible rumors, they suggested the Council of Foreign Ministers go back to its normal practice of full publicity on negotiation.

They are said to feel now they have only a little more chance of unifying Berlin than they did of unifying all Germany.

The American compromise was hammered out during a morning meeting attended by Secretary of State Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman.

It sought to reconcile the Russian veto demand with the general Western view that majority rule should prevail. In its final form it went so far as to abandon decision by majority vote in favor of a more complicated system.

Secretary Acheson then submitted it to Vishinsky during the afternoon meeting. He received no direct comment because the secretariat had not had time to prepare written Russian translations.

He got an indirect answer, however, when the Soviet delegate put in a revised version of the Senate Unit Votes to Pass Atlantic Pact

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday unanimously approved the North Atlantic Security Pact.

The 12-nation treaty, pledging signatories to regard an armed attack on one as an attack on all, was ordered reported to the Senate, 13 to 0.

The report itself, with last-minute language changes making clear the President's powers are unchanged by the treaty, will be presented to the Senate today.

"A Tremendous Lift"

Announcing the vote, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said the uanimous action "will have a tremendously beneficial effect on the world situation." He predicted Senate ratification by an "overwhelming vote."

From Paris, where Big Four Foreign Ministers' talks are in progress, Secretary of State Acheson cabled that the committee's action "has given us all a tremendous lift."

Acheson cabled "thanks" to Chairman Connally and his colleagues, "particularly" Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Walter F. George (D., Ga.).

Some of the last-minute changes in the report were designed to meet, in part, contentions by George that Congress alone has the power to order use of troops in event of armed attack on a treaty nation.

"Chewing On It Too Long"

The revised report stipulated that the treaty does not increase or decrease the power of the President under the Constitution, and George agreed to go along.

Connally said no reservations to the treaty were offered.

"If they had been, they'd have been thrown into the waste basket," the Texan added.

The treaty is slated for Senate consideration immediately follow-

Lawyer for Hiss Puts His Accuser Through Intensive Cross-Examination

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 6.—Under vigorous cross-examination which sought to depict him as a confused neurotic, Whittaker Chambers admitted some further conflict in his account of a spy-ring conspiracy involving Alger Hiss, but held to the main thread of his story.

He conceded that he twice perjured himself before the House Committee on Un-American Activities last August, after previously admitting he lied to a Federal grand jury here last October.

He admitted he withheld from his own lawyers the alleged microfilmed copies of State Department documents which he says Hiss gave him and which Chambers later secreted in a hollowed-out pumpkin on his Westminster, Md., farm.

Under questioning of chief defense counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker, the 48-year-old former senior editor of Time magazine and confessed Communist espionage courier agreed he once said he had no "independent recollection" of who gave him the microfilm.

But while Stryker hammered at elements of his past, ranging from an erotic poem which Chambers wrote at the age of 17 to the fact that his grandmother died in an insane asylum, Chambers — smiling and confident on the witness stand—did not change his basic charges.

Chambers was on the stand for the fourth time in the five-day-old Hiss perjury trial. He is the chief prosecution witness to charges that Hiss, while a high State Department official in 1938, willingly and frequently provided Chambers with secret papers. Chambers says he turned these over to a Russian espionage agent.

Both the prosecution and defense have acknowledged that Chambers' veracity is the crux of the case, and Stryker today probed deeply into Chambers' past illnesses and mental attitudes.

Back of the defense counsel table today, and frequently conferring with Stryker, was Dr. Carl Binger, a psychiatrist brought into the courtroom by the defense.

In the "mental" aspect of the questioning, Stryker examined Chambers closely about a "wooden rolling pin" which Chambers said Hiss gave him as a gift for his daughter; Chambers' reaction to the suicide of his brother in 1926, and his "fear" that Hiss might kill him or have him killed.

Earlier, Stryker led Chambers back and forth across the testimony he gave to the House Committee and over testimony by Chambers in pretrial depositions for a $75,000 libel suit filed against him by Hiss in Baltimore.

When Chambers admitted he

Weeds Choke D. C. Committee Into Deadlock Over Bill for Spraying on Private Property

What Is a Weed? Who Set 4 Inches?

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington's weeds deadlocked the House District Committee yesterday.

It happened when Representative Abernethy (D., Miss.) asked committee approval for a bill to let the District destroy weeds by spraying on privately owned land.

"Who defines the weed?" asked Representative Wadsworth (R., N. Y.).

"A weed is anything that causes hay fever," replied Representative Miller (R., Nebr.) who is a physician.

"It sounds like my wife's garden is gone if the bill passes," quipped Representative Allen (R., Calif.).

"Will the authorities realize that the spray kills all legumes, including clover?" asked Representative Wadsworth.

"It kills anything with a broad leaf," conceded Corporation Counsel West.

Representative O'Hara (R., Minn.) proposed substituting the Senate-approved weed control bill. This was a move to eliminate a $25 penalty proposed in the House bill, and not in the Senate bill, for property owners who fail to keep their lands clear of weeds over 4 inches high. His move was voted down.

"I think the definition of weeds is too loose," commented Representative Allen.

"It's highly discriminatory," observed Representative Bates (R., Mass.).

"Now this is a very simple piece of legislation," broke in Representative Abernethy. "It's been around for four years, and I think it's about time we gave the District officials some authority to get rid of these weeds."

"How did you arrive at the height of 4 inches?" asked Representative Jones (D., Mo.) after a look at the bill.

"That's existing law—been on the statute books for years," explained Corporation Counsel West.

"I'm against any weeds that cause hay fever," said Representative Miller.

Home Rule Hearings May Come Next Week

Representative McMillan (D., S. C.) said yesterday House hearings on Washington home rule legislation, including the Senate-approved bill, may start next week. Story on Page B-1.

Goldenrod Flower? Garden in Danger?

But Representative O'Hara said he thought it was going pretty far to let the District spray a man's weeds, and then fine him $25 for not doing it himself.

"We expect them to use some discretion," said Representative Miller.

"Well, I don't expect it," said Representative O'Hara.

As a final move, Representative Bates called for the bill to be laid on the table and Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) said the issue would be deferred to the next meeting.

"I'm interested in having Dr. Miller define whether goldenrod is a flower or a weed," said Representative Smith (D., Va.) as an afterthought.

Fort Monroe, Va., June 6 (AP).—Announcement of the retirement of Brig. Gen. Paul V. Kane of Fort Monroe, wartime commanding general of the Third Corps Artillery, was made today by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, chief, Army Field Forces.

General Kane, who had been assigned as deputy assistant chief for plans, AFF, was in Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, until recently.

Lucas Denies Throwing Any Of Fair Deal 'Out of Window'

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Not a single bill in the Administration's legislative program is "out the window," Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), majority leader, declared yesterday.

Lucas also assured newsmen after his weekly conference with President Truman that it will be virtually impossible for Congress to adjourn by July 31. That is the date set in the Congressional Reorganization Act.

Lucas retreated from the position he took two weeks ago when he listed only three measures as "must" legislation. These were repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law, extension of reciprocal trade agreements and Senate approval of the North Atlantic Pact. His omission of several Administration pet measures created widespread talk that hope of their passage had been given up.

Lucas predicted early ratification of the Atlantic Pact. He was not so confident of early action on the European arms aid measure to implement the pact. "Let's get the pact approved first," he said.

Pressed about civil rights legislation, Lucas declared that "the leadership is behind that as always." Asked to predict action on such measures as Fair Employment Practices Act he dodged the issue by repeating "nothing is out the window."

"When the record of Congress is written," he declared, "it won't be so bad. We're going to do all we can for the entire program."

Speaker Sam Rayburn, who was also at the conference, promised that the House will go right to work on the Administration's stalled housing bill. House Democrats will caucus today, he said.

D. C. Milk Drivers Accept $4 Across-the-Board Raise

Washington area dairy truck drivers and other dairy workers voted last night to accept a $4 across-the-board wage increase of the producers.

Rank and file of the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Local 246 (AFL) voted 938 to 124 to accept the terms at a 45-minute meeting in Turner's Arena.

The dairy workers' two-year contract extends until June 6, 1950, but provided for reopening of wage discussions for a 60-day period which ended last night.

The union originally had asked for $10 more weekly for drivers and an average hourly increase of 20 cents for dairy plant workers.

Under terms of the agreement all workers will receive the $4 weekly increase with retail drivers also getting a higher percentage of receipts. In addition, according to Eugene R. Hubbard, secretary-treasurer and chairman of the union negotiators, it provides improvements in overtime pay and in working conditions of route foremen.

Minimum weekly guarantees under the new pact for chain store drivers will be $65.50; for wholesale drivers, $68.25, and for retail drivers, $63.50, Hubbard said.

The negotiating committee unanimously recommended acceptance of the offer, it was learned.

Earlier, union officials and dairy representatives had met all day with Federal Conciliator Henry G. Baker, jr., at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Affected by the negotiations were some 1525 employes of nine Greater Washington dairies. The dairies include Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase, Embassy, Wakefield, Thompson's, the Lucerne milk division of Safeway Stores, Harvey's, Model Farms, Alexandria Dairy Products and Richfield.

AMA Imposes Gag On Dr. Fishbein

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, N. J., June 6.—The American Medical Association today opened its ninety-eighth annual convention here, and before the opening day's end had honored two physicians and muzzled one.

In order, the day's events included:

1. Selection of Dr. Seale Harris, 79, Birmingham, Ala., over Baltimore's Dr. Alfred Blalock for the 1949 Distinguished Service Medal.

2. Imposition of a virtual gag on Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal, whose retirement is planned for "an appropriate time."

3. Posthumous presentation of the Joseph Goldberger Award in clinical nutrition to Dr. Randolph West, professor of medicine at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons, who died last month.

15,000 at Convention

The three actions occurred at relatively limited gatherings. The first two developed in the opening meeting of AMA's house of delegates, the organization's governing body elected by its county and State medical societies. The third took place at the board of trustees' dinner for the delegates tonight.

The bulk of some 15,000 physicians attending the four-day convention spent the day at Convention Hall here listening to medical reports in the scientific session, browsing through the area of commercial, scientific and technical exhibits, or just took time off to enjoy the sunny beach and boardwalk.

Selection of Dr. Harris, noted for his work in hyperiosulinism (excessive activity of the pancreas), for this year's distinguished service award was by a vote of 97 to 68 for Dr. Blalock. Three outstanding physicians were chosen for preference vote, Drs. Harris and Blalock and Dr. Shields Warren of Boston, director of the division of medicine and biology of the Atomic Energy Committee. Dr. Warren was eliminated from the runoff vote.

The winner, a native of Georgia, was professor of medicine at the University of Alabama Medical Department, and is now its professor emeritus. He was cited by General Pershing for "conspicuous and meritorious service in France" in World War I.

Muzzling action against Dr. Fishbein was voted by the AMA's board of trustees, its chairman, Dr. Elmer Henderson of Louisville, said. Major complaint, it would appear from Dr. Henderson's statement, was that Dr. Fishbein writes and speaks too authoritatively and too often.

Dr. Fishbein apparently foresaw the impending action. On Saturday he announced he was easing out of his multiple duties, and was training others to take over his four principal editorships.

Despite this announcement, the board of trustees proceeded today to publicly outline its restrictions on Dr. Fishbein's activities. These included, Dr. Henderson's statement said:

"1. The editor will completely eliminate speaking on all controversial subjects both by platform and by radio. Approval of all speaking engagements will be made by the executive committee.

"2. Elimination of all interviews, including press conferences, and statements by Dr. Fishbein except on scientific subjects.

"3. Editorials on controversial subjects will be supervised by the executive committee."

Dr. Henderson also announced immediate discontinuance of Dr. Fishbein's columns, including his diary and his "Tonics and Sedatives," informal gleanings and commentaries which sometimes, it was claimed, offended more dignified members of the profession.

Stated reason for the Fishbein gag, according to Dr. Henderson's statement, was contained in its opening paragraphs.

"The board of trustees is aware of the criticism of the editor coming from within and without the profession. The board recognizes that the public has come to believe that the editor is spokesman of the association. The membership undoubtedly wishes the elected officials to speak authoritatively on all matters of medical policy."

Informed sources here said one of the complaints against Dr. Fishbein was that he did not progressively push for organization of the medical care program, which many doctors now feel is a must if national compulsory health insurance is to be circumvented.

The board of trustees' statement made it clear that Dr. Fishbein's eventual successor to editorship of the journal, Dr. Austin Smith of Chicago, will not become the "spokesman" of the AMA. Dr. Fishbein's 37-year editorship, accumulating key posts in all publications of the AMA, won him the role of spokesman, at least in the public eye—and caused today's action.

Concerning date of retirement of Dr. Fishbein, Dr. Henderson stated that "serious dislocation would result from any sudden displacement. "The editor will be retired," he said, when such a move "will not result unfavorably for the ventures of the association."

Dr. Fishbein, as directed, declined to discuss the matter, simply saying "I'm not talking, no more interviews." This was the first time he was not prepared, or at least was bound not to give, a ready answer to questions of reporters.

Clem Whitaker, director of the AMA campaign against national health insurance, today outlined the scope of his activities in a special interview. He and his wife, Leone Baxter, who form the public relations firm of Whitaker-Baxter, receive $100,000 for their gross salary and travel expenses for the first year, he said.

During 1949, Whitaker said, the campaign costs are expected to total $900,000. The bulk of this will be for "literature," of which about half will publicize the dangers of compulsory health insurance and the rest will plug for voluntary health insurance plans, he explained. He estimated the campaign may last through 1951, "before we lick this damn thing," and "guessed" that anywhere from 1½ to two million dollars in $25-each assessments to AMA members has already been collected through the county medical societies.

In general scientific session of the AMA here today, W. Paul Holbrook, of Tucson, Ariz., warned physicians and asked them to warn their arthritic patients to continue present proved therapies instead of "sitting back and waiting for a possible quick cure of the future (compound E)."

Group Named To Seek Drive On Hoodlums

A special committee to demand cleanup of hoodlums, loiterers and undesirable persons on Washington streets was created last night by the Southwest Citizens Association.

A total of 176 persons attended the meeting at the Southwest Branch Library, 7th and H sts. sw.

Harry S. Wender of the District Recreation Department, a member of the group, spoke on the subject and William Solomon made the motion creating the committee. Solomon was named chairman.

The group was directed to go to Police Superintendent Robert S. Barrett, to the City Commissioners or to Congress, if necessary, to obtain action.

Charles H. Stevens was named chairman of a committee on public safety.

Takoma, D. C.

More than 100 members of the Citizens Association of Takoma, D. C., plus numerous small fry, turned out yesterday at the Takoma Playground, 5th and Van Buren sts. nw., for the association's annual picnic.

Following the picnic dinner, the members, holding their last gathering until fall, voiced opposition to changing the name of Eastern ave. to Ohio ave. The members said the avenue marks the Eastern boundary of the District and that another street should be selected as Ohio ave.

Mrs. Helen Smith, secretary of the association, said the group would sponsor a concert by the Wasnington Boys' Club Band at the Takoma Playground July 19.

Russians Return GI Stabbed by Red in Berlin

Berlin, June 6 (U.P.).—An American soldier, stabbed three times by a Russian civilian yesterday, was turned over by Soviet authorities to the Americans today, and placed in the U. S. Army hospital here.

His condition was described as not serious.

Release of the soldier, Pvt. Thomas F. Lee, New York City, came after the Russians earlier had told American liaison officers that he was being held for the murder of the Russian who stabbed him.

German eyewitnesses said the Russian was killed by a German crowd after the stabbing.

Police said that Lee and three other GIs became involved in a quarrel with Germans in the Soviet sector of Berlin after a German girl spat at the soldiers.

House Would Give Women MDs Full Status in Army

A bill authorizing the Army to commission women doctors on the same basis as men was passed yesterday by the House and sent to the Senate.

The women would be entitled to the full pay, allowances and other benefits of their rank.

The House also passed, and returned to the Senate for action on an amendment, a bill to abolish the legal requirement that 20 per cent of all Navy and Air Force pilots be enlisted men. The two services requested the bill, saying it is preventing the commissioning of former enlisted men who qualify as pilots.

House passage sent to the White House a bill to give reservists and National Guard men injured in training accidents the same benefits they would receive if on active duty for 30 days or longer.

Kieffer Speaks At Graduation

PRESIDENT J. S. KIEFFER
. . . last address at St. John's

Annapolis, Md., June 6 (AP).—President John S. Kieffer of St. John's College said today the world faces "the end of the era of competition."

Kieffer told St. John's graduates they would help build "a world of cooperation, not competition," in an address prepared for delivery at the school's 157th commencement.

"All signs point that way," Kieffer said in his last act as president of the "great books" college.

"The world federation movement, the gropings of the national Administration toward policies of national assistance in housing, health, education and civil rights, the countless cooperative endeavors of private groups, all point to the end of the era of competition."

Kieffer, who resigned as president in an administration controversy early this year, addressed 37 graduates and a commencement audience that gathered near Liberty Tree on the campus.

It was the ninth graduation since inauguration of the "great books" program, a four-year course developed around 100 or so of the greatest works of western civilization.

13 of 15 Doctors Are Discharged At Milledgeville

Milledgeville, Ga., June 6 (AP).—Thirteen of the 15 doctors at Georgia's 10,000-patient mental hospital tried to resign today. They were fired instead.

The doctors issued an ultimatum to Gov. Herman Talmadge last week. They demanded the resignations of State Welfare Director Jack Forrester and T. A. Dechman, superintendent of the hospital, second largest mental institution in the Nation.

Dr. T. G. Peacock, hospital medical superintendent, handed his own and 12 other resignations to Forrester today. Forrester flung the resignations back and gave Peacock 13 letters of dismissal.

The welfare director ordered the 13 doctors off the hospital grounds within 24 hours. After that, he said, they'll be treated as "trespassers."

Burglar Routed At Monastery

An early morning burglar was surprised in the act of looting the bedroom of a Franciscan brother during preparation for 6 a. m. mass yesterday at the Franciscan Monastery. Earlier, the intruder had taken $27.50 from living quarters in Pilgrimage Hall, 1340 Quincy st. ne., on the Monastery grounds.

Police said the thief was routed by Brother Girard, whom he awakened. He dropped two cartons of cigarettes as he fled

The money, police said, belonged to three young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cullen

Soviets Yielded At Yalta Parley, Stettinius Says

New York, June 6 (U.P.).—The Soviet Union made greater concessions than the United States or Great Britain at the Yalta conference, former Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, jr., said today.

Stettinius, writing in Look magazine, said President Roosevelt did not surrender anything important at Yalta and that difficulties we face today stem not from agreements reached there but from Russia's failure to honor these agreements.

Stettinius, who was present at Yalta, said that without the agreements reached at the 1945 conference Russia could have swept through North China. Then the German and Japanese wars would have been prolonged and the establishment of the United Nations would have been impossible, he said.

Falls Church Council Names School Board

Falls Church City Council last night named nine members to the city's new School Board.

The nine-member school board, which replaces the city's old three-member body, will have full jurisdiction over Falls Church schools, when financial details of the transfer of the school from Fairfax County can be completed. Fairfax Circuit Court last week gave operation of the schools to the city.

Named for three-year terms to the board were: Mrs. Mark Regan, of 114 N. Fairfax st., chairman of the old board; James S. Lay, jr., of 202 Forest dr., assistant executive secretary of the National Security Council; and Mrs. John A. Wallace, a housewife and president of the Southwest Civic Association, of 1302 Robinson pl.

Others Are Named

Named to two-year terms were: Dr. John Miles, member of the old board, of 210 S. Lee st.; R. Lyle Webster, of 301 Nowland st., assistant director of information, U. S. Department of Agriculture; and George T. Reeves, member of the old board, of 110 S. Oak st.

Named to one-year terms: Dr. Joseph W. Seay, real estate man of 809 Hillwood ave.; Rex Hinshaw, of 204 Forest dr., an Agriculture Department economist; and John A. Johnson, assistant general counsel of the Department of the Air Force, of 1107 Lincoln ave.

The council, meeting at Oak Street School, voted to ask the Fairfax Board of Supervisors to arrange a meeting time for both bodies to agree on an auditor for the county books covering school operations.

Public Hearing Held

Also at the meeting, the council held a public hearing, attended by about 70 persons, on possible amendments of the present city ordinance on dogs. The present ordinance, recently drafted, forbids dog owners to let their pets roam at large. Many dog lovers at the hearing called the measure "too strict." No action was taken.

Failure to Post $5000 Bond Jails Georgia Red Chief

Atlanta, June 6 (U.P.).—Homer B. Chase, Georgia chairman of the Communist Party, was placed under a $5000 peace bond today in an action unprecedented against a political leader and was jailed when he failed to post the amount.

Chase was locked in the Fulton County jail during the afternoon and his attorney said he would stay there until more legal steps are taken. He will ask the Superior Court to issue a writ of habeas corpus on grounds that the bond is excessive.

The Communist leader was ordered jailed or bonded by Judge Ralph McClelland in Civil Court, after a three-day hearing on a complaint brought by a young former associate of Chase, Mevans Wilder, 30. Wilder said he feared violence from Chase.

Chase, who denounced the youth as "a stupid turncoat," had admitted that party members were told not to talk to the FBI, but said it was because the Federal agency was "reactionary."

Chase was put in custody until the bond could be posted. It will be forfeited if any harm comes to Wilder that can be traced to Chase or anyone acting under his direction.

Gift of People

Rare Books From Burma To Library

A collection of rare books, purchased by the people of the far-off Union of Burma, will be presented to the Library of Congress today.

Funds for assembling the collection came from contributions ranging from two ruppees (about 60 cents) from a woman bazaar seller on the Shwedagon Pagoda stairway, Daw Nu, to the more sizable donations of the President of the Union of Burma, Sao Shwe Traik, and various organizations.

The collection will be presented to the Library of Congress at 2 p. m. today by U So Nyun, the Burmese Ambassador, and accepted by Librarian of Congress Luther S. Evans.

In appreciation, the library will present the Burmese with a collection of books dealing with American life and thought.

Hyattsville Reduces Tax Rate 2 Cents

The Hyattsville City Council last night reduced the city's tax rate 2 cents, at the same time giving $300 salary increases to police and firemen, the city engineer and the assistant city engineer.

The council adopted a budget of $196,930.33, providing for a 65-cent tax rate on the assessed valuation of $17,207,112. Last year's budget was $162,899.21; the tax rate, 67 cents.

Councilman W. H. Spicknall, chairman of the Council Finance Committee, proposed $120 increases to the city employes in the budget proposal submitted to the council. Upon motion of Fred Coxen, the amount for policemen and firemen was raised to $300. Councilman Thomas E. Arnold then moved the city engineer and his assistant be included in the $300 raise.

The council included in the budget $250 to pay the city's membership in the Municipal League of Maryland and provided for a new office, that of clerk to the treasurer, at a salary of $1800.

Estimated expenditures contained in the budget: Administration, $16,743; Police salaries, $18,200; Police expense, $3721; Park, $4600; roads, $59,543; garbage and trash collection, $28,383; building maintenance, $2500; street and traffic lights, $10,000; stationery and supplies, $800; office equipment, $265; assessments, $2401; telephone expense, $400; insurance, $3600.

The budget also provides $10,000 to be reserved for eventual purchase of a municipal building site and $60,373 to be used as a working balance.

UAW Offers $200,000 In Reuther Shootings

Detroit, Mich., June 6 (AP).—The CIO United Auto Workers today offered a reward of $200,000 for information leading to the solution of the shootings of the Reuther brothers.

The reward, one of the biggest ever offered in the United States, was authorized by the union's international executive board, meeting here today.

A $100,000 reward was posted following the April 20, 1948, shooting of International President Walter Reuther. It was increased because of the May 24, 1949, shooting of Victor Reuther, UAW educational director.

Supreme Court Gets Appeal of May, Garssons

Former Representative Andrew J. May and munitions makers Henry and Murray Garsson appealed to the Supreme Court yesterday from their convictions on charges of bribery and conspiracy to defraud the Government during the war.

May, the Kentucky Democrat who formerly headed the old House Military Affairs Committee, and the Garsson brothers were sentenced to serve eight months to two years in prison following their conviction July 25, 1947.

The three were convicted on a general conspiracy charge, and May was found guilty on additional counts of accepting more than $53,000 in bribes for services he gave the Garssons. The Garssons in turn were convicted also on charges of aiding and abetting May in accepting the money.

The U. S. Court of Appeals here upheld their convictions last January. All three are free on $2000 bond each.

May's petition to the Supreme Court declared that letting the Court of Appeals decision stand may result in his death.

The petition of his attorneys added:

"May's record during the trying years of the war is an enviable one. He even performed special missions for President Roosevelt. He gave unstintingly of his time to further our war effort. That he performed his public work zealously and uprightly is unquestioned. These matters are no small things. In making these statements we do not mean to infer that we are asking for pity.

"We are merely asking that this court take these facts into consideration and weigh them as we consider the final result a travesty of justice, particularly when the majority opinion (of the Court of Appeals) concedes that in reaffirming the judgment it was 'not free from doubt.' If such a dubious judgement is permitted to stand, the result will be the destruction of a fine public servant of stainless reputation. It may further result in his death."

This was an obvious reference to what might happen if May were sent to jail. The petition said May is "past 72 and is ill."

Patrick Henry Week Approved by House

The House yesterday passed a bill authorizing the President to proclaim this week Patrick Henry week.

Today is the 150th anniversary of the death of the famed Virginian, who in 1775 sparked the colonies' fight for freedom with his immortal speech, "Give me liberty or give me death."

The bill now goes to the Senate.

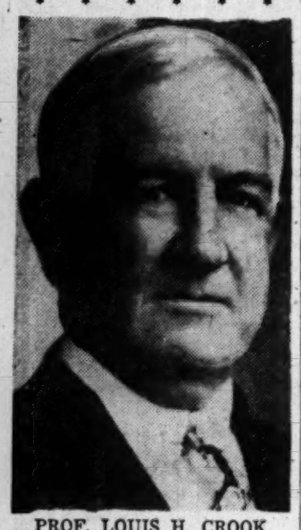
C. U. Teacher Wins Patent Rights Suit



PROF. LOUIS H. CROOK
. . . half a million ahead

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

The United States Court of Claims yesterday unanimously recognized the claim that a Washington area man's patent had been infringed upon.

The decision is likely to involve from $500,000 to five million dollars in royalties and interest to the inventor from the Federal Government.

The patent involved was that of Prof. Louis H. Crook of Persimmon Tree rd., Cabin John, head of Catholic University's Aeronautics School.

His invention is an ignition shielding system employed on internal combustion engines to prevent interference with reception of radio signals and messages on a radio receiver installed in close proximity to the engine.

The shielding system was used in aircraft, tanks, command cars, landing boats and other types of military equipment during the war, according to Prentice Ellis Edrington, Crook's attorney.

The decision was given by Judge Samuel E. Whitaker, with Chief Judge Marvin Jones and Judges Joseph Warren Madden, Evan Howell and Benjamin H. Littleton concurring.

Professor Crook, who obtained his patent in October, 1927, offered it to the United States Government shortly thereafter, but the Government refused to concede that the patent was valid.

Suit for compensation was brought in 1943 by Edrington in behalf of Professor Crook, who now owns a 25 per cent interest in his patent, and the heirs of the late Herman Jakobsson of Takoma Park, Md., who owned a 10 per cent interest, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Pack, who with their children, Ruth Pack Wolf and Horace I. Pack, had a 65 per cent interest, Edrington said.

Pack, an attorney and tax expert who had been employed to exploit Professor Crook's invention, died this past March 10, and his wife died 20 days later.

Jakobsson, patent attorney and designer of the Bofors gun cartridge, died in October, 1947, and his wife is also dead.

Expressing regret that they had not lived to see the outcome of the suit, Professor Crook said that the Jakobssons were survived by a daughter, Gunhild, who was a chronic invalid and that it gave him happiness to think that the court's decision might assure her a more financially secure future.

The suit covered infringement of the patent during the years 1937 to 1944. In 1943 a second suit was filed for infringement during 1944, at which time the patent expired.

The next step in the case will be accounting proceedings before Commissioner Hayner H. Gordon of the court at which evidence will be presented to determine: (1) the value of the invention per unit, and, (2) how many units were equipped with the invention.

Gordon in a report to the court will then suggest a royalty rate. In addition to whatever is eventually settled upon in the way of royalty, the final settlement will include interest.

How much the final settlement will amount to is a matter of speculation since none of the factors upon which the settlement will be based has been determined.

"Due to the considerable extent of use by the Government of the devices of the patent and the important role that the patented device played in the winning of the war," Edrington said, "the amount to which the plaintiffs are entitled should reach a sizable sum."

He hazarded a guess that the amount might be between two and a half and five million dollars.

The largest settlement that a court official could recall, however, was one for about a half million dollars several years ago.

Shield Covers Spark Plugs

Professor Crook's shielding device for use on internal combustion engines is a complete unit of metal covering the spark plugs, the high-tension cable and the magneto, so as to prevent their radio emanations from disturbing a radio in the immediate vicinity.

The theory is that the easiest path for the radio emanations, or currents, from the magneto to the spark plug, to follow is the inside surface of the shield, and therefore the emanations do not pass through the shield.

The elimination of such radio disturbances emanating from a flying machine in the air made it impossible to detect the approaching enemy. Radar was then used for detecting purposes.

"All war machines, tanks, automobiles and flying machines were equipped with such radio shielding, so that they could not be detected by the enemy," according to Professor Crook.

Doesn't Plan to Retire

"The really important use was the reception of delicate signals that could not be received without such a device," he said.

Professor Crook, a white-haired man with a Santa Claus complexion, was born at Havre de Grace, Md., 61 years ago, and has spent most of his life on the Catholic University campus. His father, Nicholas Crook, came there as general manager, "the university's first employe," when Professor Crook was a child. Professor Crook has taught there 42 years.

He and Mrs. Crook, nee Charlotte Saunders, have three daughters.

He does not plan to retire when financial settlement has been made on the present suits, he said, but intends "to continue teaching, working in his laboratories and leading a normal family life."

House Flies Members to Swiss Parley

NYHT News Service

Five members of the House are in Switzerland on a special mission as congressional observers at the World Assembly for Moral Rearmament, it was learned yesterday.

The Congressmen, who left Washington Friday aboard a military plane, are attending the conference of this private group at Caux-sur-Montreux, Switzerland, pursuant to a special resolution approved by the House last week.

The resolution was passed Wednesday without any member objecting. The observers were named Thursday by Speaker Sam Rayburn, and were on their way the next day. They are expected to return Wednesday.

At least one of the five Congressmen apparently was in the dark about the reason for the trip. Representative Earl Wilson (R., Ind.) was disclosed not to have known exactly where he was going, or why, until he reached the airport here to board the plane.

The resolution specifies that the trip is to cost the taxpayers not more than $5000. It was learned yesterday, however, that Congress will be billed $5200 just for the plane, which flew the observers to Geneva, and is waiting there to bring them home.

Other members of the group are Representatives Prince H. Preston, jr. (D., Ga.), acting as chairman; Daniel J. Flood (D., Pa.), George A. Dondero (R., Mich.) and Donald O'Toole (D., N. Y.).

Senate Votes Bill For $70,000,000 In New Buildings

The Senate yesterday approved and sent to the White House a bill authorizing a 70-million-dollar Federal building planning program.

It earmarks 40 million dollars for purchase of sites and planning of new buildings and 30 million dollars for improvements to existing structures.

The program is in addition to a backlog of projects approved previously but deferred because of the war.

In its final form the bill contains a House amendment that would provide for not less than one project in each congressional district. The only exceptions would be in metropolitan areas where one project may serve more than one congregational district.

RAFT HIGH AND DRY—Four junior explorers set out aboard a raft on Kingman Lake yesterday to see the sights. When the raft grounded on an island in middle of the lake the boys went ashore to explore the island. When they returned to the raft, they found it high and dry—the tide had gone out. The wayfarers threw pride to the winds and yelled for help. Harbor police hauled the mariners to the mainland and registered them in their special book. Larry Bulow, 9, of 1840 Burke st. se. (carrying shoes and socks) and Ronnie Daniels, 13, of 1834 C st. se., are shown walking toward police craft. The other two boys are Harry Dean, 13, 1716 6th st ne., and Marvin Dinkle, 13 of 25 15th st. ne. The boys brightened when Harbor Policeman John L. Sanford said: "O. K., you can go home to supper," but lagged when he added, "and your families will be notified."

Deputy Almost Catches Up With Laughlin

James J. Laughlin fled through the sub-basement of Baltimore Federal Court yesterday, eluding a Prince Georges County sheriff armed with a body warrant for his arrest.

County officials have been trying to serve the warrant forcing Laughlin's appearance before a gambling grand jury for more than a month. Until yesterday the Washington lawyer had not entered their jurisdiction.

But Deputy Sheriff Earl Sheriff got word that Laughlin was trying a case in Baltimore and sped 35 miles to the scene. While Laughlin was questioning a witness, he spied Sheriff in the hall, and guessed his motive. Immune from service in the Federal Building, Laughlin took a side elevator down two extra floors, raced through a Postoffice parking lot to the railroad station and entrained unnoticed back to Washington.

The deputy waited for Laughlin to return after the noon recess.

During lunch, however, Laughlin was reported absent after being "stricken with a severe case of neuralgia." His case was argued by his assistant during the afternoon.

In his Washington office last night, Laughlin said he had "made a remarkable recovery as soon as I crossed the county line" and feels that "within a day or two I will be all right."

Laughlin indicated he was hurt by the vigor with which he was pursued in Maryland. He said he has called a temporary halt in his $250,000 slander suit against States Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie while Bowie recovers from a heart attack. Laughlin said he has agreed not to try to bring court action on Bowie in Washington while Bowie is sick and intimated Bowie should also declare a truce.

Slot Machine Permit Sought In County Suit

Constitutionality of resident requirements in the Prince Georges slot machine law was questioned yesterday in a suit filed by C. W. Hendrix, president of a coin machine firm.

Hendrix, who lives at 10130 Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, is president of the General Amusement Co. of Baltimore.

The suit, which seeks to force county commissioners to issue a license to Hendrix for the placing of his machines in the county, asserted that the Hendrix firm has had coin machines in the county for the past 14 years.

The complaint further declared that a provision of the slot machine law, approved last week at a referendum, which requires licenses to be county residents for at least two years, is discriminatory and hence illegal, under the State Constitution, as a revenue-raising measure. Hendrix, as a nonresident, stands to be deprived of his county business, the suit said.

Named defendants in the suit, filed in behalf of Hendrix by Attorney Walter L. Green, are the county commissioners.

Yesterday, Judge Charles C. Marbury of Prince Georges County Circuit Court signed an order directing the commissioners to show cause why the request by Hendrix should not be complied with. He set June 16 as a hearing date.

District Guard Morale Hurt, Truman Told

Morale of District National Guardsmen is being impaired both by the delay in appointing a new Guard commander and "the apparent desire of unknown individuals" to have the job go to someone not connected with the local Guard, the 260th Coast artillery Association has charged in a letter to President Truman.

The letter calls on the President to appoint "at an early date" to the commander's post an officer "from the senior active members" of the Guard.

Wants Congress Probe

It also asks Congressional investigation "to determine the intent of Congress with respect to the status of the District of Columbia National Guard under the Militia Clause of the Constitution of the United States."

The letter follows a recent statement by Secretary of Defense Johnson that no action will be taken toward the appointment of a new commanding general of our guard until certain questions are settled concerning this post and that of adjutant general.

Question of Jobs

One such question involves the matter of whether the troop commander and adjutant general should hold full or part-time jobs.

Brig. Gen. Albert Cox, whose retirement as present guard commander has been delayed pending appointment of a successor, now is on part-time duty only while Adjutant General Peyton G. Neavitt is on full-time duty.

Class of 118 Initiated at Almas Temple

A class of 118 novices "crossed the burning sands" last night in initiation ceremonies of Almas Temple of the Shrine.

Nearly 2000 Shriners were in the audience at the Statler Hotel for the event, conducted by Renah F. Camalier, illustrious potentate.

A parade from Almas Temple building preceded the initiation with Potentate Camalier, his divan and ritualistic team, and the Temple oriental band and drum corps which recently won honors in a Middle Atlantic competition.

A number of Government officials, military, naval and air officers, members of other Shrine temples, were among guests at the initiation as well as the divan of the temple at Norfolk, Va., headed by Potentate David G. Seibert.

Man Held for Jury In Assault Case Against Girl, 9

A 24-year-old auto painter in Municipal Court yesterday, was held for jury trial on a charge of assaulting a 9-year-old girl by kissing and fondling her.

Bond was set at $500 by Judge Armond W. Scott for trial July 7 on the simple assault charge. The defendant was listed as Jack W. Keller of 602 K st. ne.

According to police, the girl said she was given a banana and ice cream to accompany Keller in his car to Bunker Hill Park. The little girl, according to police, said Keller drove her back to the vicinity of her home after she told him, "I am a Catholic. This is impure."

"VETERANS"—Members of the Young Progressives of America picketed the White House yesterday in an attempt to save the veterans unemployment compensation which ends July 25

Scores Picket To Keep 52-20, End Race Bars

Members of the Young Progressives of America who attempted to picket the White House yesterday carrying apples on trays and placards proclaiming "Vets Must Not Sell Apples Again," had their apple-carrying cut short by police officials who demanded to see their vendors' licenses.

The members were protesting segregation on District playgrounds and the end of "52-20" GI benefits.

In early picketing the group, numbering about 100 persons, carried a coffin reading "Here Lies the Forgotten Veteran."

Members said police stopped this demonstration on the grounds that it was "not dignified." The coffin was removed.

Faced with being put to rout with their apples, the picketers hastily removed them from the trays, eating them, stuffing them in pockets and giving them to passersby. Although the police indicated they needed vendors' license, the pickets said they weren't selling the apples.

A group of 20 began picketing the White House Sunday and continued throughout the night in what they called a "death watch for 52-20." The law providing veterans with $20 a week for 52 weeks as unemployment compensation will end July 25.

Pepper Asks Report On Denazification

Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) said yesterday "the American people have the right to know" how well the denazification program is working in postwar Germany.

On the anniversary of D-Day the Florida Democrat said in a floor speech that he would introduce a resolution today to investigate the United States program for ridding Germany of the "vermin" of Nazi influences.

He said he was not implying the program was not working, but thought the people should know.

Aneurin Bevan Makes Threat Of Civil War, Churchill Says

Westerham, Kent, England, June 6 (AP).—Winston Churchill today accused Laborite Health Minister Aneurin Bevan of threatening "civil war and a blood bath" if the Conservative Party is returned to power in Britain.

Addressing a mass meeting yesterday in Blackpool on the eve of the Labor Party's annual conference, the fiery Bevan said:

"If there is a Tory majority in the next election (Britain) will have said the road to progress by means of democratic government is closed . . . All the roads are closed except the roads to tyranny and oppression . . . except the roads to civil war."

Churchill, in a rare formal statement, called on "the Prime Minister and the Lord President of the Council to repudiate this assault upon democratic government."

Labor Party Expels Two For Pro-Soviet Views

Blackpool, England, June 6 (AP).—The British Labor Party decisively confirmed today the expulsion from the party of two members of Parliament who had expressed pro-Soviet views.

The pair are Konni Zilliacus, former League of Nations official, and Leslie J. Solley.

The Party's annual conference approved the expulsions, 4,721,000 to 714,000.

The vote also kept the two from stating their cases on the floor amid cries of "steamroller."

The conference assembled for its five-day session today to hammer out policy decisions.

Eisler Had Russian Orders, Senate Told

By the United Press

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) told the Senate yesterday his Immigration subcommittee has information that Capt. Jan Cwiklinski of the Polish liner Batory engineered Gerhart Eisler's escape "on orders from Moscow."

He made his statement shortly after the vessel sailed from New York harbor following a weekend of cloak-and-dagger activity in which Cwiklinski and other officers were questioned about Eisler's bail-jumping flight last month.

McCarran did not reveal the source of his information. He said Eisler's story that he boarded the Batory as a stowaway was a "prefabricated lie." Both Eisler and Cwiklinski were following direct orders from the Soviet government, he asserted.

The Senator reported "additional cases" in which he said the Batory and other ships of Communist-controlled nations have docked in New York "to disgorge a stream of agents and couriers, to receive information and to take on Communist agents on their return to their native lands."

McCarran's subcommittee has been holding hearings on proposed legislation to tighten immigration laws to prevent the infiltration of subversive agents.

Polish Ambassador Josef Winiewicz complained to the State Department against the methods used by United States immigration officials during their investigation of the Batory.

After a conference with Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk, he said crew members and passengers were subjected to "inconveniences." He said he also asked Rusk to give him a report on the results of the investigation.

In addition to Eisler, McCarran said the following had "slipped aboard" the Batory for Poland:

Boleslaw Gebert, "one of the most notorious names in Communist Party activities in the United States" who was a member of the "Red high command" in foreign language groups and now holds a high position in the Communist government of Poland.

Leo Krzycki, an "active member of the Communist Party in this country," who worked among Poles and other Slavic groups before his return to Poland.

McCarran said another vessel used by the Communists was the Yugoslav ship Radnik. He added that "one of the most notorious to use this avenue of return" was Stephen Loyen, whom he described as a "top organizer" of the Communist Party in Pittsburgh who now is in Yugoslavia.

Eisler Getaway Ship Is Allowed to Sail

New York, June 6 (AP).—Gerhart Eisler's getaway ship, the Polish liner Batory, sailed at noon today after her crew was cleared of any implication in his escape.

The luxury liner had been under close scrutiny since she docked Saturday.

C. H. Pennington, of the Federal Immigration Service, said crew members questioned at his office "have been cleared of any implication in the flight of Eisler from this country aboard the Batory.

With 857 passengers and a crew of 351, the Batory left for Southampton, the post where Eisler was taken ashore during his flight last month.

Witnesses at House Spy Hearing . . .

AWAIT CALL—The House Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday heard three witnesses about suspected Soviet agents at the Bell aircraft plant at Buffalo, N. Y. Shown waiting outside the committee room in the Old House Office Building are (left to right) Loren G. Haas of Buffalo and his wife (not a witness) and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Franey of Niagra Falls, N. Y.

the Americans was not too dangerous, was exciting, and "anyone would have done it."

But he added:

"Frankly, with the outcome we've had in this case, I wouldn't have done it again."

He said he had acted in good faith and been told by the FBI an airtight case had been developed. But he said when he asked when it all would be over, "you have to be passed off with such answers as, well, Mr. Byrnes of the State Department says we can't touch him."

"Maybe I shouldn't have said that," the witness remarked.

"Who told you that?" Representative Walter (D., Pa.) quickly inquired.

"Members of the FBI."

Earlier, Franey had said that an FBI agent told him the State Department wanted to "appease" Schevchenko. He said this was in line with State Department appeasement of Russia at the time. Schevchenko was Russian liaison man with the Bell Company, from which the Soviets were buying fighter planes.

The witness said that on March 18, 1945, the Soviet agent "approached me" to obtain highly secret turbo-jet engine data. On previous advice of the FBI, he agreed to do this and on many occasions until late November, 1945, turned over microfilms screened by the FBI and the Bureau of Aeronautics.

The Franeys live in Niagara Falls, N. Y. Mrs. Franey, who as librarian for the Bell Aircraft Co. at Buffalo received secret reports on aviation developments, said the Russian made friends with her. He finally arranged for her to get copies of reports and her husband to photograph them and bring them to New York.

All the time the Franeys were working with the FBI.

Haas also was employed by Bell Aircraft from late 1942 or early 1943 until March, 1943. Then he went to Westinghouse Electric in Philadelphia. Franey was and is employed by the Hooker Electro Chemical Co.

Franey said Schevchenko instructed them to deliver rolls of 35-millimeter film to him in New York. The Russian supplied a camera and the film, Franey explained, and Franey photographed the documents at his home.

The Russian arranged meetings with Franey by sending picture postcards of the Empire State Building, Franey said. Each card meant Franey was to be in New York the next weekend.

Two deliveries were postponed at the request of the FBI, Franey told the committee. He said he protested the first time because the entire operation was "pretty nerve wracking."

Franey said he objected even more strongly at the second delay, but was told the FBI had instructions from the State Department to "hold up" on the surveillance of Schevchenko. Franey said an FBI agent told him the Department wanted to "appease him," referring to the Soviet agent.

an emergency clearance in August, 1947, and suspended March, 1948, when the FBI handed the commission a 50-page report containing "serious derogatory information."

The employe was cleared by the commission board on June 18, 1948, the security officer was notified of the clearance, and the employe notified all on the same day.

Discussion of "Case A" plunged the hearing into an uproar, with everyone trying to talk at once. Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.) seconded Lilienthal's demand for a public hearing for the official.

Representative Sterling Cole (R., N. Y.) said Lilienthal appeared to be accusing the committee of being unfair.

Representative Charles H. Elston (R., Ohio) said that Hickenlooper had not in any way identified the individual of "Case A" and he pointed out that at a previous hearing it was AEC General Manager Carroll Wilson who narrowed down to a near-identification a mention of a guard at the Argonne laboratory at the University of Chicago.

In other developments:

1. Lilienthal acknowledged that some AEC employes with doubtful records are kept on the payroll because, he said, it might be risky to fire them.

He said some of them have learned top atomic secrets and if they were discharged, the AEC might lose track of them. Instead, they are kept on "with certain precautions," he said.

2. Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said he thinks some "peculiar" provisions are contained in security regulations at the Argonne laboratory, where a bottle of uranium-235 was discovered missing last February 8.

The AEC has reported that all but one eighth of the original missing ounce of U-235 has been recovered from waste materials and the container itself dug up from a buried "hot" trash box.

3. Senator William Knowland (R., Calif.) said guards in at least one section of the Argonne plant have been instructed to permit 154 persons "and guests" unlimited access to "all areas."

4. McMahon ordered Lilienthal to produce the AEC's security officer at the Argonne plant as a witness.

5. AEC General Manager Carroll Wilson acknowledged that a locksmith in security headquarters at the Argonne laboratory has been cited for two security infractions—in May, 1947, and January, 1948—for failing to keep a key cabinet locked. Wilson said, however, the keys would not give access to any secret data.

He said the cabinet contains keys to desks, cabinets and doors.

Senator Vandenberg closely questioned Wilson about the list of 154 persons who have entry to certain areas of the Argonne plant after working hours and on Sundays and holidays.

The Michigan Senator said the privileged 154 were required to register, but guards were instructed not to register any guests who came with them.

"What is this business about the guests?" Vandenberg demanded.

"Why should they have a freedom that you deny even to your employes? Why should you carefully notify your guards not to take any notice of who is with them?

"It is a very curious arrangement."

Wilson explained that the guards were stationed to prevent the theft of Government property. He said persons who were allowed in the area after hours were "responsible" for what their guests did.

"Is any guard posted between these areas and the areas where secret work is done Knowland asked.

"I'm sure there is," Wilson replied.

Chairman McMahon instructed Wilson to get on the telephone and get the facts for the committee.

Wilson denied that guards at Argonne have been ordered not to report violations of security rules, and he said the "green stickers" issued for more than 500 automobiles do not permit them to enter "controlled areas" but only into Argonne parking zones.

Written Arguments Hold Up Judith Coplon Trial for Day

The Judith Coplon espionage trial was recessed yesterday to give attorneys an opportunity to prepare written arguments on a legal snarl.

The question is whether the Government must produce the full text of 22 secret FBI reports, as demanded by the defense. It could have crucial importance in this and future cases.

The Government contends it should be required to produce only partial texts to show that papers found in Miss Coplon's pocketbook when she was arrested with Valentin A. Gubitchev came from official documents.

Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves of Kansas City, Mo., presiding at the trial, said attorneys for both sides asked the one-day postponement. The trial resumes at 10 a. m. today.

Federal prosecutors have hinted at the possibility the case might be dropped if they are ordered to produce the full reports. They deal with internal security matters and suspected espionage agents in the United States.

Archibald Palmer, Miss Coplon's attorney, is demanding full texts of the reports, rather than the extracts the prosecutors proposed to offer.

Chambers Admits Telling More Lies

did not tell the House Committee of his later charge that he passed documents from Hiss to a Col. Boris Bykov, described as a Russian agent, Stryker asked:

"Did you intend to suppress something from the committee?"

"Yes, I did," replied Chambers blandly.

Presiding Judge Samuel H. Kaufman leaned over the bench to interpose to Chambers:

"You intended to . . . ?"

"Yes," replied Chambers, "I intended to suppress the facts of espionage."

Reading from the House hearing record, Stryker gave the following exchange between Chambers and Representative Nixon (R., Calif.):

"Nixon: 'Do you have any other evidence, any factual evidence to bear on this claim that Mr. Hiss was a member of the Communist Party?'

"Chambers: 'Nothing beyond the fact that he submitted himself for the two or three years I knew him as a dedicated and disciplined Communist.' "

Today, Stryker asked:

"Was that false?"

A. "Yes."

In his first testimony before the House, Chambers declared he left the Communist Party in 1937. He said today that this was a mistake and that he left the party in April, 1938, as he has previously testified in the Federal Court perjury trial.

At another point in the House testimony, Chambers said that when he went to Hiss in December, 1938, to "induce", Hiss to leave the Communist Party with him, that Hiss lived at Dent pl., Georgetown.

"I am quite well aware that the record says Dent pl.," Chambers said today, "but it is wrong."

"Is it your statement, Mr. Chambers, that the record is wrong?" asked Judge Kaufman.

"It is," replied Chambers who has previously testified that the exchange of the papers involved took place at Hiss' home at 3415 Volta pl., instead of Dent pl. where Hiss once lived.

"How far down off Wisconsin ave. was the house where Mr. Hiss lived on Volta pl.?" asked Stryker.

A. "About a block."

Q. "You went around these since?"

A. "Yes."

Q. "To check up?"

A. "No."

(Stryker later asked if the house is not three blocks from Wisconsin ave., and Chambers answered that was "not my recollection." The house is about 2½ blocks from Wisconsin ave.)

When Chambers says he broke with the Communist Party, he declares he took some of the remaining documents he got from Hiss and gave them to a nephew in New York for safe keeping.

Last November 14, he says, he went to the home of the nephew, Nat Levine, and obtained the papers, including typed and handwritten statements and microfilm, hidden away 10 years earlier.

Chambers says he hid the microfilm in the mysterious pumpkin which he had hollowed out, then replaced the pumpkin in the patch on his farm.

When two strips of microfilm were produced as evidence in the Baltimore libel suit, according to the depositions in that suit, Chambers said he had "no independent recollection" as to who gave them to him or the circumstances. In the present trial, Chambers said Hiss gave them to him.

On the basis of this, Stryker today asked to have the microfilm removed from evidence, but Judge Kaufman said this was a "question of credibility" for the jury to decide.

During his testimony today, Chambers repeated the name of "Julian Wadleigh" as a second person in the State Department who served as a "collaborator" with him in obtaining department papers. There was no extensive testimony regarding this point.

Henry Julian Wadleigh, former economist in the department's Trade Agreements Division, was first accused by Chambers last year when Chambers testified before the House committee.

Wadleigh, employed by the department from 1936 to 1943, refused to answer any of the committee's questions about the Hiss-Chambers case or accusations against himself, on ground that any answer might incriminate him.

He was later among those summoned before the same grand jury that indicted Alger Hiss.

In Washington today, Wadleigh refused any comment on the renewed charge against him.

In cross-examining Chambers, Stryker brought out that some time before 1940, Chambers deliberately abandoned a Remington portable typewriter in his possession.

The prosecution declares that 64 of the 65 documents allegedly obtained from Hiss by Chambers were typed on a standard Woodstock typewriter. This typewriter, which the Hisses allegedly turned over to a second-hand dealer and which the FBI unsuccessfully sought in an intensive search, has been found by the defense, Stryker disclosed dramatically on the first day of the trial.

Asked how he disposed of his typewriter, Chambers said he believes he left it on a streetcar.

Q. "You wanted to get rid of it?"

A. "Yes."

Q. "You had some motive in wanting to get rid of it?" Stryker pressed.

A. "Yes, that's quite correct," replied Chambers.

Q. "We have your word that it was a Remington?"

A. "Yes, I believe it was."

The subject was abruptly dropped at that point.

And the Rolling Pin

Stryker, who verbally leaped about through the chronology of Chambers' activities, then asked if he thought the rolling pin which Chambers says Hiss gave him for his daughter—at what is alleged to be the last Hiss-Chambers meeting—had any special significance.

Q. "Didn't that rolling pin have a curious connotation in your mind?"

A. "Please don't try to read my mind."

Under questioning, Chambers said he did not tell either his wife or daughter about this.

Stryker began to read Chambers' description of this incident from the Baltimore deposition record.

Chief Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy, who had little to say during the day, objected with, "Can Mr. Stryker read those lines 'straight,' Your Honor?"

Admonished by the judge, Stryker countered, "I'm not trying to be dramatic . . . All right, I will read them in a plain, boring voice."

Chambers, he noted, had said he took the rolling pin and either "threw it away or burned it."

'Nothing Symbolic'

Asked if he did not regard the gift as a kindness, Chambers said rather dourly:

"It seemed to me that was not the kind of gift made in kindness, but the kind of gift you would give to a child of a renegade * * *"

Asked if he saw nothing "symbolic" about destroying the pin, Chambers replied, "Nothing symbolic . . . a perfectly clear and simple reaction."

Chambers, in his statement to the House committee, said that when he went to the Hiss home for their last meeting, he had feared an "ambush" because he had decided to renounce his Communist underground work. Asked what he meant by this, Chambers said he meant either being "killed or assassinated."

Q. "In other words, Mr. Alger Hiss or his wife would kill you or assassinate you?"

A. "No, either Mr. Hiss or his comrades."

Later Stryker asked:

"Didn't you also testify before the House committee that Mr. Hiss was a man of great sympathy and gentleness?"

A. "He was." (with accent on was.)

After he abandoned the Communists, Chambers has declared, he "went into hiding" for a year, frequently sleeping with a shotgun under his pillow.

In attempting to break down his testimony that he remained in the Communist Party until April, 1938, Stryker submitted a letter written by Mrs. Chambers in October, 1937, to a nursery school, the Park School, in Baltimore.

At that time their daughter, Ellen, was 4 years old and Stryker demanded if he did not regard it inconsistent to attempt to enter the daughter in a "class school . . . a school for girls and boys of well-to-do parents," while he was a Communist.

Chambers said he did not. The letter, which Chambers said he was not aware of at the time, noted that the family had little income and requested a "scholarship" for the girl.

The same year, Stryker brought out, the Chambers were listed in the Baltimore telephone book and Mrs. Chambers obtained a driver's license.

In 1938, while he said he was in hiding from Communist retaliation, Chambers conceded that he "went to New York occasionally" and to Washington, and also purchased a house on June 11, 1938 under his own name.

Digressing to probe into Chambers' family background, as he has done repeatedly during the trial, Stryker asked whether he wrote a poem called "Tandara Dei," which appeared in July, 1926, in a magazine called Two Worlds.

Chambers said he had. He denied that the publication was a "pornographic magazine," but admitted it was "faintly erotic."

Read by the clerk of the court, the poem began:

"All I can have at all is your body . . . my strained hands rise to gather in the molds of the breasts . . . "

Chambers sat back with a smile of some embarrassment as the clerk concluded the poem.

Stryker later questioned the circumstances surrounding the suicide of Chambers' brother, Dick, killed by illuminating gas in 1926 at the age of 22. Last week, Chambers testified his brother asked him to join in the suicide pact, and Chambers disclosed today that he had prevented his brother from taking his life on earlier occasions.

Reading from the Baltimore deposition, Stryker quoted Chambers as saying at that time that Dick had given as his reason for urging a suicide pact the statement that "we are gentle people and incapable of coping with the world."

Chambers admitted his brother's death had a pronounced effect on him, and for months afterward he said, "I felt as if I had no will to do anything."

Chambers himself had a "breakdown" in 1942 while working for Time Magazine, and said it was due to overwork. He was absent from work for seven months, he said, and his physician "told me if I went back to Time he gave me five years to live."

He was treated for a heart attack, he said, and until 1946 had "slight pains around the heart."

Pickets Fail To Aid Red

New York, June 6 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today refused to free one of three Communist trial defendants, whose jailing set off a roaring demonstration today by 500 pickets outside Federal Judge Harold R. Medina's court room.

The pickets changed and cheered for four hours, demanding an end to the trial of 11 of the Nation's top Communists.

The mass picketing was sponsored by the Civil Rights Congress in protest against the imprisonment of defendants John Gates, Henry Winston and Gus Hall.

Gates, editor of the Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker, was sentenced to 30 days for contempt last Friday when he refused to answer questions about fellow Communists. Winston and Hall were remanded to jail for the duration of the trial after they objected to the sentencing of Gates.

The 11 Communist leaders are on trial on charges of conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States Government.

ing action on the Administration's Taft-Hartley repealer.

Connally said the committee might consider moving to displace the labor bill "if they keep chewing on it too long."

The treaty ties these nations together in a common defense pact: The United States, Great Britain, Belgium, Canada, France, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, Italy, Portugal and Iceland.

Arms Aid to Follow

A $1,450,000,000 implementing program, providing arms for signatory nations, is scheduled to follow it. The State Department is pressing also for action on the arms program this session but leaders have never set a definite timetable.

"We don't go into the military commitment or the details of implementation very much in the report," said Connally, "That's not before us."

Assistant Secretary of State Ernest A. Gross appeared with Connally at a press conference following the committee session. Gross expressed the "gratitude" of the State Department. Then he read Acheson's cable, addressed to "Dear Tom" and signed "Dean."

A prepared statement by Connally said the committee's unanimous vote "will give assurance and encouragement to the nations signatory to the pact and will go far toward strengthening the security of these nations.

"It will promote the cause of peace and will contribute toward stability and concord in the North Atlantic area and among peace-loving peoples everywhere. It will assist the United Nations in achieving the high purpose and principles of the Charter."

Soviet Purge Seen; Top Men Disappear

New York, June 6 (AP).—A political purge is taking place in Russia, the New York Times said today.

Times Correspondent C. L. Sulzberger, in Paris, wrote that evidence can be assembled showing at least 300,000 members have been expelled from the Communist Party, and that membership in the Komsomol — Communist youth league—has fallen.

He listed several important party leaders as having disappeared quietly. These included:

N. A. Voznesensky, former Politburo member; A. A. Kuznetzov, Central Committee secretary; P. S. Popkov, member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet; Yuri A. Zhdanov, son of the late Politburo chief; I. T. Golyakov, former chief of the Soviet Supreme Court.

Sulzberger said it appeared those now suffering were members of the so-called "Zhdanov faction," persons who were close to or followed the line of Andrei Zhdanov, who died August 31, 1948, at 52.

The cause of his death was listed officially as heart failure, but there were rumors he had been "liquidated."

He had been Stalin's favorite, and regarded as the generalissimo's most likely successor.

However, the Times said, he had fallen from favor before his death, and been replaced by his reputed rival, Georgi M. Malenkov.

Suizberger's dispatch said persons relegated to obscurity under Zhdanov are being "rehabilitated," and cited G. F. Alexandrov, one of the party's propaganda chiefs, as an example.

This purge can in no sense be compared to that series of upheavals which shook the entire structure of the U. S. S. R. during the 1930's, the Times said.

Nevertheless, the newspaper continued, there have been widespread expulsions from the Communist Party for ideological reasons. It said party membership had fallen from 6,300,000 in September, 1947, to 6,100,000 last January.

Allowing for the admission of recruits, the article said, it is probable that more than 300,000 expulsions have occurred.

The Times said several other top Communists have been ousted, including a former Prime Minister of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic.

Membership in the Komsomol fell from 10,500,000 in 1941 to 9,283,289 in March of this year, the Times said.

In all sections of the party, efforts are being made to enforce a rigid orthodoxy, the story declared.

It said the current purge is not related to other recent Soviet personnel shifts, such as the relief of V. M. Molotov and A. I. Mikoyan from the cabinet.

Lie Proposes 'TVA' Projects

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 6 (U.P.) Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, suggested tonight that the U. N. promote projects like the Tennesse Valley authority to harnesss the waters of the Jordan, the Tigris, the Euphrates and the Nile.

Lie, speaking at the University of Chattanooga, recommended that such projects be given high priority in the 85 million dollar program of technical assistance to the world's underdeveloped areas now under consideration by the U. N. to implement President Truman's "bold, new program' for economic development of backward territories.

He said the Near East was "one area in which the same kind of speed, boldness and imaginative planning that characterized the TVA is necessary right now."

India, Pakistan Still at Odds on Kashmir, UN Says

Lake Success, N. Y., June 6 (U.P.) The United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan announced today that those governments have refused to give unreserved approval to terms for a truce in Kashmir advanced by the commission last April 28.

The U. N. announcement said there was a gap which had "so far not appreciably narrowed" between India's and Pakistan's viewpoint on the disposition and withdrawal of their troops from the state of Jammu and Kashmir to pave the way for the holding of a plebiscite to decide whether the Kashmir should join India or Pakistan.

Hostilities between the two major states of the Indian subcontinent were halted by a U. N. cease-fire agreement last January 1. But after four months discussion, no agreement has been reached.

Church Hits Reds' Tactics In Germany

Berlin, June 6 (AP).—The German Protestant leadership in a pastoral letter that penetrated the Soviet zone today accused the Communist regime there of using Hitler tactics.

It said the Soviet-created "people's police" had revived "the gestapo of unblessed memory."

The Whitsuntide letter from Bishop Otto Dibelius, chairman of the German Protestant Council of Churches, went out to hundreds of pastors in Berlin and in Russian-occupied Brandenburg.

In addition to the Gestapo charge, the bishop remarked on the "disappearance of tens of thousands of men and women and very, very young" in eastern Germany since 1945 and "inner untruthfulness and hostility to the Christian gospel."

Such untruthfulness, his letter said, is proved by voting methods in the recent People's Congress balloting.

"Factory workers are ordered to work on Sundays and the youth is being assembled to meet on Sundays. The divine services are made practically impossible by these methods. The Church has to raise its warning voice," the bishop said.

Russians Told: Move Trains Or No Trade

Berlin, June 6 (U.P.)—The United States, Britain and France today told Russia she is violating the New York agreement to lift the blockade by refusing either to settle the railway strike or to bring strike-stalled trains into Berlin.

The Western Powers also told Russia there can be no trade pact between Eastern and Western Germany until rail traffic has been restored. This decision is expected to hit Russia where it hurts.

Western officials believe the Soviet Union called off the blockade and requested the Foreign Ministers Conference in Paris for one purpose: To resume East-West trade and thus rescue foundering German economy.

The Russians were told no-trains, no-trade at today's meeting of the Four Power's economic and transport experts they are trying to negotiate a new trade treaty.

Lawrence Wilkinson, economic adviser to the United States Military Government, said Soviet refusal to "make any effort" to bring strike-bound trains into Berlin "clearly constitutes a failure to lift the restrictions on transport between Berlin and the Western zones."

Between 40 and 50 freight trains are stalled in the Soviet occupation zone between Berlin and Western Germany.

Wilkinson said the trains could be brought into Berlin and unloaded in the Soviet sector, where there is no strike.

Big 4 Decide On Open Talks paper he had laid before the council on Saturday. It was veto all the way.

On this basis it was felt there was little to be gained by continuing the secret talks that began Friday. The same subject will come up Tuesday with all four governments agreed that until an understanding is reached on Allied controls there can be no new elections for one municipal government to replace the two that now exist in Berlin.

The original control machinery suggested by the American, British and French delegations provided for application of the veto in limited fields, for majority rule in many fields and for freedom of action to the Germans in all others. The compromise covered four subjects:

1. Those in which the four powers must agree before action by a German municipal council can be approved. (The veto.)

2. Those in which the four powers must agree before action by a German municipal council can be disapproved. (This gives more latitude to the Germans.)

3. Those in which each allied commander will have full powers in his sector.

4. Those to be left entirely to the Germans.

In this manner the Western Powers abandoned their desire for majority voting in an Allied Kommandatura, and, by so doing, they felt they were taking a step toward the Russian position. If Vishinsky thought so too, he gave no sign of it today. He will make his full reply Tuesday.

At the conclusion of today's meeting, top members of the American delegation went to the American Embassy for a policy conference. They were joined there by Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador to Britain.

Molotov's Job To Woo China, Paris Hears

Paris, June 6 (AP).—Russia's V. M. Molotov was reported today to have been given the task of wooing the Chinese Communists into alignment with Soviet communism.

An Eastern European diplomat said the Soviet former Foreign Minister and one-time Premier has the job of shaping and implementing a big1brother attitude toward the Chinese Red regime. Western diplomatic sources said they had heard of such an arrangement though they could not confirm the report.

The report, if confirmed, would dispel some of the mystery arising over Molotov's position in Politburo politics since he was suddenly replaced by Andrei Y. Vishinsky as Foreign Minister March 4. Molotov kept the title of Senior Deputy Premier under Joseph Stalin.

Molotov's job, the Eastern diplomat reported, would take in all the Far East but he would concentrate first on an attempt to exploit the Chinese Communist triumphs by warming up a thus-far cool and wary relationship.

There was some speculation that Russia is planning a big-time aid program for the Chinese Communists once they set up a new all-China regime; also that Russia hopes to torpedo any Western bid to promote a form of Chinese "Titcism."

Shanghai Reds Ease Foreign Trade Rules

Shanghai, June 6 (U.P.)—The Chinese Communists, seeking to revive Shanghai's commerce, today announced a new set of foreign trade regulations which businessmen said appeared more liberal than previous rules here.

Foreign shipping revived slowly and businessmen awaited announcement of official exchange rates for foreign currencies.

The military government here declared null and void all business licenses granted by the Nationalist government. Importers and exporters must obtain new licenses from a new foreign trade control bureau.

The black market rate for U. S. dollars and gold and silver tumbled 20 percent today following reports the Communist authorities planned stern measures against speculators.

40,000 Czechs Ask U. S. Help

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 6 (U.P.)—The United States Embassy in Prague said today it had received an estimated 40,000 form letters from anti-Communist Czechs petitioning for United Nations sponsorship of immediate "secret and free elections" in Czechoslovakia.

Embassy officials said the letters were identical in content, but individually written and signed.

LARGEST FINANCIAL INSTITUTION IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL

"Until the 'fifties, Washington depended for water upon springs and wells . . .

nature having richly endowed the federal area with underground springs, 'which rise up whenever a well is dug.' The Capitol was supplied with an abundance of water from springs two miles north of Capitol Hill and from others in Franklin Park. However . . . these sources became inadequate, and a public works sponsored by the United States Government was inaugurated at Great Falls, in 1853 by President Pierce. Ten years later the water from the river flowed through pipes protected in a brick conduit, 14 miles long . . ."

Forum Hears Expose Of Red Party Tactics

An audience of more than 400 heard an expose of Communist tactics last night at the last of a series of "town hall" meetings held in Gonzaga High School auditorium.

The meetings, sponsored by the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, were started last November to combat the spread of Communist ideology.

Karl Baarslag of the Americanism Committee, American Legion, who said he had made a study of Communist methods for 30 years, told of a maneuver known as "amalgam." In this, he said the Communist "amalgamate" or associate an enemy with some widely hated aim, person or object while "amalgamating" themselves with popular aspirations such as peace, labor and social legislation.

At meetings, the speaker said, Communists often form themselves in diamond shaped formations, thus they are quickly able to seal off a heckler.

Another trick, he explained is known as "wearing down phonies" in which the Communists keep union meetings operating late and when most of the members tire and leave, they railroad through resolutions.

Jack Beall, American Broadcasting Company commentator, warned that in the event of war with the Soviet, "Communist unions" will attempt to seize factories.

Another speaker, Shane McCarthy, chairman of the current affairs committee, Fourth Degree K. of C., urged that young people be prepared for "the militant type of life" as a bar to communism.

He also pleaded for a dynamic democracy, for eternal vigilance and for prayer as other means of waging the fight.

The Most Rev. Patrick O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, spoke briefly and urged that the meetings to be resumed next fall and continued for a year.

D-Day Marked

Frenchmen Remember Liberation

St. Mere-Eglise, France, June 6 (AP).—St. Mere-Eglise today remembered its liberation by American Airborne troops on D-Day five years ago.

The village held a commemorative parade with several elaborate floats. As the head of the parade marched 10 village boys in the forest green coverall outfit of American paratroopers. Their faces were blackened in the paratroop manner. The floats depicted scenes from fairy tales.

St. Mere-Eglise claims to be the first French town liberated in the Allied invasion. Paratroopers from the American 82d Airborne Division dropped there shortly before midnight of D-Day and soon cleared the village.

The same claim is made by Ranville, about 50 miles to the east where paratroopers of the British Sixth Airborne Division dropped.

Visitors came to Utah Beach—one of the two beaches where Americans waded in from the sea on D-Day—in a steady trickle today, although no ceremonies were scheduled. Wreaths had been deposited last night.

By comparison, Omaha Beach—the other American landing spot—was deserted today. There were only a few visitors. Throughout the invasion areas there were observances with French, British and American flags much in evidence.

ters and contractors on Wednesday, the first since the Carpenters Union struck last Wednesday.

Holden said he had made similar arrangements for peace talks on Thursday between the AFL Laborers Union, out since last Thursday, and the building tractors. No negotiations have been held in the building trades strike which has tied up 100 million dollars of local construction.

Francis J. Kelly, attorney for the Master Builders Association in negotiations with the laborers, said about 100 employers of 3000 building laborers agreed yesterday to stand firm against laborers' demands of 40 cents an hour more to $1.75. The employers met at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

B. B. Blackburn, secretary-treasurer of the Carpenters Council, declared the carpenters have never refused to meet the contractors, but added there would be "not much sense in getting together if the bosses won't change their attitude."

Negotiations Wait In Pie-Driver Strike

No negotiations were held yesterday in the dispute between about 100 salsmen-drivers and four major pie companies here, spokesmen said. The drivers struck last Friday.

Federal Conciliator Henry G. Baker, jr., is assigned to mediate both this strike and the deadlock between the dairies and their employes. He said he did not expect to be able to work on the pie driver situation while dairy discussions continue.

See The Difference In These Two Rib Roasts

(It may help you save an important part of your meat bill)

Roasts Like These Were Bought In This Area At The Same Price Per Pound In Recent Test-Purchase Survey

INCLUDES END SECTION OF SHORT RIBS
(these short ribs, of course, contain some meat — but it's not rib roast meat!)

INCLUDES HEAVY CHINE BONE
(for which the customer is asked to pay at the regular rib roast price per pound . . . even though chine bone may be removed AFTER weighing)

RIB ROAST UNTRIMMED BEFORE WEIGHING
. . . as some markets here weigh it for pricing

WOMEN INVESTIGATORS WERE AMAZED at the old-fashioned way many markets here sell meat! For example: Shoppers sent out by an independent research organization bought rib roasts at markets all over this area. They discovered that 96% of these markets (other than Safeway) DID NOT TRIM THEIR ROASTS BEFORE WEIGHING. Some trimmed AFTER weighing—but this after-weighing trim didn't save the customers from paying for the chine bone and short ribs. Have YOU been buying meat this expensive way? If you can't get your market to trim BEFORE weighing, come to Safeway and get money-savings that the modern meat-trimming method offers!

END SECTION OF SHORT RIBS REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING
(Safeway sells these separately, at a lower cost per pound)

Safeway believes all markets should retail meat this common-sense way—with excess bone, fat and waste-parts trimmed off before the meat is weighed. More and more good markets are doing it. Why don't you ask your market man to trim your next rib roast before he weighs it?

SAFEWAY TRIMMED-BEFORE-WEIGHING RIB ROAST
. . . trimmed so you pay for only the tender "heart" portion that cooks and carves better

MONEY-SAVINGS OF 30¢ to $1.32 per typical 6-pound rib roast are secured by many housewives who purchase trimmed-before-weighing meats, the test survey reveals! In a few weeks of meat-buying such savings can go a long way to cut down the high cost of living for your family. You are entitled to GET THESE SAVINGS . . . because every market should trim meats BEFORE WEIGHING. No longer do you need to buy rib roasts, for example, on somebody else's say-so. The roast photos printed here show you what kind of trimming to look for. Take these photos to your market. Use them to check the next rib roast you purchase BEFORE it is weighed!

HEAVY CHINE BONE REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING
(and replaced with a layer of fat, light in weight, to seal in meat juices)

THE SAFEWAY trimmed-before-weighing rib roast has in it the kind of meat people want in rib roasts. NOT the short ribs—which should be cut off and sold at proper short rib prices. NOT the heavy chine bone—which should be cut off and thrown away.

Most every good cook and good market man knows rib roasts should be trimmed as Safeway does it . . . before weighing!

The savings cited here on rib roast are typical of the savings you make on every cut and kind of meat that's trimmed as Safeway does it—before weighing. You save on chops and steaks, on leg of lamb and other cuts—when each cut is trimmed before weighing according to its special requirements. Wherever you buy, insist on pocketing for yourself the money-savings this better trimming method brings you.

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. All Safeway meats are properly aged—brought to you at peak perfection.

Come try trimmed-before-weighing meats at Safeway. Note our special Two-Rib-Roast Offer printed at right.

SAFEWAY'S OFFER: We will give you 2 rib roasts at no cost if ever you get from us a rib roast NOT trimmed before weighing! Just show the meat to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. We won't quibble or argue. We want you to have extra rib roasts without cost if we fail to trim as we say!

Lewis, UMW Lose Appeals on Fines

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers must pay the $1,420,000 in contempt fines levied against them last year, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

UMW attorneys said it was too early to forecast whether they would carry the case to the Supreme Court. They said they wanted more time to study the Appellate Court's opinion which upheld a lower court decision.

The fines ($1,400,000 against the union and $20,000 against Lewis) were assessed by Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough in District Court in April, 1948, after he found the defendants guilty of criminal contempt of court in flouting a restraining order by continuing a work stoppage.

The men had begun leaving the pits on March 13 in a dispute over handling of a pension fund.

On April 3, District Court issued a restraining order forbidding the union and its officials from "continuing the strike now in existence," after President Truman had invoked the "national emergency" provision of the Taft-Hartley law.

But Lewis failed to act and the miners stayed out until April 12 when the mine chief signaled that the pension dispute was over and wired union officials: "Your voluntary cessation of work should now be terminated and your protest ended. . . ."

In its opinion yesterday the court emphasized that it was not concerned with such issues as the right to strike, the Taft-Hartley Act or the meaning of agreements between the mine operators and the union.

"The point is simply that an order issued by a court with jurisdiction over the subject matter and the persons, in a case within its general powers, must be obeyed until reversed by orderly and proper proceedings . . .," wrote Circuit Judge Wilbur K. Miller.

The opinion was concurred in by Circuit Judges E. Barrett Prettyman and James M. Proctor.

Answering Lewis' contention that the walkout was voluntary and that he and the union were innocent of blame, the court declared:

"When Lewis sent his message of March 12, the miners stopped work. When he sent the messages of April 12, the miners returned to work . . ."

At another point, the opinion said: "Appellants were not convicted for causing the walkout. They were convicted because they deliberately failed to comply with the court's order of April 3 . . ."

The court shrugged off the appellants' contention that the fines were excessive, holding: "The amounts were in each instance exactly twice the fines approved by the Supreme Court upon the [illegible] parties for a similar offense a year before . . .

"Measured by the prior fines, we think those in the case at bar were not excessive."

(Lewis was fined $10,000 and the union $3,500,000 by Goldsborough on similar charges in 1946.

Lewis Absent

Coal Owners Submit 4 Proposals

Bluefield, W. Va., June 6 (AP).—The Southern Coal Producers Association today advised John L. Lewis they want four changes in the present contract and turned thumbs down on the miners' anticipated demand for a shorter working day.

After weeks of preliminaries, the soft-coal operators were able to present their formal proposals for a new contract beginning July 1.

Lewis was absent from the negotiations, which he left to a team of seven other United Mine Workers officials.

President Joseph E. Moody of the association said there had been considerable discussion of the proposals today and they would be resumed tomorrow morning.

The proposals were:

1. Eliminate the "able and willing" to work clause in the current agreement.

2. Eliminate the provision for "memorial" periods to mourn mine dead.

3. Tighten the welfare-fund eligibility requirements and put it on a "sound, actuarial basis." Otherwise, the Government may have to take over the fund, Moody predicted.

4. Eliminate the half-hour paid lunch period. The operators said this would not result in loss of take-home pay, because the 30 minutes could be added to productive time, which now is 6½ hours a day. The SCPA would boost this to 7 hours.

J. Edwin Avery Heads Men's Apparel Group

J. Edwin Avery, clothing manufacturer representative who lives at 4427 Chesapeake st. nw., was elected president of the newly-organized Washington-Maryland Men's Apparel Association at the organization's first convention last night at the Willard Hotel.

Members of the association, affiliated with the National Association of Men's Apparel, also elected George J. Quinn of Pikesville, Md., first vice president; Fred T. Gregware, jr., Baltimore, second vice president; Monroe Michael, Baltimore, secretary, and W. B. Puckett, 3405 Highwood st. se., treasurer.

The association currently exhibiting 80 rooms of fall merchandise for local merchants at the hotel, will close its three-day meeting with a dinner dance at 7:30 p. m. today at the Washington Hotel.

Charleston, S. C., June 6 (U.P.).—The 10,000-ton tanker Flagship Sinco, low in the water, was towed into Charleston today for repairs, with her 43 men safe after five days of danger aboard their flooded ship.

Administration's Fight for Repeal of T-H Act Opens, Splits Senate 3 Ways

The Administration's fight to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act opened in the Senate yesterday and the Senate immediately split three ways.

1. Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), Senate Labor chairman, led off for the Administration. He denounced the Taft-Hartley Act as "dangerous" and "destructive" and urged the Senate to restore the Wagner Act, "with improvements."

2. Bipartisan proponents of a compromise introduced the first of a series of five "concessions" designed to get the Senate together on a bill the President will sign.

3. Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) introduced what amounted to a substitute bill making 28 "perfecting changes" in the Taft-Hartley Act but retaining the 80-day injunction authority in national emergency strikes.

Then John L. Lewis hopped into the fracas. In telegrams to every member of the badly splintered Senate he accused AFL President William Green and CIO President Philip Murray of a "foul betrayal of American labor" by "secret agreements" to accept a compromise.

He said he had reports that Green and Murray agreed to accept "four oppressive amendments" that would "continue to degrade American citizens, members of labor unions, by imposing on them a continued status of second class citizens.

Green and Murray could not be reached but an AFL official said:

"The four amendments which Mr. Lewis refers to as being secret were unanimously approved by the executive council of AFL at Cleveland last month and were announced at that time."

The amendments form the core of compromise dickering now proceeding on both sides of the aisle. They cover Federal seizure power in national emergency shut-downs, filing of financial reports by unions and employer organizations, non-Communist oaths by union officials and employers and free speech guarantees to both sides. A fifth amendment figuring in the Senate compromise effort requires collective bargaining in good faith by unions as well as employers.

Four of the so-called "compromise" amendments were introduced in the Senate yesterday by an expanding list of sponsors after they were initially aired in a Democratic caucus last week.

Here are the names appearing on the "bipartisan" amendments introduced to date: Senators Douglas (D., Ill.), Hill (D., Ala.), Humphrey (D., Minn.), Withers (D., Ky.), Aiken (R., Vt.), Morse (R., Oreg.), Tobey (R., N. H.) and Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.).

Senator Taft conferred with his Senate GOP policy committee and later told reporters the so-called "compromise" amendments were "rather unimportant." He said most of them are covered in the substitute introduced by himself, Forrect C. Donnell (R., Mo.) and H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.).

Taft predicted the real fight will be between the Administration's Thomas bill and his odwn substitute. Senate Republicans, who have a party split of their own on the issue, will talk it over in conference today. Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), who has given some encouragement to the compromise movement, said Senate Democrats will hold another caucus in a few days.

Senator Thomas, meanwhile, held the Administration fort in a four-hour Senate speech lambasting the Taft-Hartley Act for "taking us down the dangerous road toward Government intervention and dictation in Government relations."

Thomas reminded Democratic colleagues that Taft-Hartley repeal was a "central" feature of the Democratic platform.

Harking back to the 1948 campaign, Thomas said the voters decided the act was "a mistake which should be rectified by this Congress."

Anti-Lynching Bill Clears Committee

By The Associated Press

Cites Approval

Georgia Klan Fighter Sees President

By The Associated Press

Mayor James Peterson of Soperton, Ga., a foe of the Ku Klux Klan, warned here yesterday the Klan's grand dragon will take legal action against him at his own risk.

Peterson visited the White House, where he said he received the approval of President Truman for his anti-Klan fight.

"I've noticed that Dr. Samuel Green, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, has indicated he plans to bring legal action against me for the unmasking and arrest of Klansmen in my town.

"I hope he won't be that indiscreet.

"I would say if he does bring legal action, he will not find it so pleasant, because there are other angles to this incident which I wouldn't care to mention now. If he insists, they will be vigorously pursued."

On May 21, the Mayor left his office when he got word that masked men were parading the streets of the Georgia town. He and Police Chief M. V. Ware unmasked three. Two got away.

An anti-lynching bill was approved yesterday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure, introduced by Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), was the first civil rights legislation to be approved by a Senate committee at this session of Congress.

Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) told reporters after a closed meeting of the committee that no roll call vote was taken on the bill.

A similar bill was approved by the committee in the closing days of the last Congress but was not brought before the Senate for a vote.

The legislation provides a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine or 20 years in prison, or both, for conspiracy to incite, aid or commit a lynching. It would apply to peace officers as well as members of a lynch mob.

It also provides that any officer who wilfully fails or refuses to protect persons against lynching can be fined up to $5000 and imprisoned for five years, or obth.

A like penalty is provided for Federal officials who willfully refuse or fail to make "all reasonable efforts" to capture and prosecute any person who violated other sections of the act.

A person who is lynched, or his next of kin, would be entitled under the bill to file civil damage suits against those responsible for the lynching.

Another section of the bill would make the Federal kidnaping law applicable to the interstate transportation of persons seized by a lynch mob.

Navy Submits Racial Report

serve officers as can qualify physically and will accept. Tentative estimates were that perhaps half of them could be obtained.

2. Launch an intensive recruiting drive to get qualified Negro youths to enlist for general service—that is, be trained as regular seamen, bosun's mates, firemen, aviation mechanics, yeomen, etc.

The Navy abolished racial segregation as a policy four years ago. Though the step was hailed by Negro leaders as a model for the Army and Air Force to follow, recently they have complained that it was faulty in practice.

They cited the fact that there are only a half dozen Negro commissioned officers in uniform, that most Negro enlisted men are in the messmen's and commissary branches, and that there are but seven Negroes in Naval ROTC college units.

In contrast to this nonsegregated situation in the Navy, the Army has approximately a thousand Negro commissioned officers and several thousand Negro ROTC students—almost entirely in segregated units.

40% Now in General Service

The Navy report to Johnson is understood to point out that today some 40 per cent of the 17,459 Negro enlisted men in the Navy are in general service and that the ratio is increasing month by month. In December, 1946, all but 6 per cent of the Negroes in uniform were in the messmen's branch, it was said.

Also, officials say that the Navy has a limited source for new officer material. They declare that legislation would be required for them to establish additional ROTC units at Negro colleges and that this would be contrary to their nonsegration policy.

It is expected that if the Navy plan to call in reserve officers is approved, they will be assigned at least initially to recruiting duty. A major problem is to convince young Negro high school graduates that there is a career for them in the Navy and that they will not enlist for general service and find themselves transferred to the messmen's service.

Word came of this impending Navy action as President Truman's Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services gathered here to make its first progress report to the President. Former Solicitor General Charles Fahy heads the group, which consists of Lester B. Granger, Dwight R. G. Palmer, William E. Stevenson, A. J. Donahue, John H. Sengstacke and Charles Luckman. They are expected to meet first at the Pentagon and then visit Mr. Truman today.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

On my way to the market this morning, I noticed a telephone truck parked in front of Jane Paul's house. I wasn't surprised when Jane called this afternoon to say she'd gotten her telephone.

She said she is on a party line, the same as I am. The telephone installer had explained that about seven out of every ten families with telephones are on party lines. Jane said if it weren't for party-line service, she would have had to wait a lot longer for her telephone.

That reminded me of something I was reading in the newspaper last night about the telephone company's construction and improvement program. The news article said that "in spite of the rapid progress being made on this program, some people are still waiting for telephones." It went on to say that "the company was making the widest possible use of party-line facilities because party lines mean more service for more people, sooner." The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company.

Judge's Right To All Outside Data Is Upheld

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld the right of a judge to consider all available information about a guilty man before pronouncing sentence.

In a 7-to-2 decision delivered by Justice Hugo L. Black, the court said a judge "is not confined to the narrow issue of guilt." Justices Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge dissented.

The case involved a death sentence of a New York City Negro despite a trial jury's recommendation of life imprisonment. The judge, making use of a probation report on the man, Samuel T. Williams, said the report indicated he was "a psychopathic liar" and "a menace to society."

Black pointed out that "to deprive judges of this kind of information would undermine modern penological procedural policies that have been cautiously adopted throughout the Nation after careful consideration and experimentation."

Since New York law gives the judge wide latitude in sentencing criminals, Black said, the Supreme Court must not stand in the way of his obtaining information from out-of-court sources to guide his judgment "toward a more enlightened and just sentence."

The Supreme Court still has some 35 or more opinions to hand down, a big order if it is to adjourn for the summer on June 20, as it has indicated it hopes to do.

In other actions yesterday the Court:

1. Ruled, 8 to 0, that the Federal Communications Commission does not have to hear arguments on a protest by Detroit radio station WJR against granting a permit to another station. The court sent the case back to the Appeals Court after reversing its stand on other points.

2. Unanimously ordered Illinois courts to say whether State laws permit prisoners to have hearings when they claim their Federal rights have been violated. Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson referred to the "recurring problem" involving Illinois prisoners and their efforts to get their cases into Federal court.

Justice Vinson said that "if there is now no post-trial procedure by which Federal rights may be vindicated in Illinois, we wish to be advised of that fact."

Camille Nickerson Charms Audience in Folk Song Recital

By Paul Hume

Camille Nickerson's singing of folk songs last night in the Phillips Gallery helped one forget the minor heat wave.

A packed recital hall complimented everything the gracious folk singer did, and well it might. The unique folk lore and music of the Louisiana country makes Nickerson understands words and music, and behind it all, she knows the reason for each song.

Her easy manner projects both song and surrounding story. She sang a variety of Creole songs, mixed with the street cries that fill Southern towns in all kinds of weather. Moreover, the singer played for herself, on both piano and guitar. And the arrangements of songs and accompaniments are her own.

One group of American Negro songs showed differences in rhythmic approach as well as vergbal essentials between the more familiar literature and the Creole ballads. To add a final touch of color to the charm of the evening, the singer changed costumes for various parts of the program. It was an engaging affair in every way.

Naturalization Bill Is Passed

The House yesterday passed a bill to repeal long-standing racial restrictions which deny citizenship to some 85,000 Japanese and "other Asians" living in the United States.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where twice in the past two years similar measures have been holed up in committee.

The legislation would make no change in present immigration laws for exclusion of Orientals. It would permit naturalization of those aliens now legally resident who have hitherto been denied the right of citizenship because of race.

Mrs. Clark's Name Submitted

President Truman yesterday sent to the Senate the nomination of Mrs. George Neese Clark, Richland, Kans., a former actress and Democratic national committeewoman, to be Treasurer of the United States.

Mrs. Clark, 49, will be the first woman to hold the $10,000-a-year post. She succeeds W. A. Julian who was killed May 31 in an automobile accident.

A divorcee, Mrs. Clark has been president of the State Bank of Richland since 1937. A graduate of Washburn College, Topeka, she played in stock companies for about 10 years.

As Treasurer, Mrs. Clark will have her signature in the lower left corner of all United States paper currency.

Her appointment was regarded generally as recognition of the part women played in Mr. Truman's election last fall. Mrs. Clark has been a Democratic national committeewoman from Kansas since 1936.

Biological Warfare and How to Avoid It

By Dr. THEODOR ROSEBURY

formerly chief of the Air-Borne Infection project, Camp Detrick, Maryland

"Most Americans, like myself, will be thankful indeed for this book. Unlike atomic energy . . . biological warfare has remained enshrouded in ignorance and superstition. This is a dependable document on the subject, available to any one with or without a medical or biological background. At a time when our vital interests seem to be forever 'off the record' Dr. Rosebury courageously gives us facts and enough of the scientist's philosophy to be able to understand them . . . he manages to retain hope, a hard hope which 'realists' shun but which many scientists, military men, and statesmen see as the only real hope."—*N. Just how high is

"HIGH COMPRESSION"?

WHEN the talk turns to cars and car engines these days, that's a topic you hear much about.

So it's fairly interesting to note that, even back before the war, Buick engines like this one were touring the testing grounds with compressions as high as 10 to 1.

Even later than that this same big Buick power plant has been filling our engineers' notebooks with data on 8 to 1 compression ratios.

What has come out of this? Two or three interesting points.

First of all, that this big Buick Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight already has a compression ratio that gets as much out of present fuels as any engine on the market.

Next, that these ratios can readily be stepped up to fit higher octane gasolines as they become available.

And probably most important of all, that high compression is only one measurement of a good engine.

There's the fundamental matter of engine efficiency — power output per cubic inch of displacement, engineers call it. On that score, Buick stands where it always has — just about tops in its field!

Which means, in very simple words — better go see for yourself.

The fun you get from your car — the pleasure and satisfaction it gives you — are best measured in just one place—behind the wheel.

So we invite you to see your Buick dealer for a firsthand test of Buick. Take it in your own two hands and find out how good it feels, how full of get-up-and-go.

It won't take long to make it pretty clear that the place to get your order in is the place where you get Buick power.

Seaman, 21, Admits He Killed Devan

The Coast Guard yesterday announced a 21-year-old seaman has confessed stabbing to death Lieut. (j.g.) Roger G. Devan, of Washington, commander officer of a 12-man detachment on lonely Bikati Island in the Pacific.

A dispatch filed by Coast Guard investigators at Bikati named the seaman as Dennis S. Dwyer, of Queens Village, Long Island, N. Y.

Dwyer, a veteran of more than four years in the Navy, enlisted in the Coast Guard at Honolulu April 13 and was shipped to Bikati a short time later, records here show. He has been flown to Kwajalein, about 340 miles northwest of Bikati, and is being held in the Marine brig, the dispatch said.

No Accomplices Found

The terse communication informed headquarters the officers had uncovered no motive for the crime. It said also there were "no accomplices" in the stabbing.

Lieutenant Devan, 23, was found dead in his bunk early Saturday, stabbed over the heart with a butcher knife.

The young officer was the son of Dr. and Mrs. S. Arthur Devan of 3020 43d st. nw. Dr. Devan is a national defense analyst in the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress.

Stationed at the tiny coral island since October, 1948, Lieutenant Devan was in charge of the Coast Guard's Loran (long-range navigation) station.

The officer's body has been flown to Kwajalein, where an autopsy may be performed, the Coast Guard said, before it is returned to the United States for burial.

Island a British Mandate

Because the island, a part of Makin Atoll, is under a British mandate, Coast Guard headquarters here reported a question of jurisdiction has arisen. The Coast Guard leases 22 acres on the northwestern end of rectangle-shaped Bikati from the British.

A spokesman here said the problem is being studied to determine whether the crime is to be prosecuted by American authorities or British.

New Church President

MISS EMMA C. SHIPMAN.

Miss Shipman Leads Christian Science Church

From Press Dispatches

Boston, June 6—Miss Emma C. Shipman of Brookline, a niece of two early pupils of Mary Baker Eddy, today was elected preident of the Christian Science mother church. She succeeds Harry C. Browne of Boston.

Miss Shipman's election by the directors for a one-year term was announced at the annual meeting of the church, attended by several thousand.

The directors, in a statement to the members, said there is a world-wide stir in human consciousness toward discarding the material for the spiritual.

The directors said one manifestation of this trend is the breaking "through the crusts of ancient beliefs in material power" and a reaching out "for something better upon which to found a union of nations."

The directors' statement said that "physicians are giving more importance to thought in relation to disease. Natural scientists are gaining in their recognition of the insubstantiality of matter."

Hospital Cuts Debt $100,000 In Alexandria

Debt which threatened Alexandria Hospital with bankruptcy has been reduced by $100,000 in the past year, David S. Haddock, retiring president of the Hospital Corporation, reported last night.

As of April 30, he said, the hospital's liabilities had been reduced to $56,340.

Among the other accomplishments reported by Haddock were:

1. A total of $111,000 has been collected of $155,000 pledged in a successful funds campaign last year.

2. Establishment of a new policy of court action against patients who are able but refuse to pay bills. Receipts from inactive accounts, he said, have jumped 36 per cent over 1948.

3. Better relations with the City Council by appointment of a council member of the corporation board. The city made a grant of $20,000 to the institution and is considering a further one of $35,000.

Haddock recommended two steps for further improvement: (1) Recognition of responsibility to the hospital by the city government; and (2) education of the public to purchase hospitalization insurance so bills may be paid.

He attributed the improvement in the hospital's situation largely to "the capable leadership" of Hospital Administer Van C. Adams.

The corporation voted to expand its membership from 35 to 200 and to increase the number of directors from 7 to 21. A committee will be appointed to nominate additional directors to be voted on at the July 6 meeting.

The increased personnel was decided upon after recommendations were received from the corporation's committee, a citizens committee and the hospital medical staff.

9 Killed in French Traffic

Paris, June 6 (U.P.).—Nine persons were killed and 22 injured in traffic accidents in France during the Whitsun weekend, the first when motorists here could buy ration-free gasoline.

Tired Burglar Jailed After Nap With Victim

Cleveland, June 6 (U.P.).—A burglar who got so tired on the job that he crawled into bed with his victim and went to sleep, was in jail here today.

The captive identified himself as Ernest Lily of eDtroit. His snores awakened Mrs. Matilda Besmen, 82, who ran for a roomer and then called police as the roomer watched the sleeping burglar.

Police awakened him and found two diamond rings, a watch and a necklace in his pockets. Lilly was sleeping with his hat on.

Both Stabbings

Jury Indicts Two Men In Slayings

Two men were charged with second-degree murder and two others with carnal knowledge in indictments handed up yesterday in District Court by a District grand jury.

Roscoe L. Craige, 23, of 1414 Morris rd. se., was charged with fatally stabbing Henry I. Pinkney, 1021 Lincoln pl. se., with an ice pick in an argument May 10. The fracas took place, according to police, in an apartment at 2902 Pomeroy rd. se.

Anthony Coghill, 47, of 1401 5th st. nw., was charged with stabbing to death with a knife Wilson King, 42, of 1401 5th st. nw., in an argument May 15.

A carnal knowledge indictment was returned against Booker T. Marshall, 30, of 645 Orleans pl. ne., who is alleged to have committed an act against an 11-year-old girl who lives in the same block on May 12.

Marshall Logan, 20, of 408 1st st. nw., was charged with carnal knowledge of a 14-year-old girl November 30, 1948, and January 9, 1949.

Official Took G-Girls' Rents, Jury Charges

A former treasurer at Arlington Farms was indicted in Alexandria yesterday on a charge of embezzling $6005 from the Government dormitories for girls.

The indictment, returned by a grand jury in Federal District Court, charges Hobart S. Langdon, jr., 28, of Halifax st., Bethesda, with taking the money between November 13 through November 27, 1948.

Federal officials said, however, that the shortages actually accumulated over a longer period. They said Langdon's duty was to collect rents and deposit the funds in the United States Treasury. For some time, they said, he managed to arrange his accounts so the shortage did not appear.

He is now working as a mechanic in Bethesda, Federal men said. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

The grand jury returned indictments naming a total of 17 persons defendants on a variety of charges.

Jeremiah M. Rapillo, one-time Washington and New York boxer, was charged with mail fraud. He also put in a stormy two months as chief of police of Berlin, Md., but was ousted in a controversy over parking meters.

Rapillo, recently operator of a private detective and secretarial agency and tobacco company in Alexandria, was indicted in connection with the latter activity. Postoffice inspectors said he advertised cigarettes at cut prices in New York newspapers and failed to fill orders for them after receiving money from customers.

Two former employes at the Pentagon, Samuel Singer, 4352 N. Henderson rd., Arlington, and George R. Mason, address not given, were charged with fraud and theft of Government property. Federal officials said they took Government office and photo equipment and supplies to reproduce for a public relations firm a brochure concerning a visit by King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia to the United States.

A kidnaping indictment was returned against Frank P. Rocco, jr., 19-year-old former soldier at Fort Bragg, N. C., for a crime that began in Washington, on April 3.

Notable Weekend

The thanks of The Washington Post go out to all the notables and arrangers of the sports and entertainment world for making this year's National Celebrities Tournament a superb success. Arthur Godfrey emceed and contributed to Saturday night's show at the crowded Armory with the sureness and wit of a master trouper. We hope it was as warming a homecoming to him as it was to his packed audience. At the Army and Navy Country Club Saturday and Sunday there was a big turnout to see some sparkling golf played in ideal weather by a galaxy of headliners. This was enjoyment enough for the price of admission. To see Sammy Snead do the course one day in 65 and the next day in 66 was to see an exhibition of championship and breath-taking golf. But the whole tournament was spiced for golfer and nongolfer alike with fun-making from the tee-off all the way around the course by those kings of comedy, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope. On Sunday they played in the same foursome. They had been up till late on Saturday doing their show at the Armory, but no duo could have been in a merrier mood when Harry Wismer (who enlivened the tournament with his own line of banter as he did his announcing stint) called them out at midday Sunday.

The Washington Post is indebted to Bing Crosby for his self-sacrificing and faithfulness in giving his time and entertainment year after year to this charity program. This year it welcomed Bob Hope among the participants. Bing and Bob gave prodigally of their zany best, neither of them showing the slightest sign of wear and tear, though they put in a couple of days of very hard work. We salute their sportsmanship—and envy their golf. On Sunday Bob Hope and Bing Crosby went around in 73 and 72, respectively. This particular tournament was something to remember, not least by the underprivileged boys and girls of this community, who will share the greatest "take" in the history of these tournaments. To Mr. Carter Barron and his coworkers, who staged the show at the Armory, a special vote of thanks is due. They, like the participants, gave their services free, so swelling the proceeds for the youngsters.

And the Washington Post especially thanks the Army and Navy Country Club for the cooperation so graciously given.

Into The Act

Senator McCarran has constituted himself a one-man un-American activities committee in the Senate by releasing the names of 46 persons accused by Elizabeth Bentley as having taken part in Soviet spy activities. The Nevada Senator is a member of no congressional body investigating subversive activities. Instead, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, he heads a subcommittee studying a tightening of immigration laws. He has used this tenuous connection to question Miss Bentley and to muscle into the headlines. The names were made public without a hearing, and with no chance for the accused persons to defend themselves, in what seems to us an incredible abuse of Mr. McCarran's position.

Some 31 of the persons named by Miss Bentley had been mentioned previously. There is no valid criterion by which to judge her charges against these 31 persons or the additional 15 she has now implicated. If her performance in the case of William W. Remington can be taken as indicative, however, her present accusations ought to be swallowed with a large grain of salt. After naming Mr. Remington as a Communist, she refused to appear against him in a loyalty hearing, and in the face of strong evidence on the other side, Mr. Remington was cleared completely.

The question is not whether there should be an investigation of espionage. Rather, it is whether the testimony of a discredited apostate Communist should be broadcast without substantiation by a committee operating out of its bailiwick. For the whole tendency of such procedure is to fan the hysteria under which almost anyone crying "Communist" can smear innocent persons who have no chance of redress. Even witnesses are not safe; Milton Mayer has told, in an article in Harper's, how the head of Canada's Wartime Information Board, John Grierson, was labeled after he testified before the Canadian Royal Commission on a technical side-issue. Even in the face of a statement by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, then Canadian Attorney General, completely absolving Grierson, he was denied a visa to enter the United States.

The present departure from principles of fair conduct is the more shocking because of the relative restraint which the House Un-American Activities Committee lately has shown. Although he is the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, apparently Senator McCarran has not stopped to consider the fundamentals of the judicial process.

Unity Toward China

In taking over Shanghai the Chinese Communists have come in fuller view of the Western world. The newspaper correspondents report exemplary conduct by the victorious soldiery. Evidently the men have been schooled to respect civilian lives and property, foreign as well as Chinese. Foreigners who have lived through the depredations of one victor after another in China's republican history say they have never seen their disciplined like in China before. When a Chinese soldier two days without food and no money in his pocket will only take a glass of hot water from a storekeeper, he is making Chinese history.

All this shows Communist anxiety not only to win respect but also to repair and maintain local administration. The job will be a huge one. Shanghai, which arose on a swamp to be the world's fourth city, is a complicated municipality, with problems of supply which have not hitherto been encountered. Aside from this, it is the bottleneck through which flows a great part of China's trade with the world. So far from being self-sufficient, China has been more and more dependent upon the outside world since the Emperor Chien Lung toploftily asserted China's independence of the "manufactures of outside barbarians." In 1947 the last "normal" year in several decades of abnormality, exports were only half of imports, the balance being paid for out of remittances from overseas Chinese and in specie. Next year imports were kept down to the minimum, yet China still imported a quarter more than she exported. It is this situation that will face the Chinese Communists with some tough decisions.

For instance, Shanghai is a modern city dependent for its power on imported oil, having changed over from coal when the fuel became too difficult to get from north China. The Communists saw the problem ahead by allowing the great British-run Kailan mines north of Tientsin (where, incidentally, Herbert Hoover used to work) to stay in operation under the same management. But the connecting railroad with Shanghai must be in bad disrepair. The immediate problem in Shanghai, therefore, is to see that essential services are kept running, and this means the maintenance of oil imports from abroad, for China has no oil. How are the Communists going to get it? How are they going to pay for it? These are the kind of questions that the Chinese Communists will be asking themselves as they tackle the problems of administration in Shanghai.

It is the consensus that the Communists are rapidly bending any ideological prepossessions they brought to Shanghai before the harsh facts of practical politics. They are, as it were, Nepmen. Indeed, they are making great play of the fact that they are liberators of free enterprise from the stifling toils of the "bureaucratic capitalism" of Chiang Kai-shek! This is the kind of topsy turviness with which the foreign powers will be confronted from now on. The Communists, with a thoroughly sacked treasury, must earn the dollars with which to pay for vital imports, and this can be done only by encouraging private trade with the outside world. This is being done. All the towns in Communist hands are breathing more easily from the relaxing of restrictions on trade and production.

The foreign powers thus have some valuable cards in their hands, if they have the unity to play them. They can play them, for example, in securing Hongkong—any aggression against which might have disastrous consequences to Far Eastern and even world peace. The trouble is that no indication of unity is evident in action in the Far East. Commercial firms of some of the Western powers that the United States is restraining from doing business with Soviet Europe are falling over themselves to do business with the Chinese Communists. It is time to harness this commercial card to the needs of the free world's diplomacy toward Communist China.

Forbidden Duel

The judgment of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that a duel between the Air Force B-36 and Navy jet fighters would prove nothing must be respected. There has been so much propaganda about the B-36, and so much mystery over its actual performance, that we are sorry that the test will not be run. However, it probably is true, as the Joint Chiefs' statement indicates, that, without consideration of many other factors, a test of the B-36 alone would be an inconclusive commentary on the worth of strategic bombing. Moreover, the test might invite a publicity war that would merely increase the confusion.

The principal issue at stake is not the value of strategic bombing itself, but the value of the B-36 as an instrument of strategic bombing. What is important is that the Air Force not become so obsessed with the idea of range that it overlooks the limitations of long-range bombing; that it not become so lyrical about the B-36 that it is irretrievably committed to one plane and one strategy; in short, that the Air Force not become the victim of its own wishful thinking. Many reasonable people question the long-run ability of the B-36 to do things for which it was not originally designed.

Certainly a primary task of the Joint Weapons Evaluation Group ought to be not merely to accept claims for the B-36, but to subject it to exhaustive tests with every sort of weapon that might be used against it. The British, for example, have a fighter with a service ceiling of 50,000 feet—far above the 40,000-foot level of "invincibility" ascribed to the B-36. Nor is it unlikely that the Russians, knowing the stress the Air Force places on the B-36, are busy developing interceptors. In this connection it is pertinent to quote an observation of the British magazine Flight: "We fancy that our American friends are prone to underrate the height of the iron curtain."

Thus, while the Air Force-Navy duel has been called off, it is still important that the B-36 justify itself. The proposed investigation of the B-36 by the House Armed Services Committee can do a valuable service of informing Congress and the public in this regard, provided that the inquiry is not allowed to degenerate into a squabble for political advantage.

Nonsense On The Bomb

Now that the Great Uranium Mystery has fizzled, it is high time to get on with the serious aspects of the investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission. If Senator Hickenlooper was relying on the missing smidgeon of U-235 as evidence of "incredible mismanagement," he must realize by now that the spy scare is a dud. The net result of the first week of Mr. Hickenlooper's probe was to consume an inordinate amount of time of busy men with nothing tangible, as Senator Tydings observed, to back up the charges.

In his questioning of the commission's security clearance procedures, Senator Hickenlooper seems to have hit upon something more solid. Even here, however, there has been nothing so far to indicate that the AEC has not acted with discretion and in the national interest. For in the last analysis, security clearance is a matter of individual judgment not susceptible of arbitrary rules.

There is a danger, judging from the tack of the inquiry so far, that the purpose of the investigation will itself be subverted by the great preoccupation with security. AEC Chairman Lilienthal, in an address at Michigan State College Sunday, spoke of the folly of becoming "bewitched" by dependence on the "black and secret magic" of the atomic bomb to keep the country secure. In point of fact, the real "secret" of the atomic bomb, such as it is, is in terms of productive ability and techniques rather than a simple formula that can be pilfered.

It is here that the full investigation promised by Senator McMahon can be of great value. Let the myth of secrecy be torn away. Let scientists testify as to the real meaning of the atom "secret." Let the business management of the commission be subjected to the criticism that is an essential of efficient government. Finally, let the investigators report not only the nonmilitary accomplishments of the AEC, but on the size of the bomb stockpile itself. Only with this information will it be possible to judge whether the Atomic Energy Commission is doing a good job—and, even more important, whether the national defense is adequate.

Evicted Lawmakers

Long-delayed replacement of the roofs of House and Senate Chambers begins July first, compelling the lawmakers to vacate their girder-braced assembly rooms until January. Meantime the Senate will be housed in the former Supreme Court chamber and the House will carry on its business in the Ways and Means Committee room. The cramped quarters provided for the Senate will put a premium on absenteeism, and nobody seems to know how elbow room is to be provided for press and radio reporters, while the public, presumably, will have to get its information about proceedings at second hand. The House will have more spacious accommodation, but it is a much larger body, and it, too, will be seriously inconvenienced by the move.

Maybe the move will have the good effect of speeding up action by discouraging oratorical irrelevancies. But it is much more likely to exacerbate tempers already worn thin by a sense of frustration induced by an already long session that has been productive of many words but few accomplishments. If typical summer weather descends on Washington, we greatly fear that it will affect the course of future legislation. For even air-cooled interiors become intolerably stuffy when temperatures are in the nineties.

However, the repair work is urgent, and sagging roofs that would probably have collapsed before this but for unsightly steel girders, have to be replaced sometime.

Halfway House

The Olney Summer Theater is halfway between Washington and Baltimore. But nothing else about it seems to be halfway. With the opening to packed houses last week of its 1949 season, it comes into its own as one of the foremost summer theaters in the United States. Backstage, its technical equipment puts it ahead of any other house on the straw-hat circuit.

The Olney Theater is nonsegregated—without fanfare. It follows a nondiscriminatory policy as a matter of course. And the course hasn't led to any unhappiness. On the contrary, the success of the venture—if such it can be called—demonstrates that theatergoers in droves don't suffer the disease of virulent bigotry sometimes ascribed to them.

As a matter of fact, of course, the Olney Theater is not in the "venture" class any longer. It is an established institution. For part of the year it brings to Washington, at any rate, plays of a quality that few other cities enjoy during the "season." We extend it our best wishes—regretting only that the summer is so short.

Atomic "Secrets"

Atomic secrets, atomic secrets—Communists are said to be trying to get them, good Americans are doing their best to protect these secrets. That is what you would think by listening to the radio or reading your newspaper.

But the atomic scientists say positively there are no atomic secrets! Mr. Albert Einstein said no such secrets exist, and his statement appeared in an American magazine of large national circulation. One of the current best selling books has its point that no atomic secrets exist.

Can it be true, as Mr. Truman and others have said, that all this furor about atomic spies and counter spies, is just a very smelly mess of red herrings?

Atlantic Pact

An essential part of the North Atlantic military alliance is the provision for an armament race. Article 3 promises "mutual aid" to develop their "capacity to resist armed attack."

Our officials are not telling us how much we taxpayers will have to dig down into our pockets to finance this enterprise. They will say that the first year the amount will be a little over one billion dollars. But that is just the start.

Hanson Baldwin, the military expert, says that a "lend-lease program of arms and equipment amounting over a four- or five-year period to perhaps 15 to 18 billion dollars is one of the duties expected of the United States when the alliance has been completed." These nations were promised if they would join the alliance that they would get rearmament from us.

But even if all Americans paid 25 per cent of our income in taxes, we couldn't possibly prepare all these nations for war. Each would need to divert money badly needed for reconstruction to this new armament race. This pact by taking a million or more men in Europe from constructive activity and putting them under arms would nullify the results of the Marshall Plan and produce such misery and hopelessness as to open wide the gates to communism. For the Russians do not follow the Hitler method of aggression. They act from within by civil wars.

The North Atlantic Pact gives no defense from the usual type of Communist activity, but it does weaken these nations at the very point where Communists are most liable to attack.

Double Standard

Recently a riding academy groom was tried and convicted for having sexual relations with a girl 14 or 15 years old. The charge under which he was tried carried a maximum penalty of death. The jury did not see fit to exact this extreme. However, he faces a possible 60-year sentence. The groom is colored and the girl is white.

A few days ago a painter was arrested and accused of picking up three children in his car, giving two some money and putting them out and keeping the other, an 8-year-old girl, out with him until 2 a. m.

Your paper states that examination shows that the child had had sexual relations but no force was used. Among traffic violation charges the man involved is also charged with enticing a child for immoral purposes, conviction on which carries a maximum penalty of five years. In this case the man is white and the 8-year-old girl is colored.

Maybe you or some of your readers can explain the difference in the two crimes to me.

Russian Zone Contact

I should like to point out that the Russian occupation of Germany has its beneficial aspect.

Not only are those behind the iron curtain cut off from news of the outside world, but we are likewise afforded only the barest glimpse of their activities. Now because of the relatively greater extent of communication between eastern Germany and Russia, news from Germany and points west is undoubtedly carried back in greater quantities. Conversely, and more immediately important, from our point of view, our own people are afforded a greater opportunity to examine and evaluate conditions within the Soviet sphere.

James Rescue

I would like to say just a few words of appreciation to the many people who participated in the search for my little 3-year-old daughter in Potomac Heights, Md., on May 24.

Among those participating in the various searching parties were men who came down from Andrews Field, sailors and marines stationed in Indian Head, State policemen, and the men and women living in and around Potomac Heights.

To these men and women who did such a tremendous job in helping to save a life, let me say from the bottom of my heart, "thank you."

In regard to the letter appearing on June 3, entitled "Thornton's White House," I submit that the White House was designed by James Hoban and the Capitol Building by William Thornton.

Lobbying On Military Pay

Everyone will agree that the military should be well paid in order to attract first-class material, but a glance at published rates of pay and allowances of the "average officer" shows that he is getting excellent pay already—certainly better than 90 per cent of civilians. Which large body of taxpayers is supposed to feel terribly sorry for the officers' wives who have complained bitterly of making both ends meet on $700 or $800 per month? And why should the young second lieutenant make more than $300 per month? His civilian counterpart, the young college graduate, starts in industry at less than that.

The writer's only reason for not remaining in service after the war in an upper enlisted grade was not financial—the security, early retirement, etc., offered a very good investment—but solely an inability to stomach the caste racket any longer.

Apparently, officers of the services feel they should have all the security, free medical care, liberal retirement, PX privileges, etc., and also be paid in line with that small group of civilians who have prospered in "risk" undertakings, for every one of whom there are several financial casualties.

TAXPAYER.
Washington.

It is regrettable indeed that the service wives' lobby attempted to buttonhole Representative Sutton recently. If the wives had studied the debate on service pay and what Mr. Sutton had to say on the matter, they would have noticed a curious lack of objectivity in his remarks.

The 1% women who injured his feelings are but a tiny per cent of thousands of service wives. It is disheartening and discouraging that Mr. Sutton's personal grudges should enter into a situation so important to so many of us. K. C.
Washington.

Congressman Sutton's antagonism to officer personnel of the services grows more apparent with each statement quoted in the daily newspapers.

It is disheartening to read that there are some Congressmen who are going to be influenced by their reaction to a group of women calling on them in good faith.

Congressman Sutton has had his fun swinging the ax, with, I think, grave hurt to the service morale; cannot he and other Congressmen forget their personal approach to the services and act on the bill thinking only of the national defense and making the service career worthwhile for worthwhile men?

SERVICE WIFE.
Arlington.

General Bradley, as reported in your June 1 issue, suggested that only bargain basement people could be expected in the services at bargain basement prices.

Could it be that the wives of members of the armed forces who appeared on the Hill behave cheaply because they have have been obliged to live that way for years?

CONSTANCE N. HUTCHINSON
Washington.

Armed services pay legislation for career men should be based on the need for qualified personnel. In the long run the United States Government gets what it pays for. If it underpays over a long period, parenthetically the historical treatment of Government personnel, it should not complain of mediocrity in its career personnel.

The noncareer man fortunately is usually a young man, either drafted or induced to enlist by temporary considerations. Most often he is without serious family commitments. His needs are not great in the matter of clear pay for he is fed, housed, clothed and treated medically without cost to him.

On the other hand, the career men have committed themselves to a life of service, usually have or want to have, a family and are on the average much older and certainly much more experienced and valuable than the noncareer men.

If we are to have responsible career men in the armed services, they should have the same prospective renumeration that any other career man, Government or civilian, has.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Battle Of The B-36

THE FIGHT over the Air Force's big B-36 bomber is just beginning to warm up. It is a tangle of ordinary politics, plus the cut-throat politics of interservice rivalry, all scrambled with the kind of complicated technology that is hard for the ordinary citizen to understand.

The likelihood is that politics of one brand or another will prevail. Just as in the inquiry into David Lilienthal's stewardship as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, incidents can be blown up into sensational headlines.

With the dead cats and the brickbats flying, what should be the real objective of the proposed House investigation may be lost sight of. Before so many hundreds of millions of dollars are out of the defense budget are put into the B-36, the public has the right to be assured that its performance approaches the claims made for it.

High-ranking officers of the Navy's air arm, talking privately, say that their jet fighter planes have already demonstrated that the B-36 can be hit at over 40,000 feet. They hint that this was conclusively proven in a secret test a month ago, the results of which are being held back on the insistence of the Air Force. Reports have already been published that the Air Force's own fighters "shot down" the B-36 in test attacks that disproved the Air Force claim for the bomber on which production is now being concentrated.

THE VARIOUS and assorted opponents of an Air Force that would be so big as to get the lion's share of the defense dollar are circulating among members of Congress what they believe to be a powerful piece of propaganda. It is an article from the British trade publication, Flight.

Signed with the pseudonym "Favonius," the article declares that the long-range B-36 must carry so much fuel in order to get to the target and back that the fuel actually weighs more than the bomb load. The article challenges the claim that the B-36 cannot be intercepted by jet fighters at 40,000 feet or over, maintaining that the British, and probably the Russians, have a fighter superior to anything now being produced here.

"The latter (the British D. H. Ghost-Vampire) can climb to 40,000 feet in about eight minutes," the article continues, "and still do most of its fighting from there on, up to well over 50,000 feet, since its service ceiling is higher than 50,000 feet. It is hard to believe, then, that a Russian counterpart of this type of defensive weapon would have much trouble in knocking down such a ponderous target as the B-36, however heavily the latter might be armed. We fancy that our American friends are prone to underrate the height of the iron curtain."

THERE are other equally startling statements in the article in Flight, which frequently during the war made sensational claims for British aircraft as over American planes. It suggests that top military planners of the USAF have got themselves so "sold" on the B-36 that they "now haven't got the nerve to pull out."

Whether any congressional committee made up of nontechnical men can umpire a dispute based on highly technical claims is a question. The ordinary citizen is in a sense a prisoner of the technician today.

Not long ago I flew in a TF-80, a jet fighter called a Shooting Star. This was in the course of a routine training flight from Selfridge Field, near Detroit, to Andrews Field, outside Washington. We made the trip in 56 minutes at an average altitude of 22,000 feet.

Incased in parachute, Mae West, helmet and oxygen mask, with the plastic dome clamped over the cockpit just before the take-off, I have never felt so helpless before. I sat watching the pointer on the dial registering our speed as it moved from 500 to 520 and finally to 540 miles an hour. Pittsburgh flashed beneath us in a minute and a half, and a dark green blur lasting four or five minutes was, I guessed, the Appalachians.

A few brilliant technicians design and direct the construction of these planes. Other highly trained technicians fly them. The stratosphere in which they operate is beyond the comprehension of most of us.

Yet, as in the instance of the B-36, where national security and well-being are so involved, Congress cannot abdicate. An honest inquiry, quite apart from innuendo and smear, would be helpful.

National Health Insurance

Representing the student body of the Georgetown University School of Medicine, we protest the indorsement of a prepaid national Government-sponsored compulsory health program by the Association of Internes and Medical Students at the 1948 convention.

Our protest is based on two grounds: We feel that such a program will not be to the advantage of the American people or of the medical profession. We feel also that the action does not represent even a majority opinion of medical students in the country.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Cassandra Speaking

THE CELEBRATION of the second anniversary of the Harvard speech, in which Secretary Marshall suggested the European Recovery Program, comes at a time when in western Europe, the United States, and indeed almost everywhere trade is declining, profits are falling, and unemployment is rising. As in the months which preceded the Harvard speech, the signs of a crisis in the making are too plain to be disregarded. There is every reason to think that the crisis which is now in the making will require a greater effort on the part of statesmen and people than that which began to develop in the early winter of 1947.

LIPPMANN

For then the question was how by a revival of production and with American aid, the general standard of life could be raised from the low level to which it had been brought down by the war. But now, with production in western Europe on the whole above prewar and with American aid beginning to taper off, the question is how the existing European standard of life can be maintained.

Though it is still very low, there is little prospect that in the near future it can be improved. There is the grave question whether it will not have to fall.

THOUGH it is quite true that but for the Marshall Plan the condition of Europe and the world would be much worse than it is, there is little ground for complacency and self-congratulation. The problem of European recovery is manifestly deeper and more stubborn than most of the operators of the Marshall Plan realized, than any were willing to admit publicly. The economic exhaustion of western Europe has been greater than the official estimates allowed, and the disruption of the channels of trade and of the media of exchange has been such that only by extremely artificial, and therefore quite temporary devices, has a moderate volume of trade been restored.

The fragile recovery which has been achieved is now threatened by a world-wide deflation in which, unlike 1947, the United States is involved. The deflation has set in before, but just before, Germany and Japan are being encouraged to enter the world-wide competition for contracting markets.

THE SIGNS of the crisis which made the Marshall Plan necessary were quite visible at least four months before the Harvard speech. By the end of January it was evident that the American and Canadian credits, which were intended to see the United Kingdom through 1951, were going to run out much sooner. In fact they were used up by August of 1947.

Not until May did Mr. Acheson, then the Undersecretary of State, make the address to the Delta Council which was in fact the forerunner of Mr. Marshall's Harvard speech a month later. Another half year passed before Congress provided interim aid. A year passed before it appropriated the money for the Marshall Plan.

THE CRISIS which is now in the making will call for a better timetable than that. There are experts in all the countries who know. But if measures are to be contrived, and the extraordinarily difficult decisions are to be taken, before the deflation goes out of control, the statesmen with the highest responsibility in the Western world will have to face up to the problem right away.

For our policies and our political hopes are based upon, and depend upon, the premise that the Western world, including western Germany, can count upon a rising standard of life amidst conditions of increasing confidence and stability. A world-wide deflation, with contracting markets, reduced consumption, rising unemployment —especially if an American deflation aggravates it instead of compensating for it—will soon change, and not for the better, the political and diplomatic climate in which Mr. Acheson administers his policies.

New Rules on Money Loans Are Proposed

New money-lending regulations, limiting the type and amount of insurance a borrower may be charged, were submitted to the District Commissioners yesterday.

The regulations were prepared by a committee headed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray as a climax of public hearings begun last year.

Gray explained yesterday that regulations drawn up by his committee apply only to money lending. He said the licensing committee, headed by C. T. Nottingham, is considering methods of coordinating regulations on financing and refinancing of cars and household furnishings.

Provisions Are Listed

In describing the proposed regulations, Gray said they reduce to a "bare minimum" the amount of insurance required of a borrower and protect both the borrower and the lender during the loan's duration.

Principal provisions are:

1. Each borrower must receive a statement in writing at the time a loan is made showing the actual amount of the loan, terms of repayment, including total number of installments and amount of each, and listing as separate items each charge included in the amount of the loan.

2. The borrower may be required to take out fire and extended-coverage insurance on household furniture posted as collateral security for the term of the loan only and in an amount not exceeding fair market value of the property.

3. The borrower who puts up a vehicle as collateral security may be required to buy $50, $75 or $100 deductible collision and fire and theft insurance (or comprehensive in lieu of fire and theft insurance) for a term not exceeding the term of the loan.

1913 Act Gives Authority

4. If there is no collateral security, a reducing form of term life insurance on the life of the borrower may be required, but in an amount not greater than the actual loan, and only for the period of the loan.

Gray said the regulations are designed to eliminate current practices among some money lenders of requiring borrowers to take out every conceivable form of life and other insurance.

Authority for the new regulations comes under the 1913 act setting up small-loan company regulations.

Rival Parties Claim Control In Colombia

Bogota, Colombia, June 6 (AP).—Both Conservatives and Liberals claimed control tonight of the National Chamber of Representatives.

Conservatives claimed control by two seats and the Liberals declared they had increased their 15-seat majority. Incomplete returns indicated the Liberal Party had won a majority of the popular votes in Sunday's election of representatives, senators, state legislatures and city councils.

The definite outcome will not be known until about Wednesday.

With returns lacking from 5 departments the Liberals had polled 620,215 votes to 547,994 for the Conservatives.

Boy Burned Severely 27 Days Ago Dies

Vernon, Tex., June 6 (AP).—Time ran out on 10-year-old Donnie Woodard today. He had lived 27 days with 70 per cent of his skin burned away. He died at 5 a. m.

"Even at the last he cheated death," Dr. Jack Restivo said. "I didn't see how he possibly could live past 9 p. m. last night. But he lived for eight more hours.

"There was no secondary infection. He died of chronic exhaustion. Donnie fought his heart out."

Citizens had poured thousands of dollars into a "Donnie Woodard Fund."

On May 10, an older brother accidentally doused Donnie with a bucket of flaming gasoline while the two were burning weeds.

"I know they say I am going to die," Donnie said, "But gee, I don't want to die. I want to live and have a shetland pony."

Gas Firm's Net In April Shows 30% Decline

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported net income of $136,091 for April, a decrease of $58,954 or 30 per cent as compared with the same 1948 month.

This brought net for the first four months this year to $946,688, a decline of $199,789 or 17 per cent from the like 1948 period.

The drop in April was attributed to a sharp increase in operating expenses. The month's operating revenues of $1,344,212 were $86,895 improved, but operating expenses of $1,149,205 were $145,447 heavier.

Including the Maryland and Virginia subsidiaries, earnings of the company on a consolidated basis also showed a decline in April and the first four months. April net of $188,034 was $52,238 lower, while four-month net of $1,337,447 was $238,162 down.

Company officials have indicated they will seek a rate increase to halt the downward trend.

Meters in service in Washington at the end of April were 173,188, an increase of 2275 for the past 12 months.

The employes were too busy yesterday to do any lounging on the novel terrace with umbrellas, tables and chairs, Birgfeld said. Three senior officers, who were on hand to greet visitors, were: F. P. H. Siddons, Hans Ireland and William Schooley. On Saturday the branch on Calvert st. near Connecticut ave. held "open house" and approximately 800 persons inspected the new structure.

New York, June 6 (AP).—Cotton futures influence of liquidation in nearby July influence of liquidation in nearly July futures and selling prompted by the easiness in other markets. Losses extended to 55 cents a bale before prices firmed on active trade buying and short covering. Final prices were 10 to 25 cents a bale lower.

'Forgotten Man' of Films Paid for Not Acting

Hollywood, June 6 (U.P.)—Jack Beutel, the richest forgotten man in Hollywood, wishes boss Howard Hughes would let him work. Then, he said today, he wouldn't feel so guilty about those four-figure paychecks he's collected every week for eight years.

In 1941, Beutel signed with Hughes to star in "The Outlaw." Ever since, Hughes has kept the handsome actor on the payroll—but hasn't let him work, making him the world's highest paid actor per picture.

Beutel's only effort has been struggling to the mailbox to pick up that fat fee every week.

"He keeps saying he's grooming me for big things, but I just wish he would put me in a movie," he sighed. "I'm tired of sitting around.

"He won't even let me work in radio or at other movie studios."

When Beutel complains, Hughes replies, "What's the hurry?"

"Or rather, my agents tell me Hughes says that. I haven't seen him for three years," the actor added.

Beutel was a lanky kid from Dallas, Tex., who popped into Hollywood about the time Hughes was testing for a youth to tussle with Jane Russell in a haymow for "The Outlaw." Beutel got the role.

After the film was finished, he was off to the armed forces for 3½ years. When he got back, he dropped around to see what movie was planned for him.

"Not a one," he said. "Hughes said I looked too young and I should age. He said I couldn't play opposite most actresses—I'd look like their son."

Beutel got married, had a baby girl and bought an apartment house. He took up drama lessons. He traveled. He flew to Las Vegas to gamble with the money he didn't have to work for. He sunned 'round Palm Springs swimming pools while other actors rose at 5 a. m. to toil.

After a while, the vacation fun wore off. When Hughes bought RKO Studio, Beutel tore over to see the casting directors. They said, "Go home."

It didn't help any, either, when Hughes let Miss Russell make outside movies like "The Paleface."

"So now," said Beutel, "I try to keep busy playing golf and tennis and helping with the baby. I read the movie trade papers and gossip columns and go to parties to keep up with what's going on.

"Every time I feel sorry for myself I remember that Hughes is a busy man and employs 25,000 other people. But I'm the only one who isn't working!"

'Lonely Hearts' Trial Date Set

New York, June 6 (AP).—Trial of the alleged "lonely hearts" slayers today was set for Thursday over defense efforts to have it delayed.

Council for the defendants, Raymond Fernandez, 34, and Mrs. Martha Beck, 29, announced there would be an immediate appeal for a stay.

The pair are charged with first-degree murder in a hammer-and-scarf slaying January 4 of an Albany, N. Y., widow, Mrs. Janet J. Fay.

The State will seek to prove Mrs. Fay was killed in Valley Stream, N. Y., as part of an alleged racket to obtain money from women seeking companionship.

Defense Attorney Herbert G. Rosenberg said he would continue his efforts to have the couple's extradition from Michigan ruled illegal.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 6 (AP).—Grains, soybeans and lard turned in a weak performance on the Board of Trade today. Fair-sized losses were rung up in all pits, although oats showed a little more resistance to selling than did anything else.

The market opened lower and never did get back above the previous close, although corn and oats came close to it in a midday rally. Wheat was the weakest cereal. It met persistent hedging pressure from the Southwest.

Soybeans and lard fell quite sharply, particularly in the last hour. November and December contracts of both commodities made new seasonal lows. A continued easy tone in crude fats and oils markets prompted the selling.

Wheat ended 1¾-2¼ lower, corn was ¾-1⅛ lower, oats were ⅜-¾ lower, rye was 2 to 2¼ lower, soybeans were 2⅝-3¼ lower and lard was 27 to 37 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Chief cause for the selling in wheat was a speed-up in harvesting of the new crop. Scattered but heavy showers were received in the winter wheat belt over the weekend. However, they were north of the area in which harvesting is now under way and did not generate buying.

Oilfield O'Hara Plays With Fire

By Richard L. Coe

IN "TULSA," at the Trans-Lux, Producer Walter Wanger has set out to make a movie as much like a composit of all movie as possible. He has succeeded only too well.

For a heroine, he has Susan Hayward playing a Scarlet O'Hara of the Oklahoma oil fields, part Indian, a red-haired hellion. The part of Clark...er, Rhett Butler seems to have been split in two, Robert Preston playing the right-minded geologist type, Lloyd Gough his ruthless, ambitious, but always smiling alter ego.

For a period, there's Oklahoma in the '30s, a wild, benzedrined era which, if you can believe it, must have been sensational. For spectacle, there's a 15-minute finale of oil fields in Technicolored flames, which make Dore's Inferno illustrations look like off-hand doodlings by Grandma Moses.

For a story, he's employed Frank Nugent and Curtis Kenyon to write a script from a yarn by Richard Wormser. They've left out no situation or line which hasn't been serving the screen for years, and I'm certain they've done exactly what they set out to do.

Cherokee—I almost said Scarlet—sees her Cattleman-Father's body mangled beneath a toppled oil well and resolves to create an oil kingdom that will rival Bruce Tanner's, the heel. By the merest chance, a character who's drunkenly given her title to some of his oil holdings topples dead the next dawning, so Cherokee has her start.

Into this stalks noble Geologist Brad Brady, who believes that by scientific drilling, both oil and cattle men can live at peace. This pleases Jim Redbird, Cherokee's silent Indian suitor and partner, but it strikes Cherokee as a theory laudale only after she's converted all the black gold of the State into glittering coin. Needless to say, this insoluble impasse is solved, after Redbird petulantly sets fire to the oil fields, by the Dawning of True Love.

"TULSA," Eagle Lion release produced by Walter Wanger. Screen play by Frank Nugent and Curtis Kenyon from a story by Richard Wormser. Music by David Temkin. Song, "Tulsa," by Mori Greene and Allie Wrubel. Photographed by Hinton Hoch in Technicolor. Directed by Stuart Heisler. At the Trans-Lux.

At a Snappy Clip

Cherokee, of course, is the sort of role any movie girl would go out of her mind to play, and Susan rips into the thing with abandon, playing each scene with apt vigor. The authors are doubtless proud of giving her so many heated moments, and if they were confronted with the accusation that the individual scenes and reactions make a paucity of sense, they would blame it on poor Cherokee. "Cherokee's that sort of a girl," they'd say. I can just hear 'em.

Things do move along at a snappy clip, albeit, and you're bound to regret you weren't living in Oklahoma 25 years ago. Certainly few of Cherokee's set still survive those youthful frolics of the Tulsa area. The blazing finale is an eyeful and it all makes you regret you weren't bursting with beans in booming Oklahoma when Warren Gamaliel Harding was at 1600 Pennsylvania ave.

MARTA TOREN, who'll be honored by the Embassy of her native Sweden tomorrow afternoon, arrived at the Carlton yesterday for Keith's premiere of her newest film, "Illegal Entry" . . . The semi-documentary film has been made through the cooperation of the Attorney General and the Immigration and Naturalization Service . . . To prepare for tomorrow night's all-invitational premiere, Keith's will be closed all day Wednesday, which means that "The Crooked Way" goes on for the last time tonight.

THE STRAW HAT Players, a new local summer theater group, will hold tryouts for actors and actresses Thursday and Friday nights from 8 till 10 at their studio, 403 11th st.

Kefauver to Get 'Service' Award

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) will be preesnted with the 1949 annual award for distinguished service of the Central Suffrage Conference at the group's meeting tonight at 8:15 in the District Building Board Room.

Wilbur S. Finch, conference president, will make the presentation to Senator Kefauver, who sponsored the District home rule bill recently passed by the Senate.

The group will also elect officers and hear annual reports of committees during the business session.

Office Shifts Sought

A bill to transfer the Register of Wills office from the District government to the Administrative Office of the U. S. Courts was introduced in the Senate yesterday.

The measure, filed by Senator McGrath (D., R. I.), also would effect the same transfer for the District Court probation officer and the Commission of Mental Health.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Denis McEvoy, the Far East manager of Reader's Digest, is president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Tokyo. He was visited by a Russian business representative who asked him: "How does the American business community in Tokyo feel about trade with Communist China? . . . McEvoy pointed to the list of more than 100 large American companies who belong to the Chamber of Commerce, and said: "Why don't you ask the American business community here how they feel about it?" . . . "You're the head of the American Chamber of Commerce," replied the Russian. "So don't you settle the ideological line?" . . . "No," said McEvoy. "The head of the Chamber of Commerce here is just a glorified office boy, who does a lot of work, and gets no pay" . . . "That is an undemocratic attitude," said the Russian, and walked out.

McEvoy had been a correspondent in Russia in the early months of the Nazi invasion. And when Lieutenant-General Derevyanko, head of the Soviet military mission in Japan, retired from his post to return to Russia, he invited McEvoy to fly back with him . . . "Without a visa? I couldn't go, without a visa" . . . "Don't worry about it," said General Derevyanko. "Come with me in my plane, and you won't need a visa to get into the Soviet Union" . . . "The visa I'm worried about is not the one that'll get me into Russia," replied McEvoy, "but the one that'll let me out."

During the rehearsals of "Miss Liberty," Eddie Albert mispronounced a few words in singing the Irving Berlin songs. Berlin, who was out front with Author Robert E. Sherwood and Director Moss Hart, was somewhat upset by this, and Albert assured him he'd get the words right the next time. His assurance didn't seem to ease Berlin's distress . . . "Alright, so I made a mistake. Everybody makes mistakes," said Albert. "Even Roosevelt made mistakes" . . . "Yes, "Sherwood agreed, "but never with a Berlin lyric."

Louis B. Mayer will head an array of notables at Notre Dame June 29, to witness a presentation of the university's Laetare Medal to Irene Dunne . . . Ashton Stevens, the dean of America's drama critics, tells of the day he saw a artist's sketch of Ethel Barrymore and told the star: "It's you, plus Sargent." Miss Barrymore replied: "Yes, and minus resemblance" . . . The Damon Runyon Memorial Fund will distribute almost half a million dollars to cancer-research projects this month.

"What a beautiful day! The Score is 0-0 in the second." "Oh, woeful day! Cincinnati just got three mean old runs." "Let me pause to dry my eyes. The Giants lose, 4-3."

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER A. B. Chandler did the good and decent thing in welcoming back to the game the 23 players who jumped to the Mexico League—all of which does not prevent his motives from being suspect in, well, in the more suspicious quarters.

It could be pointed out that Chandler took his action at a time when baseball was under attack in the courts as a monopoly in violation of the anti-trust laws, with three players seeking damages totaling $2,800,000. Perhaps he wanted to put baseball in a better light.

POVICH

If that was his motive, it is too transparent. Chandler says the pending court actions influenced him not a bit—that he felt the time had come to "temper justice with mercy" and readmit the players to organized baseball, even those who were taking him into court.

He didn't impose as a condition the halting of the court action by Danny Gardella, Max Lanier and Fred Martin before welcoming them back to the game. They were to be readmitted on the same basis as the 20 other players who didn't sue. They could be both big leaguers and litigants at the same time, he said.

EVER SINCE the suits were filed, Chandler has maintained that baseball has nothing to fear. It is known that he rebuked caviling club owners who wanted out-of-court settlements, and peace. "If we are operating in violation of any laws, it is well that we find out," Chandler has said. "The highest court in the land upheld us in the last opinion on the subject."

Chandler timed his lifting of the ban smartly. He took action only after the New York courts had denied the pleas of Lanier, Martin and Gardella for reinstatement pending disposition of their damage suits. Thus he could point out that baseball was under no compulsion to reinstate them now, and take a bow for doing the generous thing.

He declared that the trio now suing were not his chief concern. "There are 20 other players who were eager to have the ban lifted, and I considered them," he said. "By July, they would already have been under suspension 3½ years. There was no indication that the court case would be settled for four or five years more, with each side prepared to take it to the Court of Appeals and then the United States Supreme Court. By that time, none of the players would have any baseball value to themselves."

THE COMMISSIONER declared, too, that he always had intended to give consideration to ending the ban before the full five-year suspension was up. He said the friendly agreement he had hoped for with the Mexican League had finally been reached, and with no more to fear on that score he was able to deal generously with the ineligibles.

The en masse reinstatement was apparently Chandler's own decision, made without consultation with the club owners who pay his salary. He was playing in the same foursome for three hours with Yankee Owner Del Webb in the National Celebrities Golf Tournament on Sunday, and dropped no hint of the 7 p. m. announcement he was readying.

The first knowledge Webb had of the decision was what he read in the morning papers. Chandler had taken League Presidents Will Harridge and Ford Frick into his confidence, but none others. All of which is a reminder that when he banned the players for five years, originally, it was an arbitrary action of his own, and not until later did the majors pass a rule prescribing that kind of a penalty for jumpers.

CHANDLER APPARENTLY wasn't kidding himself that his action might persuade Danny Gardella, the original plaintiff, to call off his suit for $300,000 damages. Gardella, a wartime player at best, who wasn't wanted by the Giants when he jumped, will certainly see no great baseball future opened to him by Chandler's action. And his case will test the validity of the baseball contract fully as much as the suits of Lanier and Martin, who might find a return to organized baseball attractive.

To the club owners, Chandler has sent directives that they must rehire any players who apply for reinstatement. They may not like it in the cases of players who have aged or don't fit into their programs, but the Commissioner will not have it otherwise. It is no empty greeting that he is holding out to the players he invited back.

You'd have to say, Chandler wasn't acting simply to duck the damage suits. His action won't serve the purpose in the cases of those players who insist on going through with them. The more reasonable conclusion is that he was doing the generous thing.

Eastern Players Het Up, Tech Game Grudge Affair

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Dignified school officials would be the last to admit it, but Wednesday night's Eastern-McKinley Tech Interhigh baseball championship game at Griffith Stadium is a real "grudge" affair.

Eastern's team is het up because, it claims, Tech reneged on an agreement to play the title game last Thursday afternoon by appealing to league officials for postponement 'til this week.

Tech says "it ain't so." Baseball Coach Woody Smitherman explains that the idea to switch the game was originated by Assistant Superintendent of Schools Norman J. Nelson so more adults could attend a night game.

Eastern's Athletic Director Sherman Rees charges "the postponement favors Tech, by giving its only good pitcher, Jack Pope, some extra rest. We'll fool them though. Our boys have licked Pope before, and they'll do it again."

Tech's Smitherman coached the last two Eastern championship teams of 1944 and '45. This is his first baseball coaching assignment since then, and he'd like to complete a successful season by whipping his old team for the championship.

For Coach Bobby Hart of Eastern, this is also a first baseball assignment in several years. His last team, the 1946 Coolidge club, also won the Interhigh title.

The next year, Hart was shifted to Eastern and was given the basketball coaching job.

Bobby liked his newer post, but it was no secret to Eastern Principal John P. Collins that Hart wanted another crack at baseball. When Baseball Coach Rolland Lund went on military leave in October, Collins replaced him with Hart. Bobby would like to show his appreciation with a pennant.

Kuhel Says Nats Aren't Flash in Pan

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cleveland, June 6.—With the season virtually one third completed, Manager Joe Kuhel took inventory of his Nats today and, despite a few shortcomings here and there, found the situation altogether good.

He's convinced that his 1949 club is no flash in the pan, and that it is entirely capable of continuing the performances which have enabled it to see-saw between second and fourth place.

"We're a much more solid team than last year," he said as the Nats pulled into Cleveland to open a two-night stand tomorrow against the deteriorating champion Indians.

Kuhel Praises Pitching

"I won't be so brash as to predict a pennant for the club, but I will say this: we're going to continue to make it rough on the teams which perhaps still don't consider us a solid club.

"We're so vastly improved over last year's team that a comparison is difficult.

"On the whole, our pitching has been great. We counted on it last year, but it failed. The biggest improvements, however, have been in hitting, defense and spirit.

"Eddie Robinson, Clyde Vollmer, Ed Stewart and Sherry Robertson have been supplying us with consistently good power. And all of a sudden, Eddie Yost muscles in the picture as a home run hitter—four in six days — and that's not hard to take, either."

To Shortstop Sam Dente, he gives credit for bolstering the infield vastly. "He shows us some really great plays at shortstop. And what a holler guy. There'll be nobody napping on this club with Dente around."

Two Berths Open

There are still two berths open on the Nats, who are carrying only 23 players, and Kuhel would like to see the spots filled by (1) a good relief pitcher and (2) a good, righthanded hitting outfielder, in that order.

The need of a good relief pitcher was never better demonstrated than in Chicago yesterday, when it became necessary to move in Ray Scarborough, a first line flinger, in the role of a relief man. There simply wasn't anybody else around. Lefthander Forrest Thompson, a real fireman last year, is bothered by a bad arm and Righthander Dick Welteroth is still too green to be handed too many crucial assignments.

Kuhel will talk to President Clark Griffith tomorrow morning and hopes Griff can swing a deal to provide the Nats with the necessary artillery by the time the team returns to Washington next Tuesday. The trading deadline expires June 15.

IN SHORT—Lefthander Mickey Haefner, who has already beaten the Indians twice this year and who owns a lifetime record of 17 victories and 8 defeats against the Tribe, will be bidding for his sixth straight success tomorrow night. Since dropping his first start, Haefner has wheeled around and won five in a row. Although he's been used exclusively in the outfield for the past week, Robertson will be brought in to play second base again if Al Kozar shows signs of slipping, Kuhel said. Kozar is the only member of the regular cast without a homer. Robinson's 9 homers are tops on the club that has walloped 36 circuit blows. The screwey schedule finds the Nats playing Tuesday and Wednesday in Cleveland, off Thursday and Friday and contesting Detroit Saturday and twice Sunday.

Tribe Fan Still Up in Air, With Wife Expecting

Cleveland, June 6 (AP).—To Flagpole Sitter Charley Lupica, the skidding Cleveland Indians are beginning to look like a tough personal problem.

Lupica has been on his 6x6-foot perch atop a 40-foot tower for eight days now. In two months, he says, his wife expects her fourth child.

In a barrom, Lupica had bet he would stay up there until the Indians reach first place. They're in seventh now, 10 games out of first.

"If we're not in first place when the baby comes," groaned Lupica, "I guess they'll just have to bring it up to me."

Of his children, only 6-year-old Margaret seems puzzled by the goings-on.

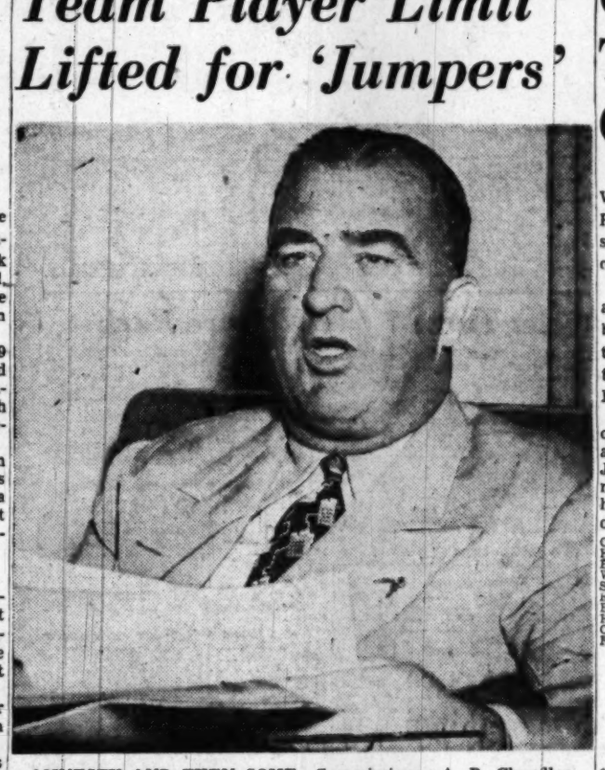
Team Player Limit Lifted for 'Jumpers'



AMNESTY AND THEN SOME—Commissioner A. B. Chandler promises yesterday that the 1946 "jumpers" to the Mexican League, who plan to ask for Major League reinstatement, "Will not get shoved around." He said that the 25-man team player limit will not apply to the returning player

New York, June 6 (AP).—Having decided to welcome home the misled athletes who jumped the reservation in '46, organized baseball stretched itself today to demonstrate that it really has a heart as big as a Georgia watermelon.

The boys who went South in quest of Mexican gold were assured by Commissioner A. B. Chandler that they will be guests of the house while they and their former big league employers are becoming reacquainted.

The 25-player limit will be suspended for their special benefit, much as it was for the homecoming veterans after the recent war, and the promise is implicit that nobody will get shoved around.

"The baseball commissioner will cooperate wit hthe lub owners and made the 25-player limit elastic for a reasonable time to give them opportunity to dispose of the players or make room for them," said a statement from Chandler's office.

"It is the only fair thing to do and we do not anticipate any complaint from the clubs not affected."

This benevolent and paternalistic attitude awakened no response in the breast of Frederic A. Johnson, the local attorney who is pushing Danny Gardella's suit for $300,000 damages against the cartel which, he claims, deprived him of a means of livelihood.

"Under no circumstances will Gardella apply for reinstatement," Johnson declared.

The spokesman for the squat little outfielder who played for the New York Giants during the war feels certain he has baseball's leaders on the run.

John L. Flynn, attorney for Max Lanier and Fred Martin, announced that the two former St. Louis Cardinals pitchers had applied to President Ford Frick of the National League for reinstatement, but he said that they, too, will pursue their damage suit for $2,500,000.

"This fight against organized baseball has cost me a lot of money, and you can take it from me that I want to get some of it back before I sign any more contracts," said Lanier.

Federal Judge Learned Hand wound up a decision last week by saying that the two suits "should be brought to trial as soon as possible." It was believed that, with this sort of prod, the case might be heard as early as October. Only a settlement out of court is likely to keep Gardella's suit from coming to trial.

The three players contend in their suits that baseball is a monopoly operating in violation of antitrust laws—that the reserve clause which binds a player to a single club is unconstitutional.

Nora Abbe Trot Victor

Nora Abbe, a 5-year-old brown mare owned by Quillen and Townsend of Dagesboro, Del., came on with a burst of stretch speed last night to win the one-mile fifth race, first half of the Potomac Trot feature, at Rosecroft Raceway before a crowd of approximately 6000 patrons.

Handled by the veteran Tom Lewis, Nora Abbe, which finished second in her first outing a few nights ago, showed her flying hooves to a fast field of eleven horses to win by a 2-length margin and return a mutuel payoff of $5.60, $3.00 and $2.60.

Spruce Up, handled by the veteran Joe Hylan, took the second division, the eighth race, by 4 lengths to pay $6.60. Crusader Chief was second and Lou's Girl third. The winner was clocked in 2:10 1/5.

The first of the foreign entries to click at Rosecroft was 7-year-old Protocol, owned by Ephraim l'Heureux, of Toronto, who ran true to form and won by daylight to pay $5, $3.40 and $3.20, in the opening event, a one-mile trot.

Eddie Jones, Oswego, N. Y., the only one-legged driver in the harness game today, handled Marjorie Mac brilliantly in the fourth, overcoming Prince's Miss Watts to take the one mile trot. Marjorie Mac paid $5.40, $3.60 and $2.80.

Handy News Boy, Earl Crooker's black gelding from Holcomb, N. Y., chalked up his second victory of the meeting in the one-mile seventh, a pace for 18-conditioned horse, returning $6.00, $3.40, $2.40. Gypsy Scott, which set a burning pace, wilted, to finish second, while Candy Jean finished third.

Willie Pep Easily Wins Over Ramos

New Haven, Conn., June 6 (AP).—Willie Pep, the world's featherweight champ, easily outpunched Luis Ramos of Puerto Rico tonight in a 10-round nontitle bout. The titleholder, looking fast and shifty, emerged unscratched in his first test since he regained the crown from Sandy Saddler last February.

Giants Lose To Reds, 4-3, On Fox's Hit

New York, June 6 (AP).—Johnny Wyrostek's three-run homer and Pitcher Howie Fox's game-winning single enabled Cincinnati to knock off the New York Giants today, 4-3.

As a result of the Giants' loss and Brooklyn's win over Pittsburgh, New York dropped into a tie for first and second place with the Dodgers in the National League.

Fox scattered eight Giant hits, one an inning except in the second, and hammered a single that scored Jimmy Bloodworth with the winning run in the sixth. Bloodworth had singled and advanced to second on Dixie Howell's infield out.

Leo Brings Higbe Back

New York, June 6 (U.P.).—The New York Giants obtained a valuable relief pitcher for the National League pennant drive today when they acquired Kirby Higbe from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a straight player trade for Infielder Bobby Rhawn and Pitcher Ray Poat.

Higbe thus returned to his old manager, Leo Durocher, under whom he had played from 1941 to 1943 and later in 1946 after returning from the service. The chunky right-hander reportedly had been sought by Durocher since the last off-season.

Although Higbe is 34 and was charged with two defeats in his only decisions this year with Pittsburgh, Durocher believed the veteran knuckle-ball artist has enough stuff left to help the Giants as a reliefer. Rhawn and Poat have been of little service to New York this year.

Higbe helped pitch the Dodgers to the 1941 National League championship in 1941 when he won 22 games and lost 9.

Meanwhile, Owner Frank McKinney of the Pirates also announced the sale of Bob Muncrief, right-handed pitcher, to the Chicago Cubs for the waiver price of $10,000, and disclosed that he would protest the deal in which Johnny Hopp and $25,000 went to Brooklyn for Outfielder Marvin Rackley.

McKinney said that Rackley suffered a sore arm during spring training and that the Pirates were not informed of his condition when the deal was made last month.

The Giants, meanwhile, renewed their efforts to acquire a top-flight second baseman and it was reported that they would get Eddie Stanky in a trade with the Boston Braves "within nine days." The Giants would give up one of their long-ball hitting outfielders.

Leahy Figures Out A New Huddle For Notre Dame

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 6 (AP).—The old-fashioned circular huddle is out for the Fighting Irish next season, Notre Dame Coach Frank Leahy said today.

He told 140 college and high school coaches at the Colorado College coaching school the Irish will line up this way to get the signals:

E B B B E
Q

All the players except the quarterback will face the opposing team. The new setup will enable each rambler to look over his opponent while getting the signals and permit the Irish to run more plays per game.

Leahy had high praise for his number one quarterback, Bill Williams of Baltimore, saying "He is going to be mighty handy to have around."

Notre Dame's main loss is going to be in the line, he said.

Bums Tie for 1st

Newcombe's 4-Hitter Tops Pirates, 5-1

Brooklyn, June 6 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers moved into a first-place tie with the New York Giants in the tight National League pennant race tonight, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-1. Don Newcombe, Giant Negro right-hander, limited the Bucs to four hits for his second triumph.

Newcombe struck out 11, the highest total of any National League pitcher this year.

The Dodgers broke through in the fifth for three runs. A walk to Spider Jorgensen, Gene Hermanski's double and an intentionaltional pass to Jackie Robinson filled the bases. Gil Hodges singled for two runs and, when Chesnes later tried to pick Robinson off third, he struck him on the shoulder. The ball bounded away for an error and Robinson scored.

Hermanski's triple and Robinson's fly scored the Dodgers' fourth run and Duke Snider hit his eighth homer in the eighth to knock out Chesnes. Hugh Casey finished.

Newcombe stopped Ralph Kiner after the slugger had hit safely in sixteen straight games. Kiner fanned twice.

Cards Whip Braves, 7-3, Take Over 3d Place

Boston, June 6 (AP).—The red-hot St. Louis Cardinals made it five victories in their last six road games today and 12 out of their last 14 by thumping Boston's Braves 7-3 here today.

The Cards now are in third place, only a half game in back of the Giants and Dodgers who are deadlocked for first place. They lead the Braves, who dropped to fourth, by two percentage points.

The Redbirds, who had scored their first run in the third inning, put the game out of the Braves' reach with a three-run attack in the sixth which Enos Slaughter began with his sixth home of the season.

M. A. Women Open Meet in Baltimore

The Middle Atlantic Golf Association's women's tournament will be held at Elkridge Country Club, Baltimore, Md., starting today with the qualifying round.

Joe Gordon Homers in Highlight of Wild Inning

Cleveland, June 6 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians, with Manager Lou Boudreau playing third base for the first time since his minor league days, exploded with nine runs in the eighth inning tonight to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 11-5.

A home run by Joe Gordon, along with four singles and five bases on balls, gave the tribe the ball game after Boudreau's replacement at short, Rookie Ray (Ike) Boone, helped the A's to five runs in the fourth by making two errors.

Boudreau, who made the change following an afternoon conference with Tribe President Bill Veeck and his coaching staff, played third flawlessly with two putouts and three assists.

Young Boone, noted as a smooth fielder, contributed three stinging singles to the 10-hit Tribe attack, but reflected the tremendous pressure of the occasion with his errors. The Athletics, who only made three hits off Starter Steve Gromek and Reliefers Mike Garcia and Al Benton, were quick to capitalize.

AT CHARLES TOWN.

DEAR FOLKS: Ray Arduini, of Washington, and Freddie Kratz, of Baltimore, are staging a merry duel for the riding honors here. Both rode two winners on the Monday program and Ray held on to his one winner lead, 16 to 15. Arduini has his biggest day last Saturday when he rode four winners. With F. D. Rivera having left this track, Johnny Regalbuto is leading the apprentices with 10 winners. The leading trainer of the meeting is Dick Pending, who races a small string when he's not working at his job of track superintendent at Bowie. He has saddled six winners. Seven horses have been claimed at the meeting involving $10,000 and some change. The biggest bargain is Old Fellow who has won two races for his new owner. See you on the rail. BILL.

Offerman Ace Clinches $223 Double

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town Race Track, W. Va., June 6.—Daily double stock which sank to a new low here with a $4.60 pay-off last week, rose considerably today. The twin wager on the 1 and 7 combination paid $223.40, but failed by a wide margin of matching a parlay on the two key winners.

The largest individual win pay-off of the meeting, a healthy $107.60, was returned on William Offerman's Hostess after Jockey Jimmy Ulmer drove the 5-year-old mare home three parts of a length in front of the favorite, R. Moore's Tap Lightly, in the second event. The first race went to G. W. Casilear's Olga S, an $8.20 shot, with Jockey Ray Arduini aboard.

While the double supplied monetary punch, the favorite players had their innings, too. Marvin and Moore's Sun all, carrying top weight of 121 pounds, made it two victories in a row in the featured Winchester Purse. Jockey Freddie Kratz brought the 4-year-old into the wire a length in advance of S. H. Hall's Tintrel. A length and a half farther back came C. E. George's Arch Boy, a 147-1 shot, to be third in the field of seven.

Sun Call paid $3 to win and was clocked in 1:18 for the slightly more than 6 furlongs, contested over a fast track and under bright skies with the temperature the most summerlike of the season.

Zielinski Leads MCI To Win Over Bolling

N. Y. Giants Drop Television; 'Skins Only Survivors

New York, June 6 (U.P.)—The New York Football Giants announced today that there will be no television for New York fans of their home games or road contests next season, in a move that seemed to be spreading throughout the National League.

The Giants' home games at the Polo Grounds have been televised for the past four seasons.

The champion Philadelphia Eagles announced previously that they would ban television of their home games in 1949. Last season, the Chicago Bears and Cardinals did not allow televising of their contests unless a sellout was indicated beforehand. It was believed that the Chicago clubs would continue the practice during the coming season.

(In Philadelphia, Commissioner Bert Bell disclosed that the Washington Redskins were the only team in the league that had announced their intention of televising games thus far. Each club sells its own television rights and then forwards the contract to Bell for approval.)

Blank's Hit In Tenth Decides It

Northeast Body Works won the first-half Departmental League championship by nosing out Washington Gas Light Co., 2-1, in a 10-inning game on the South Ellipse yesterday.

Eli Blank, who drove in both runs, and Bernie Myles, who pitched all the way and gave up only six hits, were the heroes for Northeast Body Works.

In the sixth inning, with his team trailing, Blank singled across Bob Lamon, who had tripled. In the tenth, after Jimmy Allen had singled and moved to third on two infield outs, Blank cracked his third single of the game into left field.

D. C. Canoe Teams Score In N. J. Races

By Happy Walker

TOP-FLIGHT WASHINGTON canoeists invaded the first of the Middle States division regional regattas, the New Jersey State Championships at Weequahic Park over the weekend and came off with a total of 11 points despite their lack of a senior rowing crew.

Walker

Spike Gewiski and Chuck Brandt of Dempsey's Boat Club defeated the Yonkers Olympic duo in the Tandem Single Blade Senior event. Frank Havens of Washington Canoe Club got a third place in the One Man Single Blade. Barndt, Jack Schmid, Walt Seelig and Bill Schorr eked out a close second in the Four Man Single Blade, while Seelig and Schorr won third place in the Tandem Single Blade event. Also contributing to the scoring were Andy Thomas, Dick Handler, John Davis and Seelig who captured third place in the Four Man Double Blade.

UNFAVORABLE WINDS hampered the Potomac River Sailing Association of Hains Point Sunday, with Frank Marquardt, committee chairman, reporting the largest list of contestants entered so far this season. Nevertheless, the schedule was adhered to. Bob Ray in his Unknown, Harvey Leckson in Sleipner and Russell Parker in Dorrie qualified for the Gibson Island Comet Championships to be held in July. Next Sunday will see the wind-up of the series.

THE $475,700 item included in the 1950 budget request by the District Engineer for the completion of Pier 4 in the Washington Channel was cut to $327,000 by recent House action. Appearances before the Senate Civil Functions Committee by representatives of the River and Harbor Committee, Board of Trade and Marine Trade Association officials brought about the cut.

Pier 4 will be completed this year and be utilized by the excurison boat Mount Vernon and Bear Mountain leaving their present facilities available for development as small yacht basins so sorely needed locally.

Auto Daredevils At West Lanham

Joe Chitwood, who finished fifth in the Indianapolis 500-mile race last week, brings his Auto Daredevils to West Lanham, Md., speedway at 8:30 tonight for a two-hour stunt show.

Highlight will be Danny Johnston's attempt to set a new world record for auto broad jumping. The mark, set by Chitwood, himself, is 86 feet, 11 inches.

5000 See Langston Win Opener, 15-2

Five thousand people watched Langston wallop Kelly Miller, 15-2, last night in the opening Metropolitan Junior League baseball game at Benneker Field.

Eberlee Williams cracked out a three-run homer for the winners.

Angling Around:

Fish Too Scarce These Days To Consider Them 'Trash'

By Ralph Murdock

MR. WILLIAM KOBBIE of New York City has launched a campaign that deserves the support of every fisherman. "Don't waste fish" is the slogan. He would like to see those three words posted on every dock, in every fishing boat and everywhere fishermen gather.

Murdock

Mr. Kobbie further adds, "There is no 'trash' in the sea. Every living thing plays a part in nature's balance and a good sportsman will throw everything back that he can't make good use of. I have lived long enough to look back to the days when fish of all kinds were much more plentiful than they are today or will be tomorrow if the slaughter continues."

Anglers don't have to be old-timers to recall when catches of up to 500 hardheads were made in the Chesapeake Bay.

THE FIRST red snapper, landed off Moorehead City, N.C., this season, was a record fish for the area. Carl Rich of Greensboro, fishing off Cape Lookout, brought in a 25-pounder. Some fair-sized red snappers have been taken in the past, but the champ leads them all to date. If the first snapper is only the indication of size, it looks like a cinch that larger ones will be taken later on.

John F. Lillard, jr., prominent Hyattsville attorney, won a case for himself when he hooked and landed a 93-pound tarpon measuring 5 feet 10 inches. Catching of this gamester places Junior sixteenth in the National Tarpon Fishing Derby which started May 1 and ends July 15. This tournament offers $15,000 in prizes. Mr. Lillard was fishing out of John's Pass, Fla. It took one hour and ten minutes to make the tuna say uncle.

Raymond Cox and John Clark were drifting off Broad Water in the Upper Chesapeake for hardheads. They used blood worms and drew a blank. They anchored in one spot and caught 42 nice spot. It took six bloodworms to accomplish the feat. Both anglers declared the fish were biting in midseason form and were taken on the end of a flood tide.

It was the first sizable catch of spot taken in this area.

ROCK FISHING in the Eastern Bay section was exactly what the doctor ordered. Chumming proved the better method. Capt. Harry Manifold, who operates a large fleet of fishing boats at Herring Bay said, "I fished three anglers from West Virginia. They caught 23 large rock on Saturday that ran up to 13½ pounds. On Sunday they caught 11 big stripers, the largest 14 pounds and 12 ounces."

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Newland and party caught 35 rock that weighed from 3 to 10 pounds. Doyle Kendall was the skipper and had this to say, 'This warm spell has really done the job for the anglers. All I am worrying about is getting grass shrimp for bait. I know where the first are." The latter two parties fished at Eastern Bay near Bloody Point Lighthouse.

Wiffy Cox Fires Record 63 in Tourney

Wiffy Cox, Congressional Country Club pro, shot a blistering 63 yesterday at Indian Spring to set a competitive course record and take first place in the pro sweepstakes division of the Middle Atlantic pro-lady tournament. Cox had eight birdies and was only over par on one hole.

Cox combined with Mrs. George Jani, of Congressional, for a low aggregate score of 61. Mrs. Jani contributed a eagle deuce on the ninth hole. Second place was a tie between Cox and Mrs. E. V. Brumfield, Congressional, and Andy Gibson and Mrs. van der Berg, Country Club of Maryland, with 62s.

Runner-up to Cox in the pro sweepstakes was Al Houghton of Prince Georges who carded a 67. Buck Worsham, Cox's assistant at Congressional, Arnold Hateke of Hagerstown and Gibson tied for third with 68s and the sixth slot went to Harry Grismer of Bethesda with 9.

The turnout of 35 pros and 105 ladies was the largest for a Middle Atlantic ladies' tournament since before the war.

Weekend Thieves Get $900 in Loot

Thieves over the weekend had a moderately busy time with loot totaling nearly $900, according to police.

James C. Wing, proprietor of a restaurant at 622 H st. nw., said burglars broke in sometime over the weekend and took 13 cases of liquor worth $415.

A quiet thief entered two rooms at the Harrington Hotel while occupants were asleep and lifted three wallets from as many trousers' pockets. Mark M. Dick of Albany, N. Y., lost $100 and Isaiah Brick, also of Albany, lost $130. They were in the same room. On another floor. Dr. Smiley S. Baird of Philadelphia, lost $136.

A prowler entered the Adrian Dominican House of Studies at 901 Upshur st. ne. shortly after 7 a. m. yesterday and took $100 from the purse of Sister Imelda Logsden and $14 from the purse of Sister Mary Petronia.

Someone entered the coal yard office of the American Ice Co. at 22 I st. se and the office of the Griffith Consumers Co., 2 I st. se., over the weekend. In both cases, safe dials were broken off, but the safes were not opened.

Patent Is Point

Court Denies Appeal on Ad Claims

The mere granting of a patent does not mean that the Government agrees with claims in the patent application as to the value or desirability of the product, the United States Court of Appeals held yesterday.

The ruling was expressed in an opinion upholding a Federal Trade Commission order to the Decker Products Co., Pelham, N. Y., to cease making certain claims in its advertising.

Decker manufactures an exhaust pipe attachment "Vacudex" which it asserted would save gasoline and effect other improvements in car operation.

The firm appealed the order on the grounds that since its advertising contained statements similar to those in the letters patent, its advertising came within the scope of the patent. From this premise it argued that the FTC's order was an attack on the patent itself and that the FTC did not have jurisdiction in such cases.

But the court held that "... the patent covered the device alone. It cannot be understood to embrace the methods employed in advertising or selling the patented product."

In a dissenting opinion, Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens held: "If the utility of the invention as portrayed in the specifications which is made a part of the letters patent cannot be advertised, then the invention, as a practical matter cannot be sold. In effect, therefore, the Trade Commission, in issuing its cease and desist order is asserting power to review and render in part nugatory the action of the Commissioner of Patents ..."

In another case the court refused to reverse a rape attempt conviction although it ruled that the lower court had erred in allowing the defendant to be questioned on a prior conviction while appeal was pending.

The appeal was brought by Attorney James J. Laughlin in behalf of Ciberto R. Campbell, convicted of assault to commit rape of a 10-year-old girl.

In his petition, Laughlin declared Campbell's case had been prejudiced through questioning as to a prior conviction for petit larceny when appeal was pending in that case.

The appellate court said the lower court had erred since "if the judgment of conviction is later reversed, the defendant has suffered unjustly ..." However, it held that in view of other evidence in the case, the damage to Campbell was not critical enough to demand a reversal.

What's the Verdict

CITIZENS' DUTIES

Q. A corporation used a truck for delivery of groceries and fruit. One day a policeman jumped on the running board of the truck and ordered Doakes, the driver, to pursue a hit-and-run driver. Doakes drove at the speed the policeman told him to, and in the course of the pursuit lost control of the car temporarily, hitting and injuring the plaintiff, who was watching the chase from the sidewalk. Plaintiff sues the corporation for damages. Is the corporation liable?

A. Doakes is the servant of the corporation, which is liable for the negligence of its servant in the course of his employment. Every citizen is subject to the duty of responding to the call of proper authorities, i. e., the police, to capture law violators. The question then becomes whether Doakes was acting for the corporation when he responded to the call of the public to catch a criminal. The answer is that he was acting for the municipality, rather than for the corporation, at the time he injured the plaintiff, and the suit against the corporation would be dismissed by most courts.—F. Party Politics Ban For Federal Workers Eased in Senate Bill

A bill that would permit Federal and District Government workers in nearby Maryland and Virginia to participate in local politics on a partisan basis has been approved by the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.

All forms of partisan political activity by these workers are now prohibited by the Hatch "no politics" Act. The bill has been placed on the Senate calendar. The political activity amendment was added to a House-approved bill to amend the Hatch Act.

The bill would allow Federal and District workers to take an active partisan role in local politics in those nearby Maryland and Virginia cities and communities where they make up 10 per cent or more of the qualified voters. In addition, Government workers could engage in local partisan politics in towns and cities throughout the Nation where they comprise 50 per cent or more of the qualified voters.

Democratic leaders in both Maryland and Virginia are reported to be supporting the amendment. A report filed by Senator Stennis (D., Miss.) pointed out that Federal and District workers may now participate in nearby local politics on an independent basis. It said:

"The committee cannot understand why these employes, who live in areas where such a great percentage of the population is employed by the United States or by the District, should not be permitted to participate in purely local politics as members of recognized political parties, if they are to be permitted to do so as so-called independents or nonpartisans. Especially so when as independents or nonpartisans they oftentimes are indorsed by one of the major political parties, and may benefit from major party assistance, although such indorsements cannot be accepted legally."

Federal and District workers would continue to be barred from active participation in State and national elections.

However, the committee amendment would allow them to engage in nearby local elections as an "individual, candidate, or manager in elections for offices which are filled only by the voters of such municipality, county, political subdivision of a county, including participation in primaries, conventions, caucuses, or mass meetings sponsored by political parties."

The Civil Service Commission is withholding judgment on the provision. However, it is opposed to its being added on the bill to amend the Hatch Act. Its officials are afraid the controversial provision will kill the entire bill.

The bill approved several weeks ago by the House would give the Civil Service Commission the discretion to fix penalties for Hatch Act violations. Under the present law, the commission is compelled to fire any employe who is found to violate the act. The bill would fix a minimum penalty of 15 days suspension without pay.

TRAVEL BILL: It was sent to the White House yesterday for the President's signature. The Karsten-McClellan measure will raise the travel allowance for Federal workers from $6 to $9 a day, and boost from 5 to 7 cents the mileage allowance for private car use on official business. The bill will go into effect on July 1. It's the first major employe bill to be approved by the 81st Congress.

RETIREMENT: The House yesterday okayed the Davis bill which would allow former employes with less than 20 years of service to withdraw their money from the civil service retirement system.

PAY: Representative Teague (D., Tex.) yesterday introduced by request a bill to raise the salaries of Federal classified and District employes a flat $300 each. His bill also provides for surveys of the efficiency rating and job classification systems.

ARMY: Several Adjutant General's Office employes who work in the Pentagon sub-basement had to be carried out yesterday. The heat was too much for them. About 600 AGO employes were moved to the basement which was never used before for offices. And yesterday was the first of the many hot days to come.

CAREER: The Humphrey subcommittee has a meeting scheduled this week on the bill to give career employes greater job security. It's likely to recommend that career

Tick Fever Is Whipped In 2 Cases by New Drug

Maryland Children Reported Cured in Few Days After Use Of Chloromycetin

Chloromycetin, one of the newest among the list of "wonder drugs," has knocked the spots out of two more cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Greater Washington. Both cases involved children.

Yesterday, 11-year-old Robert Brown of Sunnybrook, Md., was rarin' to go home from Prince Georges General Hospital, 24 hours after entering the hospital. Robert had been sick about 10 days with chills and fever. Saturday, when he broke out with the red rash of spots, Dr. George J. Hageage, 3717 38th ave., Cottage City, Md., was called.

Sunday, Dr. Hageage ordered the boy to the hospital and began administration of chloromycetin. Yesterday, the fever was down.

On May 23, Dr. Lawrence Malin of Riverdale was called to see Stephen, 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Kidwell, jr., 5008 Tuckerman st., Riverdale.

The boy had been ill only a couple of days when the alarming red spots showed up. That was Monday. It was Leland Memorial Hospital and chloromycetin. Tuesday, the fever started down. Thursday it was gone. Friday, Stephen was back home with his folks.

Children's Hospital has had at least four cases this year, with unanimous success reported from the new drug. A similar success was reported unofficially at Bethesda Naval Hospital in a child case, but this could not be confirmed last night.

Before chloromycetin and another antibiotic, aureomyin, were used, tick fever or Rocky Mountain spotted fever, generally raged in patients from 10 to 18 days and one of five cases was fatal.

The Army Medical Corps had a major hand in developing and experimenting with chloromycetin for typhus and typhoid fever and then it was found to combat tick fever successfully.

Ex-PBA Worker Seeks $25,000 For Detention

Harry C. Burkel, 66, of 1401 I st. nw., yesterday filed a $25,000 suit against Public Buildings Commissioner William E. Reynolds and three PBA employes, charging he was twice falsely committed to Gallinger Hospital as of unsound mind.

Making out his complaint himself to the District Court, Burkel declared he was in the mental ward at Gallinger for nine days on each of the two occasions. He was "among drunkards and filthy street beggars" there, he said.

A retired Public Buildings guard, Burkel said in his complaint that he was falsely arrested on March 30, 1948, and again on August 10, 1948.

ABC Weighs Action In Gambling Case

A charge of permitting use of premises for gambling against John M. Allen, proprietor of the Tuxedo Tavern, 302 N st. nw., was taken under advisement yesterday by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

At a hearing, Police Corpl. John J. Kinney, of the Second Precinct, testified that he entered the place April 11 and saw a customer with 13 numbers slips spread out on the table. The customer, he said, was later fined $75.

MRS. ELIZABETH GARRETT LEAVES COURT ON STRETCHER; JUDGE GARRETT AT LEFT

A District Court jury was told yesterday that Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, 69, wife of the chief judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, is a "helpless cripple" for life because of a hip fracture suffered at Doctors' Hospital in 1947.

Mrs. Garrett was wheeled into the court on a stretcher to testify in the $200,000 damage suit trial against the hospital and a neurologist, Dr. Robert H. Groh, 2025 R st. nw. The suit, brought by Mrs. Garrett, charges Judge and negligence.

Plaintiffs in the trial before Judge T. Alan Goldsborough charged Mrs. Garrett fell shortly after she had received the third of a series of "electric-shock" treatments at the hospital for melancholia. Symptoms of the mental condition appeared while her son was in the armed service during the war, it was testified.

Mrs. Garrett's attorneys charged, as the trial opened, proper attention was not given her after the shock treatment March 1 and that bed siding boards or other restraints were not used. Infection later set in when the hip was refractured during a "nightmare," they asserted.

Judge Garrett, 74-year-old former Congressman from Tennessee and judge for the past 20 years of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, told the jury that he was unaware that danger was attached to the treatments given his wife.

Hospitals Asked to Stretch Chest's Dwindling Allocation

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

District-area hospital officials last night were asked to agree on a formula for "stretching out" the Community Chest Federation's fast-diminishing hospitalization fund.

With nearly half the Federation's 1949 hospital allocation of $482,460 used up in the first four months of this year, the hospitals were told the fund will be depleted by next September unless they agree to prorate previously-agreed-on charges over the remaining eight months of the year.

On the basis of hospital admissions reported to date, this would mean the hospitals would receive about $9.50 a day for the care of adult patients instead of the present $11, Chest officials said. Rates of $2 a day for child patients and clinic visits would be reduced proportionately.

The Federation's plight was outlined by its president, Chauncey Parker, at a meeting of the budget committee with hospital representatives and member presidents and vice presidents at the group's headquarters here, 1101 M st. nw.

Failure of last year's chest drive, which netted only 75 per cent of the 1949 goal, was described as a principal factor in the impending shortage of funds. As a result, the hospital allocation was reduced to 80 per cent of the original request.

Although records show the 1949 fund would be gone by September if the present trend continues, there is some hope for relief, Parker said.

Admissions in the ensuing months may not be as heavy as they were early in the year, he pointed out, and there is a definite possibility of additional help from the Hospital Services Agency, which is exceeding 1949 estimates in its effort to collect payments from persons who have received hospital benefits. This agency determines eligibility and costs of patients.

Although no formal action resulted from last night's meeting, representatives of three hospitals said they would go along with the federation on its proposal. They were Samuel H. Kauffman, president of Emergency; Hal L. Rust, jr., first vice president of Episcopal, and Clark Diamond, president of the board of Columbia.

Walter Tobriner, president of the area Hospital Council, which handles hospital problems, said he had been instructed by the group's executive committee to express its opposition to the prorating plan. However, he said, the group would be willing to discuss the matter further with a committee from the federation.

Representatives of George Washington, Suburban, Children's, Arlington and Garfield Hospitals made no commitment, although spokesmen for the last-named two said they were inclined to "go along with the Hospital Council."

Hospital representatives were asked to report their decisions to the Chest budget committee within two weeks.

Red Cross Picks Folger Again

J. Clifford Folger, for the past eight years chairman of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Red Cross, was reelected to that post at the annual meeting of the board of directors yesterday.

At the meeting, in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, he reported both a record of accomplishment by Red Cross staff and volunteer workers and a continuing need for their services.

Folger stressed the blood program, home service to veterans and servicemen and their dependents, first aid and water safety, and volunteer work at Mount Alto Veterans Hospital. The meeting

One Gambling Action Killed, 2d Sustained

District Court Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday quashed the warrants with which an indicted gambler, Frederick C. Whiteoak, was arrested and searched on March 25.

The judge also suppressed evidence seized at the home of another indicted gambler, Atillio Acalotti, but held that Acalotti was legally arrested and searched at the home of his girl friend.

Both men were indicted in April by the special gambling grand jury.

In the Whiteoak case, Judge Schweinhaut ruled that the warrants were issued "too long after the date of the alleged offense."

A warrant to search Whiteoak's home at 1504 Oates st. ne. was issued March 25 by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, on the basis of an affidavit of Bernice Franklin which said Whiteoak was engaged in a numbers lottery in September, 1948. Miss Franklin is a key Government witness and a former girl friend of Acalotti.

With the warrants quashed, the Government in effect has no case against Whiteoak, a Times-Herald circulation man, although the indictment technically still stands, pending further court action.

In the Acalotti case, on March 25 the Government obtained a search warrant for his home at 908 14th st. nw., also on the basis of the Franklin affidavit. She charged that Acalotti was gambling at that address until January, 1949, at which time he switched to 1223 12th st. nw., the apartment home of Nola Andrews.

Judge Schweinhaut said, "I think the warrant for the search at the 14th st. address cannot be validated under the affidavit upon which it is based."

But sustaining the warrant under which Acalotti was arrested at the 12th st. address, Judge Schweinhaut also sustained the search made at that address incidental to the arrest.

Tie Blocks Approval Of New D. C. Judgeship; Home Rule Hearing Set

Juvenile Court Bill May Be Given Later Consideration by House Committee

An 8-8 tie vote of the House District Committee yesterday blocked approval of a bill to authorize an additional Juvenile Court judgeship for Washington.

But after the vote, members on both sides voiced interest in giving it further consideration, and Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) said the question would be called up again at the next meeting.

The bill is intended to permit appointment of a judge to take over the work of Judge Fay L. Bentley, now a voluntary patient in St. Elizabeths Hospital. There is no expectation she will be able to resume her work.

Harris Cites Emergency

Under the bill, the new judge would be appointed for a six-year term; but Judge Bentley would continue in office to the end of her term in August, 1952, and then her judgeship would be abolished.

Representative Harris (D., Ark.) appealed for approval of the bill to meet what he termed an "emergency" situation. He said the District Judiciary Subcommittee, of which he is chairman, had raised the question of her retirement. It was found, he said, that she could have a Civil Service pension of $4100 by retiring as of the end of May, and $4800 by retiring at the end of her term as judge.

He said no way appeared to bring about a vacancy in her position unless she applied for retirement.

Representative Miller (R., Nebr.) said he could see no reason for continuing Judge Bentley on the payroll since she is incapacitated and not expected to return to the bench.

West Gives Opinion

Corporation Counsel West said authorities have held that salary of a presidential appointee confirmed by the Senate, like Judge Bentley, pertains to the position and not to the person, and that the salary continues whether the duties of the position are performed or not.

Representative Bates (R., Mass.) asked whether Judge Bentley had indicated she would resign. West said he doubted that she would, and that it might be she would not be in a position to exercise that discretion.

Representative O'Hara (R., Minn.) said "of course everyone is sympathetic to this poor woman who is incapacitated," but he added "creating another judgeship and paying her full salary doesn't appeal to me as what should be done."

Talk Sought On District Construction

A "policy" meeting of District and Capitol Hill officials on public improvements construction was proposed yesterday by Representative Smith (D., Va.) chairman of the House District fiscal affairs subcommittee.

He told the House District Committee that he hopes to arrange a conference of his group, the Senate Fiscal affairs subcommittee headed by Senator Hunt (D., Wyo.) and key District officials.

Representative Bates (R., Mass.), ranking minority member of the fiscal affairs subcommittee, said he already has begun work on a review of the recent Strayer report, calling for a 38-million-dollar school building program, and of earlier school improvement programs proposed by local school officials, and by the Washington Board of Trade.

'Y' Ordered to Get Pool Licenses

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King disclosed yesterday that he has ordered the YMCA here to get licenses to operate its swimming pools at 1736 G st. nw., and to repair the pool plumbing there within a week.

King said that the YWCA pools have operated for many years without paying the $15 yearly fees. A careful reading of the statutes convinced him that the licenses are necessary, King said.

Water flow valves on the pools must be installed to prevent any possibility of drainage flowing into the intake water system, King said.

District Chairman In House Says Date Depends on Those Wishing to Testify

House District Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) said yesterday House hearings on Washington home rule legislation may begin next week.

McMillan said he is now waiting for an indication of the number of persons who want to testify, how soon they would be ready to testify and how much time they will want.

Approved by Senate

The Senate last week approved a Washington home rule bill calling for a council-manager form of government here to replace the appointed District Commissioners. Nine of the council would be elected, and two appointed by the President with Senate confirmation. The bill also calls for an elected school board.

McMillan indicated earlier that the Senate-approved bill would be considered along with other home-rule bills introduced by House members.

He said the decision to have home rule hearings has been made. He told the District Committee meeting yesterday, in answer to a question by Representative Kennedy (D., Mass.), that the Senate measure would be referred, as the other home rule bills were, to the Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Representative Harris (D., Ark.).

Dozen Ask to Testify

McMillan said that about a dozen persons to date have said they would want to testify.

He said that others wishing to testify could notify him.

He suggested it would expedite the hearings for witnesses to appear with written statements but that these would not be required.

He would not predict that the plan for early hearings spelled assurance of House action this session on home rule. He said that would be up to the committee.

New Teacher Sick-Leave System Voted

A new sick-leave system for District school teachers was approved by the House District Committee yesterday.

Provisions for one day of sick leave a month, cumulative to 10 days a year and a maximum of 60 days for teachers was carried in one of 14 measures cleared by the committee and sent to the House for action next Monday.

Two committee members, Representatives Bates (R., Mass.) and O'Hara (R., Minn.) voted against the teachers sick-leave bill. Representatives Abernethy (D., Miss.) and Allen (R., Calif.) took the lead in urging approval of the bill.

District school teachers now obtain sick leave only at the cost of hiring substitutes from their own salaries. Under the new bill, the substitutes for teachers on sick leave would be paid by the District, at an estimated annual cost of $150,000.

The committee also approved bills which would:

1. Correct inequities for teachers with certain advanced scholastic attainments, particularly master of arts degrees, retroactive to July, 1947. Similar bills passed both houses at the last session but failed of unification into a successful measure. A total of 109 teachers will be affected.

2. Increase pensions of widows and orphans of Washington police and firemen.

3. Strengthen regulation of practice of optometry.

4. Label a suit for divorce a "complaint" instead of a "petition."

5. Permit settlement of estates within six months, instead of the year now required, after the personal representative of the deceased person qualifies as such with the court.

6. Call for court appointment of an attorney to defend all uncontested annulment cases.

10. Provide for serving legal notice by publication in annulment cases.

7. Increase from $600 to $1000 the amount the court can allow from a deceased persons' estate to pay his funeral expenses.

8. Give park police one day off a week in place of Sunday under law as is now done in practice.

Proposed Playground Would Give 3000 Kids a Break

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

A plan to give over 3000 Washington kids a long-needed break—to take them off hot and dangerous streets and let them use a modern playground instead—was made public yesterday by the Juvenile Court Advisory Committee.

Whether the kids get the break now is up to the District Commissioners.

The plan involves the proposed Dennison School playground on S st. between 13th and 14th nw. It would serve one of the city's most highly congested areas, now without a single public recreation spot. The area runs from 7th to 16th st. and from Florida ave. south to a line along H st., Vermont ave. and Massachusetts ave.

Demolition Suggested

For years the District Recreation Board has been trying to get the Commissioners to assign District-owned property for use as a playground for Negro youngsters. The Commissioners consistently have refused, on the grounds the playground would be on an alley and that business establishments on 14th st. object to the playground.

Now the Juvenile Court Committee, a group of private citizens acting in an advisory capacity, suggests the District demolish a row of District-owned houses on S st. adjoining the school, thus ending the objection the playground would front only on an alley.

But further, to back up its conviction of the need for the playground, the committee has come up with statistics to show widespread tuberculosis, syphilis and juvenile delinquency. No figures are offered in comparison with other sections of the city, however.

Called Needed Badly

In the whole area to be served by the playground, the last tuberculosis report (1946) showed 328 cases. There were in 1947 a total of 365 syphilis cases, all but 26 among Negroes. There were 32 pneumonia deaths, all but 9 among Negroes. Of 60 juvenile delinquency complaints in the past six months of 1948, 52 were about Negro children.

The figures were cited to support contentions that "tension-releasing programs" are needed badly and that the Dennison Playground is the answer. Population figures show 3319 Negro children, 3 to 17, in the big downtown area.

As to the District-owned row of seven houses, the report says all but one of them have been declared unfit for human habitation, yet the District continues as a landlord. One building is vacant, its front door broken off to furnish a dangerous play spot for children.

Other parts of the big tract suggested for the playground now are used as private parking lots for two 14th st. firms that pay small rentals to the District and one parcel privately owned.

"A Challenge to the City"

Those who live in the immediate neighborhood, the report says, are 99 per cent Negro and the Recreation Board would operate the playground for Negroes.

Chairman Harry S. Wender of the recreation unit said last night: "This project is a challenge to the city. I don't know of any other recreation area that's needed any more than this one, and the Recreation Board has given it top priority. I hope the Commissioners will accept the recommendation."

He said the Recreation Board would make an emergency request for more funds in the District budget if the Commissioners act quickly. The playground could be developed in sections as land is made available, he added.

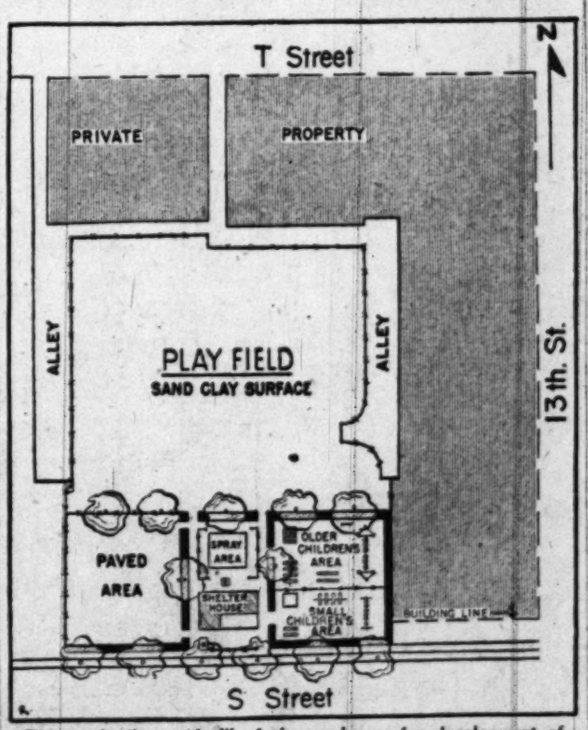
The committee report yesterday suggested three schemes, the most ambitious of which is shown in the accompanying map. The smaller schemes would allow the school, at the southwest corner of the proposed playground, to remain.

Alleys Affected

Each scheme calls for tearing down the District-owned houses, numbers 1313 to 1325 S st. The school, built in 1884, now is used partly for administrative offices and partly for GI vocational classes. The Board of Education has quarters elsewhere for all except a machine shop in a garage behind the school.

All plans call for closing of one or more of the alleys criss-crossing the interior of the big city block.

In discussing juvenile delinquency in the entire area, the report points out that while most of the complaints reaching Juvenile Court from the area involve older children, "these juveniles do not become delinquent overnight."



This is the "most ideal" of three schemes for development of the Dennison playground, according to the Juvenile Court Advisory Committee. The old school building is in the southwest corner of the proposed play area shown here.

Sixty-six graduates of the Madeira School at Greenway, Va., yesterday received diplomas after completing four years' study at the girls' preparatory school.

Dressed in long white robes and carrying bouquets of red roses, the graduating students entered the school's sylvan auditorium and were handed their diplomas from the school founder and headmistress Mrs. David L. Wing.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Wing told them encouragingly, this is a complex world in which we live but to meet this problem we have the help of two tools, the great Christian ethic, worked out over hundreds of years and the democratic process.

She added, "It has been said that only the free shall be educated, but God has said that only the educated shall be free."

More than 800 persons, families and friends of the graduates, were present for the exercises.

Ellender Renews War Today On New Senate Office Building

Senator Ellender (D., La.) today will resume his fight to block construction of the proposed $20,000,000 new Senate Office Building.

He will argue against the proposal on grounds of economy, and the housing hardship it might impose on the low-income families now living on the building site. This borders C st. sw., directly east of the present Senate Office Building.

Ellender will testify before the Senate Public Works Committee at 2 p. m. on a resolution, sponsored by himself, which would delay razing the appro ing the approximately 80 dwellings on the site.

The new building, designed to include Senate committee hearing rooms, an auditorium and a swimming pool, has the unanimous approval of the New Senate Office Building Commission. The block-long site already has been bought by the Government, and clearance is scheduled to begin shortly.

Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.), chairman of both the Senate Public Works Committee and the New Office Building Commission, said last night that his group "would be glad to hear Senator Ellender fully on the project," but added that he felt the new building "was badly needed."

Ellender's drive to block the new Senate quarters has the apparent support of a House Appropriations subcommittee which last week denied a 10-million-dollar item to start construction.

Phone-Rate Bid Linked to Dip in Dollar

Baltimore, June 6 (AP).—The fact that the dollar isn't worth what it used to be is just as important to the investor as the wage earner, a professor of economics said today.

Dr. Herbert Dorau of New York University gave a lesson on dollar value at a hearing before the Public Service Commission. He is one of five "experts" the Chesapeare & Potomac Telephone Co. is calling in support of its request for a rate increase.

Dorau said the company is entitled to a rate of return not less than 6.5 per cent on the cost of reproducing its property. If the rate of return is measured by the original costs, naturally less, then the return should be 7.2 per cent, since the lower percentage on the higher value would yield a proportionate amount.

Dorau defined fair return as the amount remaining after all expenses, including provisions for depreciation and taxes, which the company should be allowed to earn. The company says this return now is less than 5 per cent, due to higher costs and expenses.

The New York professor said fair return is to capital what wages are to labor. And companies must offer investors a return on their money to justify risks taken.

The hearing on the rate increase resumed today after a 10-day recess. Intervening in opposition to the increase are the City of Baltimore and the State of Maryland.

Dr. Charles M. Irvin and Detective Capt. Frank H. Webb were the only witnesses the jury called in connection with the slaying.

Fight Moderate Drinkers Is WCTU Plan

An intensified fight against moderate drinkers was recommended yesterday by Mrs. Caroline E. Coates, president, Women's Christian Temperance Union of the District of Columbia.

She issued her call to action at the opening session of the District WCTU's diamond jubilee convention now being held at the Eastern Presbyterian Church, Sixth Street and Maryland ave. ne.

The WCTU head said that the entire WCTU with its some 400,000 members should make "a better fight against the moderate drinker so as to prevent their becoming hard drinkers."

"We should do all we can to discourage the use of liquor drinking in any form," she continued. "Alcohol causes insanity and crime, cancer and other outrageous diseases to an astonishing degree."

Mrs. Coates said that the District of Columbia is receiving requests to keep drinking places open from 2 to 4 a. m. and that as a contrast Sacramento, Calif., is trying to close its all night drinking bars.

Mrs. Coates also urged both local and national membership drives.

In her report at the afternoon session Mrs. Amy C. Weech, past president of the District WCTU, said that the children members of the Loyal Temperance Legion in 30 States raised $2000 last year in order to purchase and send 40 goats to aid the people in Europe. In addition she said that WCTU members sent large quantities of food and clothing to aid the people in Europe.

Included on the day's program were devotions by Mrs. H. A. Rothwell, salute to the U. S. Flag lead by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley; a welcoming address by the Rev. William Nesbitt Vincent; introduction of guests by Mrs. Barbara Fommelt; a memorial service conducted by Mrs. Bertie Farmer and her committee; musical numbers by Mrs. Grandfield Cook, soloist, Mrs. Marion Dawson, pianist.

Picturesque and beautiful are the many tours you can make in historic Québec—around the romantic Gaspé Peninsula—down the rugged north shore of the St. Lawrence to the Saguenay and Lake St. John—up through Montréal to the Laurentians—south to the storied Eastern Townships. And everywhere you will be welcomed with truly French-Canadian hospitality in comfortable inns and hotels.

Five Years Ago Wife Tabled Her Husband's Advice to Adopt a Child; Now She Feels Ready But He Seems Irritably Indifferent

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Tom and I have been married 12 years and have often talked of adopting a child, for we are crazy about children and have none of our own, due to an operation I had.

In 1943, when I had a lucrative war job, Tom advised me to go ahead and make application for adoption, but I saw a good opportunity to put aside some money, so I just stayed on the job until the work was discontinued. I hoped Tom would appreciate that I was doing it to help him.

About the same time, Tom quit his job and went into business for himself, where he is doing well; but recently when I again broached the subject of adopting a child he blew up and said I was selfish because (1) I had stayed on the war job until it folded, and (2) then remained home to be a housewife.

Would Child Cause Conflict in Home?

HE AGREES to the adoption, however, but says it will be my responsibility, inasmuch as I didn't act when he first suggested it. Now I am wondering, will he learn to love the child or will it cause arguments in the home? My mother says, "Go ahead if he's willing," and she thinks he will soon learn to love the child as if it were his own.

My sister has two children and so has my brother; and Tom rolls on the floor and plays with them, and is always bringing one of them here for the weekend, and the children are wild about him. So you see he does love children; and he is a wonderful husband and loves me very much. I want a baby so badly that I am almost desperate, and I would appreciate your advice at this point. A. R.

Is Wife Deceived About Her Feelings?

DEAR A. R.: There is a possibility that you are fooling yourself, but not Tom's intuition at this point, in professing a desperate desire to have an adopted baby. This might explain why he blew up, called you selfish on the score of past performance, and mentioned responsibilities you'd have to meet.

Maybe your vacillating vehement declarations of love for children aren't sincere, but rather a flustered echo of Tom's genuine heart-hunger for parenthood; a face-saving camouflage put out instinctively, to salve his frustration and keep him from thinking, or catching on, that you are too self centered to want children.

There is much truth in the saying, "Actions speak louder than words," and it seems your actions conspicuously contradict your yearning rhetoric about wanting children, because the record shows that when you get to the threshold of doing something about adoption, you back away involuntarily.

Is She Maternal or Just Anxious?

FIVE YEARS ago, you backed away rationalizing your flight in terms of wanting to stay on a job to save money and help Tom. Now again you are backing away, rationalizing your retreat in terms of wondering if Tom would fail the child; or if the child would cause trouble in the home. All of which sounds like trying to disguise negativism in altruist, large-minded dress.

This ambiguous behavior sparks a conjecture that jealous anxiety may be the principal drive behind your recurrent halfway notions to adopt a child. Vaguely you may "want" a child to improve your hold on Tom; to help anchor him and bind him to you. And maybe also you unconsciously competitively resent his adoration of your sister's and brother's children. It seems significant that he brings them home for weekends, not you.

In short, I don't know if you have real mother love to give a child. Hence my advice is to discuss your state of mind with adoption authorities in your city, and undertake the screening tests which help them decide whether the applicant's home situation, temperament, relations to spouse, etc., are up to the standard required of "acceptable" adopting parents. M. H.

After two months vacation, the volunteers will return the early part of September to freshly stocked shelves and counters ready for a brisk fall trade.

Separate contributions to the United Jewish Appeal by women from their own personal budgets are being asked by workers to make it possible to empty the Displaced Persons camps in Europe this year and bring to Israel all Jews who wish to go there.

Mrs. John Grace Here for Visit

Col. and Mrs. Nathaniel Macon Martin of Arlington have as their house guest Mrs. John Grace of Chicago, who came to be godmother at the christening on Sunday of their little daughter "Libet."

Mrs. Grace is formerly of Washington, and her daughter, the former Miss Virginia Grace, is now Mrs. Richard Morrison Riggs of Oklahoma City. Mrs. Riggs has a small son, John Robert Riggs. Mrs. Grace hopes to return to Washington in the fall when she will give a recital. She will sing her solo version of "Pelleas and Melisande," similar to the arrangement of "Peter Ibbetson" which she sang at the Phillips Memorial Gallery several years ago.

On Thursday Mrs. Grace will go to New York to be at the Waldorf-Astoria for a few days before returning home.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Now and again it happens that a child will be very upset every time mother leaves home even though she may be going only to the neighborhood store. Many a youngster, too, objects strenuously to being left with a baby-sitter. And I've known parents who would "sneak" out after the child had gone to sleep!

Experience shows pretty clearly that such tactics are undesirable. The child's feeling of insecurity, of being fooled can be very strong if one uses these or similar methods. Even though it may not be too pleasant to leave a disturbed child when one has to go out, it is far better to be straightforward and honest than to try to avoid a "scene."

It is important to find out why the youngster is so upset. There may be some feeling of not being loved, fear that he will be left alone for good, or other similar attitudes. At any rate, it is desirable to help him learn to accept the fact that mother and father do go out, that they will be back and that there is nothing about which to be worried.

A little extra care in having a pleasant time together before leaving may help. Telling a story, explaining just where one is going and promising to tell him about it on one's return are among the methods that often will work.

Ringing Your Man

More men in America wear wedding rings now than ever before. Ninety per cent of the weddings today are double ring ceremonies, jewelers say. Men prefer uncarved rings, with a plain palladium band a particular favorite.

"Aunt Minnie" Goldsmith Gets Memories Bouquet

By Genevieve Reynolds

SOME 500 strong paid tribute to 78-year-young Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, well-known civic, philanthropic leader and fund raiser extraordinarie. Occasion was the "Minnie Goldsmith" donor luncheon of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Hebrew Home for the Aged, held yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Purpose of the event was to raise funds in a drive for $300,000 to build a new wing to the Hebrew Home for the Aged at 1125 Spring rd. nw. Approximately $5000 came in at the luncheon to up the current quota.

"Aunt Minnie," as Mrs. Goldsmith is affectionately called throughout Jewish circles in the city, was the first president of the auxiliary.

In replying to the reams of fulsome praise heaped upon her, she said that she was deeply grateful and flattered and added, with a chuckle, "I didn't know I was that good."

Mrs. Goldsmith pointed out that the Home for the Hebrew Aged is overly crowded but that a drive for funds was slow in starting because of hesitancy to interfere with the fund drives of the United Jewish Appeal, of which she is special gifts chairman.

Pages of History

"A Bouquet of Memories," consisting of a page of history plus a long-stemmed, red rosebud was presented to the guest of honor by the past presidents of the organization.

Here is a gist of highlights from the book of memories as sketched by the current and past presidents. All references are to the work and contributions of Mrs. Goldsmith, in the various organizations in the Nation's Capital.

Mrs. Bernard Danzansky, first past president, recalled that 35 years ago Mrs. Goldsmith attended the dedication of the first building of the HHA and served as chairman of the building fund.

Mrs. Joseph Kaminsky's page out of the book pointed out that no task was too difficult for "Aunt Minnie."

Mrs. William Levy's page recalled that Mrs. Goldsmith directed the investigation of applicants to the home for more than a decade and became its first president in 1933.

Mrs. Henry Oxenberg told how Aunt Minnie envisioned a Foster home for children, and how the dream became a reality when a spacious building on Q st., became the Jewish Foster Home. Then she recollected that the home lost its individual identity in 1938 when it was incorporated in the Jewish Social Service Agencies.

Mrs. Herman Hertzberg told how "Aunt Minnie" instituted a student loan fund about 25 years ago, which still is in existence. Mrs. Joseph Kronman's page of memories recalled that Mrs. Goldsmith, together with several others, advocated a city-wide Community Chest, which was organized in 1929 and which she later served as chairman of the solicitations committee. Another past president, Mrs. Simon Davis, said that about 13 years ago "Aunt Minnie," together with others, created a camp fund and served as chairman of its committee for several years.

Mrs. Elias Gelman recalled that "Aunt Minnie" envisioned the rebirth of Israel and devoted her time and talents to the United Jewish Appeal of which she is honorary chairman.

Mrs. Alex Podnos, reminisced that 35 years ago Mrs. Goldsmith attended the dedication of the Home on M st., and a few years later began planning for a larger one. And that, while serving as chairman of the committee to raise funds for a new home, $88,000 was raised in 88 minutes.

Mr. Sklar Speaks

Albert Sklar, member of the Maryland Legislature, who was principal speaker at the luncheon, paid tribute to "Aunt Minnie" and told the audience that every Jewish community has a counterpart of Mrs. Goldsmith.

He pointed out that comparatively few Jewish people are on public welfare rolls . . . that they are cared for in private institutions by their own people.

Commending the auxiliary members for their work, Sklar said that women could give attention as well as money to such causes as the Hebrew Home for the Aged. But he warned "faith must be accompanied by work."

Although she doesn't do the foot work she used to—visiting prisons, slums, plus all sorts of other welfare and civic places, Mrs. Goldsmith is still a number one fund raiser. She does it by mail and telephone.

While she has toiled long and hard as volunteer welfare worker, she never neglected her family. She has two hildren—one son, Ralph, is general manager of Lansburgh's department store—eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Herman Gelman, current auxiliary president of the HHA, told the audience that the present building of the home is packed ot capacity with 76 persons with an evergrowing waiting list.

She announced that Mrs. Mary Sylvia had donated $5000 to the home as a memorial to her husband and daughter and that a silver tablet would be unveiled at the home June 12 at noon.

Mrs. Jack Blank, served as chairman, and Mrs. Louis Dinowitz, cochairman of the donor luncheon.

In her remarks to the audience, Mrs. Dinowitz said that only one Commandment of the Bible held out a promise of a reward—"Honor thy father and mother that thy days may be long."

MRS. CHARLES A. GOLDSMITH (left) received the plaudits of hundreds yesterday when she appeared as guest of honor at the 'Minnie Goldsmith" donor luncheon given by the Ladies Auxiliary, Hebrew Home for the Aged, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Adding words of praise for the civic and philanthropic leader are Mrs. Herman Gelman, auxiliary president (center) and Albert Sklar, member of the Maryland Legislature who was principal speaker at the fund-raising event

Democratic Women Hear James P. Davis

James P. Davis, director of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions of the Department of Interior, said yesterday there is no sound reason to withhold statehood from Hawaii and Alaska.

Addressing the luncheon of the Women's National Democratic Club, he pointed out that citizens of the two territories are United States citizens and deserve as such full rights from the Federal Government. Both Hawaii and Alaska fill complete requirements for statehood, he said.

Mr. Davis also asserted that the Federal Government must help overcome difficulties within the territories, such as the over-population problem of Puerto Rico and the small land-resources ratio in Alaska.

Among the other guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Ernest Gruening, wife of the governor of Alaska; Mrs. James P. Davis, and Mrs. Olive Remmington Goldman, also of the Department of Interior. Mrs. Bertha Friant, president, presided.

Wednesday the club's new officers wil be honored at a tea, from 4 to 6 p. m., at the clubhouse. Officers include Mrs. Friant, Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, first vice president; Mrs. Frank Pace, jr., second vice president; Mrs. Harrington Wimberly, recording secretary; Mrs. Joseph C. Casey, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Jackson C. Davis, treasurer.

Cool Organdy Is Back, Vivid And Silk-Fine

The latest fabric news for summer fashions does not concern a new fabric at all, but the revival of one that has been beloved by women of fashion for most of this century—cool, crisp transparent organdy—often called the aristocrat of cottons.

The Swiss invented the process, which is chemically applied, that adds to organdy a crystal-clear transparency and a permanent crispness. Washing and ironing or drycleaning only are required to restore it to the same character as when it left the finishers. The finest yarns, the sheerest fabrics, and many handcraft techniques are required.

When these Swiss organdies began trickling in after the war, they were quickly sought out by designers here and abroad who foresaw the return to femininity in women's fashions—but the supply was so limited only a few custom designers could indulge their inspirations.

Used as Coat-Dresses

Happily, the supply is more plentiful today and designers have blossomed forth with many new and exciting ideas for transparent cottons. No longer are they thought of for after-dark gowns only—but are ingeniously used as coat-dresses over strapless sundresses. In dark colors they look cool and new and fashionable over prints or polka dots for afternoon wear.

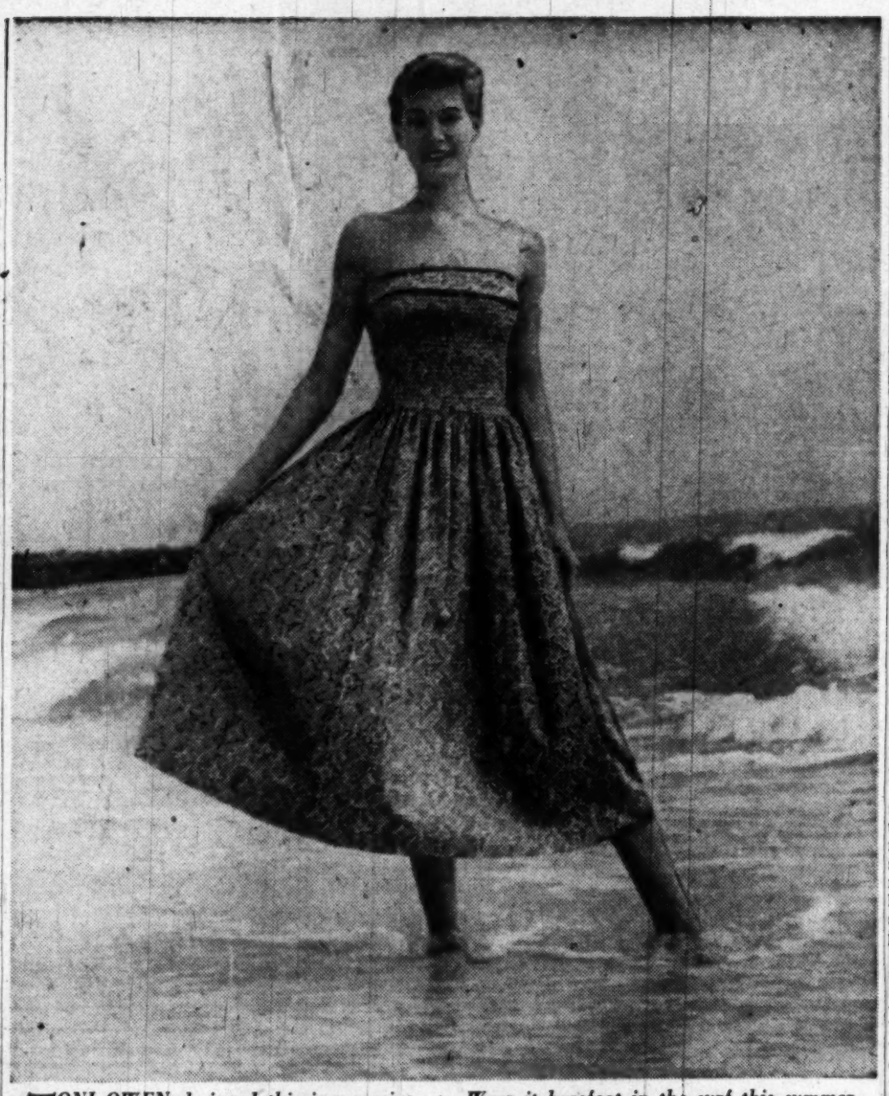
Swiss organdies in plain or lavishly embroidered, appliqued or printed patterns have found special favor for the new short dance frock which is not put aside for evenings alone but can be worn for many after-5 occasions—and is ideal for garden weddings. The young crowd applaud this new length because it has a gay and floating air and is so much easier to handle in dancing than the floor-length formal. Several designers have made a point of the transparency of fine Swiss organdy by using it over colored slips that are stiffened with horsehair. When the organdy is printed with a delicate design in white, the pattern takes on a frosted look that is as tempting as a mint julep on a hot day. One of America's most ingenious designers has given this imago printed organdy a completely new look by laying it over a plain colored cotton and using the two as one fabric . . . the result is a lacy effect that from a distance looks like a delicately printed cotton.

Like Fresh Flowers

In the new printed patterns, Swiss organdies are styled with the fineness of silk—large, bold stylized roses widely spaced on muted pastel grounds—naturalistic floral prints on a creped texture (that needs no ironing) have the fresh bloom of real garden-fresh flowers.

One of the newest transparent cottons to be imported from Switzerland is an iridescent organdy. Woven in unusual combinations of colors, its kaleidescopic beauty is breath-taking.

Women who sew will find inspiration in the lovely Swiss organdies available in the yard goods department of their favorite store . . . as varied and exquisite as those used by top-ranking designers.



TONI OWEN designed this inexpensive "By the Sea" frock of cotton print, gave it a full skirt gathered from the waistline, and a neat little strapless bodice, shirred and banded with a cuff at the top. Wear it barefoot in the surf this summer, and with straw sandles on the dance floor after dark. Colors are blue, brown and wine; sizes 10 to 16

Practical Pointer

Pressure cookers are almost indispensible in the modern home, so if you want to give a really practical gift to the bride choose one of the latest models in this household utensil. The 4-quart cookers are the ones that are most in demand, but this is inadequate in many cases, especially for chickens and meat. A 6-quart one is a more usable size, even for the small family.

Would Your Bridal Gown Fit You Now?

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU'RE not doing anything for the next five minutes, go up to the attic and get out your wedding dress. Whatever for? Well, just to see how much you've changed since that June you waltzed down the aisle.

"My goodness!" you muse, "What size was that dress? A 12! Just imagine . . . and that tiny waistline" You're lost in reverie, recalling the slim, lovely bride who wore that dress . . . ah, it seems but yesterday.

But back to reality. Let's see, from a size 12 to a twen . . . no, you can still get into some 18's. Besides you were far too thin when you were married . . . why, you weighed a mere 112 pounds.

You distinctly remember that Bill was pleased when you rounded out a bit. When you'd put on 10 pounds, he declared you looked healthier, and that he had never liked thin women. And how he praised your cooking!

Then the children came along, and after each one there were those extra pounds that stubbornly remained. All in all, the excess somehow got up to an alarming number, almost without your knowing it. And now the doctor says you need to take off 25 pounds.

Well, there is no better time than summer to take it off . . . THIS SUMMER. Of course the main trouble with dieting is that you love to eat and actually get very weak on a diet. All right—instead of dieting, eat. By eating to get slim, you'll feel better than you have in years. I mean it honestly.

Don't be disgruntled — think about all the good things you can eat and still take off weight at the safe and satisfying rate of a pound or two a week. Delete the calories where they will be least missed.

A deviled egg, for example, tastes just fine fixed with mustard and chopped celery in the center . . . no fattening mayonnaise needed. And a watercress sandwich with boiled dressing made with skim milk—why it's delicious!

With the meat and low-calorie vegetables at dinner, have an especially big salad with ripe tomato, cucumber, green lettuce, and celery hearts stuffed with cottage cheese. Salads are space fillers. And when the family dessert is ice cream, don't leave your plate empty . . . have a generous piece of cantaloupe with a few of those luscious black cherries on the side.

On scientifically planned menus, you'll be happy while clipping off the excess pounds. It's not dieting—but rather a change of food habits.

Ask Anne — About Table Top Care

Would you reprint just once more how to properly care for a leather top table and what I should do if alcohol, coke, or milk is spilled on it? A. O'C.

Apply several thin coats of good quality paste wax to the top, allowing each coat to dry completely before buffing and applying the next. When a good protective wax coating is built up, spilled liquids can be entirely removed—if immediately wiped up. Restore the wax coating by rewaxing as soon as dry. An added precaution against such accidents is to keep coasters and ash trays always available.

Do you have the recipe for the coating that is put on yeast doughnuts and for the icing that is used on the doughnuts made by machine? P. K. D.

The coating for yeast doughnuts can be made easily by mixing enough milk or water into powdered sugar to give it a spreading consistency. Vanilla can be added if desired. Dip the doughnuts while hot in the mixture.

The heavier icing for cake type doughnuts is also made with powdered sugar with milk or cream added to give a spreading consistency. For a richer icing, a teaspoon or two of soft butter may be blended in. Spread onto the doughnuts when almost cool.

Is there any place in Washington where I may purchase felt by the yard? I have a short jacket sent to me from China during the war, off white very beautifully embroidered in colors. It is too tight under the arm and I want to insert a small piece to enlarge sleeve. R. D. L.

The large department store at 11th and F st. has cream colored felt by the yard in the drapery department.

I have a very nice waffle iron. Lately my waffles have been sticking. I have burned the irons for 30 minutes with olive oil, but still they stick. I go by the recipe on the box. What do you think could be my trouble? E. C.

I suspect that in attempting to season it you have allowed the iron to heat to too high a temperature and stay there too long. In order that the fat will not burn on the iron it should be just heated to baking temperature and then turned off if it is nonautomatic. If there is a heat control on it, set it at the lowest temperature and leave it on only 5 to 10 minutes or follow the directions which come with your iron for seasoning.

In order to condition your iron now, as much as possible of the burned-on fat should be removed by brushing the grids with a stiff brush. Then while the iron is cold apply a generous coating of unsalted fat. (Olive oil is all right, but it is pretty expensive to use this way.) Turn the iron on, just heat to baking, but not smoking, and turn off, allowing to cool slowly. When you are ready to use it, heat to baking temperature and put in the first waffle and bake. This waffle should be discarded since it will be very greasy. Before putting in each succeeding waffle, brush the grids lightly with unsalted fat. To avoid sticking, it is most important that the iron be at baking temperature before the batter is put into it and that the batter contain some shortening.

How does one acquire or make dried orange peel? H. S.

Dried orange peel can be made satisfactorily by removing as much of the white as possible, cutting the peels in strips and placing them in a very slow oven (250 degrees F.) for an hour or so. How long it will take to dry them completely will be determined by the thickness of the peels and how much moisture was in them to start.

I have a very good quality artificial pearl necklace that has become pink in some places as a result of rubbing on a print dress that has bright red in it. Is there any way I can restore the pearls to their original color? N. N.

The repair department of a large Washington jewelry store tells me that artificial pearls do sometimes discolor with use and that this discoloration can seldom be removed. However, you might try rubbing them with a soft cloth with mild soap on it. Be sure to rinse thoroughly and buff with a dry soft cloth.

Manhattan Dress Pirates Vex Top Flight Designers

By Jhan and June Robbins

(N. Y. Herald-Tribune News Service)

THE MESSENGER BOY who brought the dress to the apartment door handled the impressive box gingerly. The maid who received it balanced it on her arm cautiously. Even the fashionable-looking young woman who unwrapped it in the privacy of her boudoir fingered its rich folds with respect.

And well she might, for the dress was an original cocktail gown designed by Mainbocher. It had cost $600.

The gown was immensely becoming to its new owner. She dressed carefully, adding all the necessary accessories, and wrapped a mink cape snugly about her as she hurried out of the apartment and hailed a cab. She had an important date.

It was not, however, at the Stork Club or at any of the other platinum-tinged rendezvous where the dress had been designed to go. As the cab started up, she leaned forward and whispered an address to the driver—an address on Seventh ave. "But go down to Washington Square first and up the West Side," she directed.

The driver shrugged, "It's your money."

His passenger crouched low in the seat, her face hidden by the curve of her fur collar. A few minutes later, she ran lightly up a flight of rickety stairs and burst into the garishly lighted, bare, white-washed sewing room of a manufacturer of moderately priced dresses.

Go to Work Fast

"I'VE GOT IT!" she cried triumphantly. The seamstresses seated at the dozens of sewing machines took their feet off the treadles and ceased work, the huge electric scissors poised in mid-air. The manufacturer and his workers gathered eagerly about her as she threw her coat wide. Before the day was over, copies of the once-exclusive model were on the Seventh ave. manufacturer's cutting tables, well on their way to dress racks where they would sell for $16.95.

This garment-center Mata Hari is only one of hundreds of keen-eyed, quick-witted young women who earn their living in the garment industry by helping to pirate dress designs. Some scout their employer's rivals. Others, like this one, concentrate on the high-fashion designers who originate the styles. These are high-class operators. There are perhaps two dozen in New York—young women whose blue-blooded family backgrounds give them unquestioned entree to the salons of the haute couture but whose anemic bank accounts do not permit them to buy there.

They attend exclusive fashion showings, purchase what seem to be the most likely or striking models and turn them over to the mass manufacturers who copy them, or in garment center parlance, "knock them off." The spy's reward is usually keeping the expensive original.

There is nothing illegal in these quaint careers. Unlike France, which protects its important fashion industry with strict laws and punishes style pirates severely, the United States has no fashion copyright law. There is little that Mainbocher and other creative designers can do but drop known or suspected spies from their invitation lists. The average garment manufacturer sends out his own spies without one ethical qualm. It is only when a competitor sneaks a spy into his showroom and makes off with a sketch of his season's pet model that he feels there ought to be a law.

Although every garment manufacturer doesn't engage in piracy, the practice is undeniably widespread. On the whole, the men who have mass-produced the American woman into the best-dressed female in the world are pretty proud of their ability to knock them off as fast as the big designers here and abroad can think them up.

No Bonus for Originality

IN NEW YORK'S garment center, which is jammed into all the available space on 7th ave. between 35th and 41st sts., there are few laurels given or asked for original designs. Instead, manufacturers concentrate on producing a gown which, from a distance of 10 feet—or 20, if you are a woman—looks like a custom-made model.

Sid Blauner, president of Lombardy Dresses, Inc., largest dress manufacturer in the country, boasts innocently, "We always copy as exactly as is possible for mass production."

Occasionally, he and his fellow manufacturers glean their ideas from the glossy pages of the better fashion magazines. But for the most part, they pin their faith on the spies and counterspies who dodge along 7th ave., often carrying their loot in unobtrusive, brown paper bags.

Spy work is fast and efficient. A department store manager was flabbergasted recently when buyers for his bargain balcony, budget shop and costume floor each turned up with the same dress, selling in three different price lines. Such occurrences embarrass the stores, make customers angry and make the original designers angriest of all. Couturiere Nettie Rosenstein, some of whose creations are priced below $100, is not particularly perturbed by the copyists who produce for the bargain basement. But the spies whose bosses tag their pirated products confusingly near her own level—around $49.50—are the ones she'd like to get her hands on.

Unfortunately, none of the Nation's top-flight designers has ever been able to think up a suitable punishment, although one temperamental artist has been known to chase a suspected spy out of her workrooms and pursue her into the street, hysterically waving a pair of shears. Another laid a trap by designing what he considered a perfect dud—a dress that nobody would buy—and leaving it out where the spies could grab it. They grabbed it all right, but to his dismay the cheap copies of this deliberate horror sold about as well as anything else that season.

The garment manufacturer is not a piratical type. He is much more likely to be a timid, worried little man who goes with a surprisingly large number of his fellows for treatment of dyspeptic ulcers and for frequent phychiatric advice. These twin complaints are the health hazards of this highly competitive enterprise where more than 1000 manufacturers are desperately jostling one another for their share of two billion dollars worth of annual business and where each year from 10 to 15 per cent of the firms are eliminated by bankruptcy.

Worried over the financial future, none seems to want to guess what 54 million American women are going to choose to wear next and when they will feel like shopping for it.

The Villian Unmasked

IT IS indisputable that new trends in fashions, and the best interpretations of them, begin in the salons of the Nation's top-flight custom designers. And with any luck, a manufacturer's spies can make the rounds of the couturier houses and glean a dozen numbers that will style-lead the season.

Silver Plating Process Accidental Discovery

The discovery of the process for silver plating, like so many other important advances, was the result of an accident. In 1742, in the attic of a small building known as Tudor House in Sheffield, England, a mechanic, Thomas Boulsover, was repairing a knife blade. During this operation, he accidentally fused silver and copper. Progressing further Boulsover found that when heated to a certain temperature, these metals became inseparable and began to manufacture silver articles using this method.

Parents Need To Be Mature, Emotionally

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Every situation a parent faces with her children is aggravated if the parent is not emotionally mature.

Too often people do not recognize their own acts as being those of children. It would be well if they had more insight into why life is often so difficult for them. It demands that they be grown-up.

Mothers ought to know that children will not always be ideal. They should recognize that every year of their lives will bring particular problems due to growth. The children don't act this way to make her unhappy, but because such behavior is natural to their age.

She'll not feel incompetent just because, at times, her children get the best of her. Parenthood isn't a relationship of slave and master, but two individuals of different generations trying to live together.

Won't Feel Guilty

If she is fully adult she won't feel guilty if she gives in to her children at times, or if she gets mad at them, or even if she punishes them because she wants to dominate them and show them who is boss, that she should question her status as a grownup.

All the squabbles she gets into with neighbors over the children's behavior would never happen if both parties were fully adult in their thinking. The lifted nose at sight of a neighbor, the "I'll never speak to her again," threat, the senseless anger because someone speaks critically of her children: this is all foolish, childish behavior which unnecessarily complicates living.

The fully-mature person will never feel that she is sacrificing herself when she gives up her good times, or makes financial sacrifices for her children. If she does she will act the martyr and there is no attitude so glaringly indicative of the emotionally immature.

When parents act their age they are loving, without demanding that the child be good or beautiful to compensate them. They sacrifice willingly, knowing that they are carrying on an age-old parental pattern, something done for them, which they, in turn do for the next generation.

Growing Is Painful

They are realistic enough to know that growing up is a painful process of adjustment to society and children exhibit much resentment and misbehavior while they learn this.

They will know that they can treat the child as if he had good sense and judgment and let him use both of them without detracting one which from their own stature as parents and authorities.

It all depends on whether they, as persons, have reached a stage of maturity which makes them able to deal with problems as grownups and not as if they, too, were children, playing at being parents.

This New Coffee Flavor Makes Early Morning Angels

It turns Bears into Dears...it's a wonderful, wonderful spirit-lifting success

If housework's giving you the horrors and you've got those early morning blues, take time off for a steaming, flavorful cup of this grand new coffee. It's "angel-making."

What's the secret? Selecciones (pronounced seleck-see-o-nays). That's the Spanish for selected . . . some coffees selected mainly for perfecting body . . . others selected mainly for perfecting flavor. Yes, the flavor coffees in this mouth-watering new blend are hand-selected 1-2-three times!

1. Hand-selected from shade-grown, pedigreed trees.
2. Hand-selected at the peak of ripeness.
3. Hand-selected before and after curing.

No wonder it's so delicious. Try it! If you don't think it's the best coffee you ever tasted, just send us the unused portion and we'll give you double your money back. Get your pound today! (It's vacuum-packed, of course.) And long live your houseful of early morning angels!

WONDERFUL COFFEE IN 2 SECONDS

Hacker, Cop Team Up in Lucky 13 Coincidence

Everette Edward, who drives Yellow Cab No. 13, was highballing toward Providence Hospital with a passenger who had been burned in a kitchen accident.

Spotting a motorcycle cop, Everette yelled: "How about an escort to Providence Hospital? My passenger is hurt."

"Sure, Number 13," replied the cop. "Follow me, Number 13."

They made it to the hospital in jig time. Then Everette and the policeman had a chance to get acquainted, and the hacker learned that his escort had been Pvt. Chester Mills of 36 Madison st. ne.

Private Mills' badge number, he noted, is 1313.

THIS IS WASHINGTON?

George L. Skirm, jr., of 3452-E New Mexico ave. nw. was a passenger in a bus headed toward Glen Echo the other day, and noted three small fellow passengers.

The lads were apparently on their way out to enjoy an afternoon of swimming, and their exuberance was a sight to behold.

As a matter of fact, they were slightly on the noisy side. Not unruly — just happy, and full of bounce.

At 49th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. they left the bus, to transfer to another which would take them to Glen Echo. As they took up their vigil, the driver of the bus they had just left opened his front door and yelled out at them:

"That line has been discontinued."

As he drove off, leaving the three boys confused and in doubt as to their next move, District Liner Skirm asked:

"When was that line discontinued? I hadn't heard about it."

"It hasn't been discontinued," replied the bus driver smugly. "I was just paying them back for all the noise they made."

The driver's identity has been reported to his employers, who are most distressed to hear about his bad manners.

They promised to give him a pointed lecture on the advisability of being courteous to one's customers — of whatever size.

MISCELLANY

I hope I'll save myself a lot of letter writing by going on record with this statement: I do not know the "Mystery Melody," possibly because I do not listen to give-away programs. But even if I thought I knew the jackpot answer, I wouldn't print it here unless I had the program director's sworn affidavit as to its accuracy . . .

E. L. DeLoach of 520 Southern Railway Building wonders why our sports department recently printed complete scores with the listing of the games to be played that day . . .

Dot Wolfe Richardson of 3001 15th st. nw., chuckles over our society department's sentence: "Other guests present were Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson—she is a bouffant grey lace gown" . . . Aw, she is not. She's a very charming woman who merely wears such gowns . . .

Mrs. Harry E. Houston of 5022 Baltimore ave., Green Acres, Md., is a real Washington baseball fan. She suggests that when we list the league leaders in the Hit Parade, we ought to include the record of the best Nat in each department, so we'll know how the home town talent compares with the leaders . . .

Hey, Mr. Circulation Director—one of my constituents reports that on a recent trip to New York he tried to buy a Washington Post at Grand Central Station and they told him he'd have to go over to the Waldorf for it, because they didn't handle The Post at the station. Whatsa matter with those guys—they trying to throw business to the Pennsy?

HYBLA BEES (REVISITED)

Fred Bradley of 1446 Smith pl. se. wanted help in determining the balance of the verse that starts, "The honey of the Hybla bees."

As usual, District Liners supply the answer. Carolyn Shapiro of 5605 Suitland rd. and Janet V. Koch of 3706 S st. nw. say that Fred can find the complete jingle in "Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing," by Samuel Hoffenstein.

However, two other readers supply versions in which the last two lines vary from the original. Ed Wranek of 615 A st. se. knows the poem as:

The honey of the Hybla bees
Is not so sweet as kissing you.
But though not sweeter, yet I find
That more sincere is mountain dew.

However, C. E. B. of 1800 Connecticut ave., contends that the last two lines should properly be:

But since your spouse might disapprove,
I'll have to make the honey do.

He furnishes the additional information that this version comes from an anthology which credits the lines to: "Ibid, Circa 1890," and observes:

"As a matter of fact, Circa Ibid seems to have written a great many poems, but I have never been able to find a volume of his collected works. Judging from the dates on his works, he seems to have had a phenomenally long life."

Yes indeed. Circa Ibid probably wrote more good stuff than anybody since Anon.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Why do buses coming in from Maryland unload at 34th and Benning rd. ne. and then put up signs saying "Not In Service" and go on in to town?

I have waited as long as 18 minutes for a bus at this point, between 5:30 and 5:48 p. m.

G. A. McKinney,
3427 Eads st. ne.

Dear Mr. McKinney:

A company spokesman says he can't understand why you would have to wait 18 minutes for a bus at that spot, because "they come along every few minutes." He cites the schedule to prove his point.

This should be a great consolation to you the next time you're waiting for a bus.

Bill.

Church 'Circus' Role Irks Truman

By Drew Pearson

President Truman would attend his family church, the First Baptist, oftener, except for the fuss and fanfare that occurs when he shows up for Sunday services.

Rev. Pruden

Truman has strong ideas that people should go to church to worship, not to see who's in the congregation — even if the President of the United States is on hand.

"I don't like being a circus attraction in a place of worship," he has remarked on several occasions.

His pastor, the Rev. Edward H. Pruden, agrees with the President, but he is always polite to people who phone him on Sunday mornings to know if Truman will be there.

Social Diplomacy

The full inside story has not yet been written of how Andrei Gromyko, first deputy foreign minister of the USSR, laid the groundwork for the Paris Big Four conference.

It is a story which involves such names as Nelson Rockefeller, Warren Austin, and especially Mrs. Austin and Mrs. Gromyko.

During the past year, Gromyko has quietly broken down the social wall which normally keeps Soviet diplomats from contact with the world they live in. He has accepted frequent dinner invitations from U. S. Delegate Warren Austin, at which young Rockefeller and other broad-minded businessmen were present.

Actually, there was not much hush-hush discussion at these dinners. One informant describes them as being "painfully social." But they broke the ice between key individuals of East and West—thanks in part to the cordial feeling that grew up between Mrs. Austin and Mrs. Gromyko.

The Austin dinners were reciprocated by the Gromykos, at their 680 Park ave. residence.

These social icebreakers began even before Gromyko went back to Russia last year, and those who knew his movements in that period say he went not only to Moscow but to Sochi in the Crimea, where he was a personal guest of Premier Stalin.

Stalin, apparently impressed with Gromyko's report, asked him to make a report direct to the Politburo. This Gromyko did, stating that there was a genuine desire for an East-West understanding in the United States, and no desire for war.

This is the dinner-table background—in which the ladies played no small part—which helped soften the Soviet Foreign Office and opened the way for lifting the Berlin blockade.

Big Shipping Lobby

While Congress is supposed to be cracking down on lobbyists, the paid representatives of the big shipowners are violating an early lobbying act that became the forerunner of the present lobbying law.

This first congressional attempt to put the finger on lobbyists has been on the books since the merchant marine scandal of 1936, and requires lobbyists to register with the Maritime Commission before trying to influence shipping legislation on Capitol Hill.

Though this statute has never been repealed, big shipping lobbyists pay no attention to it. Even now a flock of lobbyists are clamoring before Congress for new shipping subsidies and, out of the entire lot, only one has bothered to register with the Maritime Commission.

He is the Waterman Steamship Co.'s lobbyist, Don Geaslin.

Other shipping representatives, who have appeared before Congress but haven't bothered to register under the 1936 law, are: L. R. Sanford, also a former Maritime Commission employe but now executive vice president, Shipbuilders Council of America; Frazer Bailey, president, National Federation of American Shipping; George Morgan, president, Association of American Ship Owners; Wilbur E. Dow, jr., president, American Tramp Shipowners Institute, and Chester Thompson, president, American Waterways Operators, Inc.

As an example of the handouts they seek from Uncle Sam, they are asking Congress for a dual standard of depreciation on their ships. For the purpose of paying taxes, they want the Government to grant an accelerated, 15 per cent depreciation, which would completely depreciate their vessels in less than seven years.

On the other hand, the shipping companies demand that the Government figure a 20-year depreciation in paying for private ships it takes over in case of war.

That's the kind of lobbying the shipping companies' unregistered lobbyists are doing on Capitol Hill.

Note—To find out whether the lobbyists were registered, this column called Maritime Commissioner Joe Carson. He squirmed at the questions, demanded to know who had tipped off Pearson. At one point, he blurted: "I suppose you are recording my conversation."

Assured that he was not talking into a dictaphone, he still held back. Though the information is a matter of public record, Carson finally refused to answer any more questions.

Revamping Czech Setup

The puppet government of Czechoslovakia is doing an about-face and will take in a number of non-Communists. Also, Czechoslovakia wants aid under the Marshall Plan. However, don't be fooled by this. Actually, the proposed Czech changes are tied up to the situation in Greece. . . . Russia's Andrei Gromyko proposed at the United Nations that the Greek government broaden its base and hold free elections. To which Dean Rusk of the State Department and Hector McNeil of the British Foreign Office replied in effect: "How do you dare talk about democracy in Greece when you have abolished all democracy and free elections in Czechoslovakia?" To avoid embarrassment, the Kremlin has now decided to take a small portion of its heel off the neck of the Czech people.
